Raid by Fortresses

London (Thursday), June 24.—Hundreds of giant R. A. F. bombers crushed the Ruhr steel city of Muelheim in a moonlight attack Tuesday night, while twin-engined bombers pounded the invasion coast late yesterday to keep the Allied aerial offensive rolling at a mighty pace.

Coastal residents at Folkstone cheered when a formation of Flying Fortresses roared back to their British bases yesterday after a cross-Channel expedition which as yet has not been disclosed officially.

The R. A. F.'s block-buster raiders smashed and burned targets at Muelheim despite desperate German resistance, which took a toll of 35 British heavyweights.

Late yesterday British Bostons and Typhoons escorted by fighters attacked targets at Meaulte, St. Omer and Maupertus in France, destroying two enemy planes without loss to themselves.

48 Hours of Bombings

The day attacks brought 48 hours of round-the-clock bombings, and the box score since last Saturday stood:

Saturday night — Schneider Arms Works at Le Creusot, France; big raid; three R. A. F. planes lost.

Sunday night — Radio-Locator factory at Friedichshafen in southern Germany; big raid; three R. A. F. planes lost.

Monday night—Krefeld, Ruhr steel city; more than 700 planes dropped 2000 tons of bombs; 44 R. A. F. bombers lost.

Tuesday by day—Synthetic rubber plant at Huls, Germany, and automobile plant at Antwerp, Belgium; 20 Flying Fortresses and 4 Allied fighters lost—Rotterdam, Holland, docks; one fighter lost.

Tuesday night—Muelheim, Ruhr steel and communications city, slightly less than 700 bombers, 33 of which were lost.

Wednesday by day — Flying Fortresses and R. A. F. two engine bombers attack continent.

Army Planes 'Attack' Capital In Longest Surprise Blackout

Washington and part of the Eastern Coast last night experienced its fourteenth blackout of the war, with the whole show controlled by the Army.

The first blue signal, the first warning, sounded at 8:28 and the red followed 1 hour and 17 minutes later, at 9:45. The red signal lasted for 20 minutes, the second blue sounding at 10:15 and the all-clear at 10:10. It was the longest surprised blackout. Last year there was an all-night planned blackout.

When the silent yellow alert signal was flashed, more than 4000 persons were in attendance at the Watergate for the Sunset Symphonies by the National Symphony Orchestra. The concert was immediately called off and patrons were told over the public address system that the performance would be given tonight.

Army planes simulating an attacking force, appeared over the city during both blue signals, but none during the red. During the first blue two groups of planes, flying high, were picked up by the slender fingers of searchlights to the east.

Again during the second blue other planes appeared and dodged about in the gleaming white light of the searchlights like moths around a candle.

While the Army would not comment on the success or failure of the test, witnesses were impressed by the facility with which the ring of searchlights around Washington followed the high-flying craft in the beams.

"The beams would catch and hold the planes I saw cross the city," one witness said. "As each craft flew overhead, the lights followed, and when the planes got too far away for some of the lights, others would pick them up."

The practice drill was ordered by Maj. Gen. Ralph Royce, commander of the First Air Force.

The blackout here was touched off by four-engined Army bombers flying toward the city. These same ships also touched off alarms in southeastern Virginia which extended to eastern Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire.

Despite the fact that the planes flew over New York and New Jersey, these States were not blacked out, as they had undergone similar

Italian Raids Concentrated On Railroads

Yards and Junction Town on Main Line Smashed by Allies

By Noland Norgaard
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, June 23.—Dealing heavy new blows to Mussolini's railroads—a major land lifeline in repelling invasion—R. A. F. Wellingtons smashed marshaling yards at Salerno Monday night with 2-ton blockbusters, and Mosquito bombers from Malta spread havoc over railways in Italy and Sicily last night.

The Wellingtons, following up a Monday daylight raid by American Flying Fortresses on rail targets in Salerno, made bull's-eye hits in the freight yards and barracks in the junction town on the principal electric railway running from Naples to the toe of Italy.

Many fires were started in the yards, an Allied headquarters communique stated. All the attackers returned.

The speedy Mosquito bombers from Malta kept up the hail of damage last night. Marshaling yards at Sibari were bombed and gunned with cannon shells hitting an engine, trucks and station, and sidings at Licata and a factory at Trebisacre were bombed, a British communique announced.

Allied light bombers based in the Middle East attacked and sank some small enemy vessels off the Greek coast, a Cairo communique

Woman Motorman Can't Back Trolley; Troubles Pile Up

Baltimore, June 23 (AP).—It's going to be a job, but the women who operate many of Baltimore's trolleys were trying hard today to live down that one about the female motorman who pulled away without her conductor.

It seems a car ran through a switch and made a wrong turn. The girls tried vainly to back the car, while passengers tittered. The women, also giggling, finally gave up and the conductorette went to phone the carbarn.

Then a kind-hearted male passenger showed the motorwoman how to get things going and she gaily pulled away—but only for a block. "My gosh," she cried, "I forgot Beulah."

She jumped off, ran back, got Beulah out of the drugstore and away they went—still laughing.

Congressmen Meet Weekly For Prayer

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

A small band of legislators yesterday sought divine guidance in facing the problems of war, friction at home and the perpetual struggle within one's own soul, at a breakfast "prayer meeting" in the Senate Restaurant.

Although several denominations were represented yesterday, Baptists were in the majority, with a scattering of Methodists, Lutherans and Presbyterians. The meetings have been held Wednesday mornings since January, without fanfare, front-page publicity or ballyhoo.

Coal strikes and racial disorders weighed heavily on their minds yesterday. So friction was the discussion topic—how to overcome friction and bitterness through Christian love in one's heart for his fellowmen.

"Seeking Light"

"We are seeking light for ourselves," said Senator Alexander Wiley (Republican) of Wisconsin, presiding, as he and other lawmakers bowed their heads in prayer.

Those who joined with Senator Wiley were Senators Davis, Pennsylvania; Willis, Indiana, and Tunnell, Delaware, and Representatives Hays and Harris, Arkansas; Chenoweth, Colorado; Busbey, Illinois; Johnson, California, and Smith, Wisconsin, and the following friends:

Senate Group Puts Limit On Rollback

Taft Amendment For Ceiling of 500 Millions Backed By Administration

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Senate Banking Committee yesterday placed a 500 million dollar ceiling on use of subsidies to roll back retail prices, confining the price rollback in effect to coffee, meats and butter.

The limited subsidy compromise was written into the billion dollar Commodity Credit Corp. loan bill as the Administration opened a last-stand Senate fight to salvage subsidy powers from a congressional shutout.

The half-billion-dollar rollback limitation was embodied in a CCC bill amendment by Senator Taft (Republican) of Ohio and laid before the Senate with Administration support.

Claim Necessary Votes

Senate leaders claimed the votes to approve the compromise in a showdown today or tomorrow. With the life of the present rollback program at stake, the House Banking Committee, meanwhile, moved to reaffirm recent House action blocking the program, and a two-chamber deadlock on the price row appeared imminent.

A meeting of the House Banking Committee was called for this morning to tighten a subsidy ban already written into the House version of the CCC bill.

Meanwhile a Senate subcommittee voted against a House provision to liquidate the National Youth Administration and a provision denying the National Labor Relations Board jurisdiction in the case against the Kaiser shipyards' contract with the American Federation of Labor.

Rail Men's Pay Set Aside By Vinson

Stabilization Head May Request Panel to Review Its Recent Award

Expected settlement of the coal strike was interpreted yesterday in Government quarters as marking the passing of an acute wage stabilization crisis which could have smashed efforts to "hold the line."

Evidence of this was provided by action of Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson setting aside the award of an 8-cents-an-hour general wage increase to 1,100,000 railroad workers affiliated with 15 nonoperating unions.

The award, made by a special emergency presidential panel, would have gone into effect today in the absence of action by Vinson.

Instead, Vinson asked the panel to make a revised recommendation "in the light of the memorandum opinion which will be filed by me within the next ten days."

Requested for Review

It was indicated that Vinson will ask the panel to review the award in the light of prevailing War Labor Board wage policies which the panel had ignored. It was possible that the panel would be able to justify the grant on grounds of substandard wages as interpreted by WLB, but it was indicated that a downward revision was also possible.

At present, however, with the award bearing no justification under WLB rules, some Government officials have regarded it as a clear "breach" in the line.

Previously, the coal and railroad wage cases were viewed as the two greatest threats to the wage stabilization program.

Meanwhile, it was learned, the War Labor Board has turned to consideration of another possible threat to wage stabilization—the rising cost of living.

WLB officials are now convinced that the present wage line can be held provided the cost of living is held.

Board officials are expected to issue a public statement calling for firmness on the price control front to protect wage control, it was learned.

24 Per Cent Rise

It was recalled that WLB formulated the "Little Steel" wage yardstick about a year ago and allowed for a 15 per cent increase in the cost of living between January 1, 1941, and May 15, 1942. Latest Bureau of Labor Statistics report indicates that the cost of living

Statement by the President On the Coal Mining Situation

The text of President Roosevelt's statement on the coal mining situation follows:

IT IS a good thing that the miners are returning to their work. This is the third time within a short period that the production of coal has been interrupted.

As a result of these three interruptions war production has been slowed down.

Aside from United Mine Workers coal mining, the making of war munitions and supplies has gone ahead extremely well. Aside from United Mine Workers coal mining, the no-strike pledge by organized labor has been well kept, the few small unauthorized strikes which have occurred having affected only a very small fraction of 1 per cent of production.

The action of the leaders of the United Mine Workers coal miners has been intolerable—and has greatly stirred up the anger and disapproval of the overwhelming mass of the American people.

THE mines for the time being of course will continue to be operated by the Secretary of the Interior under the executive order of May 1. The terms and conditions of employment will be those announced by the National War Labor Board in its directive of June 8. There has been no promise or commitment by the Government to change those terms and conditions in any way.

Before the leaders of the United Mine Workers decided to direct the miners to return to work, the Government had taken steps to set up the machinery for inducting into the armed services all miners subject to the Selective Service Act, who absented themselves without just cause from work in the mines under Government operation.

As the Selective Service Act does not authorize the induction of men above 45 years into the armed services, I intend to request the Congress to raise the age limit for noncombatant military service to 65 years. I shall make that request of the Congress so that if at any time in the future there should be a threat of interruption of work in plants, mines, or establishments owned by the Government, or taken possession of by the Government, the machinery will be available for prompt action.

Meat Tough Problem

Favorable crop weather, particularly in the Middle West, yesterday brightened prospects for a normal farm yield this year.

The Weather Bureau, in its weekly summary of conditions, reported farmers rushing to the limit to make up for time lost all during the spring.

In many places, farmers were said to be laboring day and night in an effort to catch up with delayed work and to put in crops that still can be harvested this year.

"With a week of favorable weather the corn crop shows noticeable recovery of at least part of the ground lost from previous unfavorable conditions," the report stated.

Both winter and spring wheat were reported making good to excellent progress. Meadows and pastures were in good condition and truck crops coming along fine.

One marked exception was in the Southwest, where drought conditions, centering largely in Arizona, Utah and New Mexico, were causing concern over the range and livestock situation.

Civilian and military beef supplies remained at a low level, due

Plan Might Send Workers Back to Jobs in Uniform—At Army Pay

By Ben W. Gilbert
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday announced plans to ask Congress for a potent new strikebreaking weapon—power to draft men up to 65 years of age for noncombat military duty, as many United Mine Worker locals voted to defy the United Mine Workers' Policy Committee and continue striking.

Remarking that it was "a good thing" that the miners decided to end their strike, the President announced his plan for dealing with wartime work stoppages as follows:

"As the Selective Service Act does not authorize the induction of men above 45 years into the armed services, I intend to request the Congress to raise the age-limit for noncombatant military service so that if at any time in the future, there should be a threat of interruption of work in plants, mines, or establishments owned by the Government or taken possession of by the Government, the machinery will be available for prompt action."

Return to Mines is Slow

The back-to-work movement—ordered Tuesday night—proceeded slowly, partly because insufficient time existed to get the word out to all locals.

Fourteen locals in the Johnstown-Altoona (Pa.) district, with about 1500 members, voted overwhelmingly against returning to work. Nine locals in the State have balloted to resume mining.

In Uniontown, one local voted to stay out and threatened to picket the mine of another local which voted to work.

Mr. Roosevelt unequivocally denounced the calling of the mine strikes as "intolerable—and has rightly stirred up the anger and disapproval of the overwhelming mass of the American people."

"Aside from United Mine Workers coal mining, the making of war munitions and supplies has gone ahead extremely well," the President said. "Aside from United Mine Workers coal mining, the no-strike pledge by organized labor has been well kept, the few small unauthorized strikes which have occurred have affected only a very small fraction of 1 per cent of production."

May Mean Strike Bill Veto

President Roosevelt revealed that he had planned to use existing Selective Service machinery to induct into the armed services all miners to break the mine strike.

It was assumed that the President wanted the additional authority to be able to deal with future strikes in Government-held plants by inducting all striking workers

New Assembly Line To Double Output Of P-38 Lightnings

Burbank, Calif., June 23 (AP).—Lockheed Aircraft Corp. placed in operation today a new continuously moving assembly line which within 60 days will an official said, double the daily output of P-38 Lightning fighters which have been scoring slashing victories on the battle fronts.

"The new line will not only double the output of Lightnings, but also will result in a 40 per cent reduction in man hours per plane," declared Richard A. Von Hake, Lockheed vice president.

The extra manufacturing speed is gained by eliminating pauses in the conveyor line, Van Hake said. The motion is slow, but steady, a continuous 4 inches per minute. He added that similar continuously moving lines will be set up within 60 days for several subassemblies.

Tenseness Aboard Transport Breeds Strange Crop of Rumors

Writing from England, where he has just arrived on an assignment as a war correspondent for The Washington Post, John Steinbeck continues his description of life aboard a crowded troop transport.

By John Steinbeck

Somewhere in England, June 23.—A troopship is a strange community and it reacts as a community. It is unique, however, in that it is cut off from all the world and that it is in constant danger of being attacked and destroyed. No matter how casual the men seem, that last fact is never very far from their minds. In the water any place may be the submarine and at any moment may come the blast that sends the great ship to the bottom.

Thus the gunners never relax, the listening devices are tense and occupied. Half the mind listens and waits all the time and in the night small sounds take on a large importance. At intervals the guns are fired to see that they are in perfect condition. The gunnery officer never relaxes. On the bridge the captain sleeps very rarely and takes his coffee in his hand.

Brain Reacts Curiously

Under such a strain the human brain reacts curiously. It builds its apprehensions into realities and then repeats those realities. Thus a troopship is a nest of rumors, rumors that go whisking from stem to stern, but the most curious thing is that on all troopships the rumors are the same. Some generalized picture takes shape in all of them. The story starts and is repeated, and every one except perhaps the permanent crew, believes each rumor for a few hours before a new one takes its place. It might be well to set down some of these rumors so that when heard they will be recognized for what they are, the folklore of a troopship.

Rumors on Troopships

The following are heard on every troopship, without exception; further, they are believed on every troopship:

1. This morning we were sighted by a submarine. It could not catch us, but it radioed its fellows and now a pack is assembling ahead to intercept us and sink us. This rumor is supposed to come from the radio officer, who heard the submarine calling its brothers. The pack will close in on us tonight. All of these rumors are said to come from a responsible officer.

2. This morning a submarine surfaced, not knowing we were near. We had every gun trained

Italian Immigrant's Son Wins Highest Medal; Killed 38 Japs

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Marine Platoon Sergt. "Manila John" Basilone, son of an Italian-born tailor of Raritan, N. J., has received the Congressional Medal of Honor for "extraordinary heroism" in action against the Japs on Guadalcanal, the Navy announced last night.

The 26-year-old Marine is officially credited with "playing a major part in the virtual annihilation of an entire Japanese regiment" in the Lunga Point area of the Solomons Island, October 24-25.

His fighting spirit did much to stop the savage Nipponese charges during that crucial battle for Guadalcanal airfield, reports make evident.

Telling of the combat record of the dark-haired immigrant's son yesterday, the Navy said Basilone was in charge of two heavy machine-gun sections of the First Battalion, Seventh Marines, First Division.

One of the sections was knocked out of action by fierce frontal attacks, leaving the American positions exposed. Moving an extra machine gun into position, Basilone operated it and a pistol, holding off Japs until reinforcements arrived.

Time and again the Japs tried to storm his position, but he mowed them down until there were 38 bodies piled up around his emplacement. According to another Marine present during the battle, "Manila John" finally had to move his position because the heaps of dead Japs blocked his line of fire.

"Basilone had a machine gun on the go three days and nights with-

Prosecution Rests

Husband of Vice Defendant Defends Her Against Charges

The government rested its case yesterday in the prosecution of Mrs. Carmen Beach Martin on a charge of violation of the White Slave Act, and a defense plea to throw the case out of court was overruled.

The defendant's husband, Charles Earl Martin, a chief pharmacist in the United States Navy, brought to the stand by Harry T. Whelan, defense attorney, after the government closed its case, denied to a District Court jury that his wife had used their apartment in the 1300 block of Fifteenth Street Northwest to operate a call house for prostitutes.

The prosecution charges in four indictments under the Mann Act, that Mrs. Martin had secured the services of girls of Spanish extraction and had catered especially to Washington's South American colony. Judge Matthew McGuire ruled that a showing of transportation within the District for immoral purposes would constitute violation of the act.

The testimony of admitted prostitutes and others, associated with the dancer and costume designer, attracted eager spectators who packed the small courtroom yesterday morning. But crowds continued to come, milling around outside the door and impatiently awaiting their turn to hear sordid accounts. Like an usher in a motion picture house, the vigilant guard at the door admitted visitors as seats were vacated by leaving spectators.

Martin, a robust, ruddy-faced man dressed in summer uniform, said he had married the woman in December of 1942 but had lived with her intermittently since 1938. He said his wife's income was from

French Setup Still Plagued By Rivalries

By Daniel De Luce
Associated Press Staff Writer

Algiers, June 23.—Vexatious rivalries began today to plague the new permanent military committee, just created in an effort to unify French military power, and a new struggle between Gens. Henri Giraud and Charles De Gaulle was in prospect on the issue of recruiting troops.

With the French armies of liberation divided in allegiance between two commanders in chief, Giraud and De Gaulle, Giraudists indicated that they would demand that recruiting be on the teritorial basis, this preventing the Fighting French organization from taking manpower in this area.

The De Gaullists complained that "a freeze-out" was being worked against them and also that men escaping from France were now being brought into Giraud's North African army, despite their wish to serve under De Gaulle.

Complain of Freeze-Out

One Girudist called "a very miserable solution" the compromise which had left Giraud in command of troops in north and west Africa and De Gaulle in command in other empire territories.

"We had thought," he added, "to unify the army first—for that's most vital in wartime—and that unity in other fields would naturally follow. Now, we have a form of political unity but no unified army."

It seemed likely that Giraud's forces would go on having first call on American arms being sent here.

Military Missions

Both French factions wondered aloud how the new military committee might decide the question of military missions to foreign powers. Would there be separate missions representing Giraud and De Gaulle, or would the two leaders on this point, at least, trust their case to joint representatives?

During the day, the joint commission for political prisoners and refugees, headed by the United States and British consul generals here, announced the liberation of all who were in concentration camps and labor companies or confined to specified residential areas before the Allied landing last November.

It also was announced that about 200 political prisoners, most of them Sanish Republican refugees convicted of disorders, would be freed.

U. S. Sub Sinks Jap Undersea Ship; Commander Cited

Destruction of a Japanese submarine by torpedo fire from an American submarine on war patrol in the Pacific was disclosed by the Navy yesterday in announcement of a decoration for the commanding officer of the American vessel.

The officer, who received the Silver Star Medal, was Lieut. Comdr. Marvin G. Kennedy, 37, of Henrietta, Mo., whose wife, Mrs. Lorene L. Kennedy, lives at Vallejo, Calif.

The citation said the Japanese submarine was sunk despite adverse conditions due to poor visibility and rain squalls when Kennedy sighted it on the surface "close aboard." He quickly swung his own undersea raider in a striking position, the Navy said, "launched a daring attack at 800 yards," and destroyed the enemy submarine by torpedo fire while Japanese personnel were still on the bridge.

"This same fighting spirit and skillful seamanship enabled him to attack and sink a Japanese freighter of 5644 tons," the citation said.

There have been few other instances in which submarines have successfully attacked other submarines.

War Sidelights

Battle Lull Near Its End, Berlin Says

London, June 23 (AP).—The Berlin radio said tonight there were "increasing signs that the lull in the Mediterranean region shortly will come to an end," and that German military quarters were "following developments there with great attention."

"Military quarters here," said the Berlin transocean broadcast, "content themselves with the assurance that German troops naturally are standing shoulder to shoulder with the Italians in readiness to ward off an enemy attack."

Transocean also broadcast Ankara reports that British military authorities had established a special zone along the Syrian-Turkish border. In Lebanon, the Germans said, British military authorities had arrested almost 1000 Arabs, combing every village for "persons deemed suspect or unreliable."

The Rome radio announced, meanwhile, that Premier Mussolini had appointed new Fascist secretaries to 17 centers in Italy, Sicily and Sardinia in a shakeup presumably designed to bolster morale in areas being shaken by the sledge-hammer Allied aerial blows.

Among the centers are industrial areas and ports which have staggered under recent Allied air pounding.

Munitions Increased

Gunner's Buckle Stops Fragment; It's 'Fancy' Now

A United States Bomber Station in England, June 23 (AP).—Sergt. Benjamin (Gabby) Kaplan, 30, of Camden, N. J., waist gunner on the Flying Fortress Lady Luck, wore a nonregulation belt with a big, fancy buckle when his bomber raided France recently.

The buckle now is Kaplan's most treasured possession.

"Right in the middle of a heated argument with a flock of Jerries I felt something hit me," Kaplan related. "I was pretty busy at the time and didn't think any more about it until I removed my flying suit after we got back.

"A shell fragment fell out of my clothes. It had ripped through my life jacket and torn the hooks off my parachute. The belt buckle was badly bent, but it had stopped the fragment. The dollar I spent on that buckle was the best investment I ever made."

Reds Pierce German Lines In Two Areas

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), June 24.—Russian reconnaissance units, feeling out the strangely quiet enemy, broke through German lines in two areas Wednesday to attack and take prisoners, the Soviet Information Bureau midnight communique said today.

On the Central Front west of Moscow, after a preliminary softening by massed Russian artillery, a patrol broke into the German trenches, the communique said. In the engagement which followed more than 100 Germans were killed and prisoners were taken.

On the Northwestern Front the Red army soldiers penetrated German lines and in their rear organized a road ambush. When a German detachment approached the Russians shot and bayoneted 15, returning to their own lines with prisoners.

The Leningrad sector continued to feel the weight of new air activity. The Moscow radio, recorded by the Soviet monitor, said Soviet bombers made "strong and devastating" attacks on the railway junction at Pskov, 175 miles to the southwest of the Baltic seaport last night. Other attacks were made on German airdromes.

An earlier Russian communique said 20 German planes were destroyed on the ground behind the German lines near Leningrad. In the same area 17 German planes were shot down from formations attempting to attack, while the Russians lost nine planes, it said.

Another skirmish which cost the Germans over 200 dead was reported west of Belgorod, which is north of Kharkov.

New Nazi Terror Reported in Poland As Hundreds Die

London, June 23 (AP).—Sources of the Polish government-in-exile reported today another outbreak of German terror in Poland and declared more than 500 men and women on the Nazi blacklist had been shot in recent weeks and at least 2000 others whose fate was unknown had been arrested.

The Gestapo sweep covered a wide area but centered at Warsaw where 1800 persons, mostly from among the intelligentsia, were rounded up in a house-to-house manhunt, Poles said.

The male populations of the villages of Gedzice and Tursk were virtually exterminated, the report said.

U. S. Fliers Hit Jap Cruiser At Macassar

By the Associated Press

Allied Headquarters in Australia (Thursday), June 24.—In what was believed to be the second longest raid of the entire war for land-based bombers, a heavy force of Liberators smashed at Macassar, Dutch Celebes, for the first time yesterday, heavily damaging a Japanese cruiser.

The bombers, manned by Americans, flew 2000 miles to carry out a devastating attack. It was the largest force of bombers to be sent against Celebes.

They carried over 38 tons of incendiaries and high explosives, among them 2000-pounders.

The cruiser was moored at the dock. It was enveloped in smoke from direct hits. A cargo ship in the harbor also was struck.

A spokesman for Gen. Douglas MacArthur said:

"According to our records this is the second longest raid of the war from land-based bombers, exceeded only by a Liberator raid from Hawaii to Wake, which was 400 miles farther."

A single intercepting enemy fighter was seen to crash—whether deliberately or not—into the wing of one Liberator, which was lost.

The Liberators took off from an Australian base and timed their attack to reach Macassar about noon.

Some of the fires they started at the Juliana and Wilhelmina wharves were so towering that they could be seen 70 miles away.

For the third straight day, Japanese jungle troops attacked Australian positions on Lababia Ridge on the trial between Salamaua and Mubo, New Guinea, retreating with 64 of the attackers dead or seriously wounded.

The Allied forces were so well entrenched that they suffered only three wounded.

U. S. Planes Help Chinese in Attack on 3 Towns

By the Associated Press

Chungking, June 23.—United States Mitchell bombers and Warhawk fighters supported Chinese troops on the Tungting Lake-Yangtze River front Monday, heavily bombing and strafing Japanese bases and shipping at three places, Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

One huge fire was left burning and many direct hits were noted among warehouses at Hwajung, north of the lake, the communique said, and extensive damage done to supply depots and casualties caused among troop concentrations at Shihlhow. Near Takingyi a gunboat and river tug were strafed with results not completely observed, the communique added.

Airmen said, however, that they believed two steamers were sunk and a gunboat damaged in the attack on shipping. All planes returned.

Recapture of the towns that were attacked would restore virtually all the Tungting rice area to the Chinese.

Today's Chinese communique told of a Chinese attack last week on the Yangtze port of Shihihow, north of Tungting Lake, in which six Japanese motor launches were sunk and many casualties inflicted.

New Delhi, June 23 (AP).—Liberator bombers of the Tenth United States Air Force pounded Japanese-held Monywa in central Burma with 8 tons of bombs yesterday, a communique said today.

On the previous day Mitchell medium bombers were reported to have flown through severe storms to attack engine sheds at Thazi junction.

WHAT HAPPENED TO FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

AFTER SEVEN WEEKS of intensive work, laboratory researchers have discovered the reason why certain batches of Fletcher's Castoria caused nausea.

Methods of preventing a recurrence of the trouble are now known and manufacture is being resumed. No Fletcher's Castoria has been made during this seven-week period, and at its beginning the makers issued a nation-wide warning to consumers and retailers not to use or sell the product and to return all stocks for destruction.

The U. S. Food and Drug Administration has been kept informed of all these developments.

Q. What caused the trouble?

A. The sugar content of Fletcher's Castoria was reduced to conserve sugar under wartime conditions. A year ago, Castoria was made with this reduced sugar content and was up to standard in every respect. This year, in March, we again started production with reduced sugar. However, at that time a chemical change—harmless in itself—occured in the characteristics of the water used in making Castoria. But this change, in combination with the reduced sugar, increased the degree and rate of normal fermentation. The more rapid fermentation retarded normal re-oxidation during the ageing process, resulting in a product which caused nausea.

Q. Why didn't normal tests show that something was wrong?

A. The changes which occurred were so elusive that they could not be detected by the regular testing procedures—procedures which had kept Castoria a respected product for more than seventy-five years. In fact, even after the nauseating effect was discovered in actual use, it took weeks of laboratory research to identify the factors that were causing the trouble.

Q. What are the makers doing to prevent a recurrence of the trouble?

A. Now that the cause is known, procedures have been put in effect which will assure normal re-oxidation of the product. Additional safeguards have been set up. New laboratory controls have been installed. New biological and chemical tests will be applied to every batch of Fletcher's Castoria. Each bottle will be stamped with a plainly visible control number, in verification of these tests.

Q. Is Fletcher's Castoria now on sale?

A. No. Manufacture has been resumed, but because of the time required for manufacture and distribution it may be about two months before Castoria will again be on sale at your retailer's. When it is, you will be notified in your local newspaper.

Q. Will the package be the same?

A. No. The Fletcher's Castoria now being made will bear a distinctive green band. This green band is for your protection in case any old Castoria has not been returned.

Radar Output Retarded by Mica Flow

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

Charges that domestic production of mica—material essential to the manufacture of radar equipment, the country's magical secret war weapon—was retarded by an agent company of Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones' Metals Reserve Co., were aired yesterday before the Senate War Investigating Committee.

The committee was told at the same time that the agent concern, through "carelessness," ordered the destruction of considerable quantities of mica suitable for strategic uses.

According to testimony given the committee of Senator Truman (Democrat) of Missouri, Metals Reserve supplied funds necessary for operations of the Colonial Mica Corporation which was given a monopoly in purchase of domestic mica and in buying of equipment to permit American producers to expand output.

Business Went South

One of the results of the corporation's monopoly, declared R. B. Ladoo, former official of the War Production Board and of Colonial Mica, was assignment of a lucrative business to firms in which the company's Southern agent was interested.

Testimony developed the firms with which the agent, B. C. Burgess, had a connection, did a large business in Southern States, and the committee was told that Colonial Mica "ignored" or showed a marked lack of interest in companies producing mica in New England, South Dakota and New Mexico.

Quality Questioned

To these charges was added the accusation by Ladoo that George Purcell, vice president and actual manager of Colonial Mica, "simply didn't believe" findings of Bell Telephone Co. laboratories that stained domestic mica, customarily given low ratings by the industry, was found to have the highest strategic value and to be suitable for use in condensers needed by the hundreds of thousands in planes, warships and tanks.

Mica for years has been graded by the industry in accordance with its translucence and other qualities discernible by sight. The clearest and best mica, by these standards was produced in India whence the vital war material was brought to the United States by airplane.

Testing Explained

John Townsend and K. G. Coutlee, Bell Telephone experts, produced for the committee newly developed apparatus for testing the electric resistance of mica and conducted demonstrations which, they said, showed mica now classed as nonstrategic because of discolorations, is suitable for 50 per cent of the strategic uses of the mineral.

Ladoo asserted that by use of off-color mica, American production for strategic purposes might be increased from 50 to 200 per cent.

"Mica is an essential element for which there is no substitute," Ray Ellis, chief of the WPB radio and ridar division, declared to the committee. (Radar, America's No. 1 secret war weapon, is the device used in detection of enemy submarines and airplanes.)

A total of 150 million condensers, all of which use mica, are scheduled to be produced in the balance of this year, Ellis said, while in 1944 production is to be increased by one-third.

Deneen Testifies

W. F. Deneen, president of the Feldspar Producing Co., Irwin, Tenn., told the committee he bought from Colonial Mica 64 tons of mica as scrap, with a stipulation the mica was to be ground up, a form in which it is used in paints, and that none of it was to be sold as strategic mica.

Nevertheless, Deneen stated, he found 20 tons of the material was in sheet form and of this amount fully 5 per cent was of strategic quality.

Ladoo disclosed to the committee Purcell formerly was vice president and principal stockholder in the Colonial Mica Co. of New Jersey. This firm was dissolved, Ladoo related, and a new company organized under name of Colonial Mica Corp., and supplied with Metals Reserve funds.

Way Is Cleared For Congress Accord On Deficiency Bill

By the Associated Press

Senate conferees acceded today to House demands for the discharge of three Government officials accused by a House committee of membership in subversive organizations.

The men involved are Dr. Robert Morss Lovett, secretary to the Virgin Islands government, and Goodwin B. Watson and William E. Dodd, jr., employes of the Federal Communications Commission.

Approval of the House refusal to provide funds for the men's salaries cleared the way to a conference committee agreement on a 143 million dollar deficiency appropriation. The House by voice vote adopted the conference report shortly afterward. The Senate had yet to act.

Senators Clark (Democrat) of Missouri, LaFollette (Progressive) of Wisconsin and Hill (Democrat) of Alabama asserted they would vote against the conference report, but said they did not know of any plans for a major fight.

Clark reiterated charges previously made on the Senate floor that the Kerr Appropriations subcommittee of the House condemned the three men on the basis of "star chamber proceedings."

The conference report wiped out a House amendment restricting President Roosevelt's use of war emergency funds to supplement the financing of controversial agencies, including the National Resources Planning Board and the Farm Security Administration.

Meanwhile, completing work on a $1,086,059,499 Labor-Federal Security appropriations bill, a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee voted yesterday to recommend elimination of a House amendment liquidating the National Youth Administration (NYA).

Senator Lodge (Republican) of Massachusetts, a member, said the subcommittee also restored to the bill an appropriation of aproximately 58 million dollars, denied by the House, for NYA's youth and student training for industry service under the War Manpower Commission.

The subcommittee, whose 6 to 5 action is subject to review by the full committee today, also voted to eliminate from the bill House provision designed to prevent the National Labor Relations Board from giving a decision in its case against the Kaiser shipyards at Portland, Oreg.

The subcommmittee, Lodge said, voted to restore five million dollars of a House cut of $10,027,000 in War Manpower Commission Employment Service Funds, and added $300,000 to total House allowances for NLRB.

The way was cleared yesterday for final congressional action on the $1,102,000,000 Treasury-Postoffice Department supply bill when Senate and House conferees compromised their differences over free mail and silver.

The conference report, to be submitted to the House today, calls for abandonment of a House amendment prohibiting the use of any funds in the Treasury appropriation for the purchase of silver.

This action followed Senate passage last week of a bill by Senator Green (Democrat) of Rhode Island under which Treasury silver will be made available to manufacturers at 71.11 cents an ounce.

The House conferees also receded from an amendment to deprive Government departments and bureaus of their free mailing privileges. They substituted instead an amendment directing the Joint Committee on Reduction in Nonessential Federal Expenditures (Byrd Committee) to investigate the cost of such mail and report with recommendations no later than next January 1.

President Accepts Page Resignation; New Job Provided

President Roosevelt has accepted the resignation of John C. Page as commissioner of the Interior Department's Reclamation Bureau.

Page wrote the President June 12 he was submitting his resignation because of ill health and wished it to become effective whenever Mr. Roosevelt and Interior Secretary Ickes desired.

In a letter of reply the Chief Executive disclosed that Ickes had persuaded Page to remain in Government service in the capacity of a consulting engineer and said he was glad the Government "will continue to have the benefit of your extensive knowledge of the problems of the West in land and water utilization."

Buenos Aires Paper Penalized For Its Anti-Nazi Editorial

By the Associated Press

Montevideo, June 23.—The Argentine government of Gen. Pedro Ramirez has penalized the English-language newspaper Buenos Aires Standard with a 24-hour suspension for an anti-Nazi editorial published four months ago, it was reported here today.

The penalty was threatened originally during the regime of President Ramon S. Castillo because of an article on February 20 branding Goebbels and other Nazis leaders as traitors to the German people.

The Foreign Ministry, then headed by Enrique Ruiz Guinazu, invoked the measure, declaring the editorial violated the state of siege by referring in hostile terms to a government with which Argentina maintained friendly relations. The Standard escaped the penalty then by promising not to repeat the offense.

On Monday, however, the newspaper was advised by police authorities that it would be suspended one day on the old count.

Canada Holds Raw Materials, Sabath Avers

By the Associated Press

Canada was accused yesterday by a member of Congress of drawing on the United States for manufactured products while saving its own raw materials for use after the war.

The accusation was made by Chairman Sabath (Democrat) of Illinois of the House Rules Committee during its consideration of a resolution calling for an investigation of material priorities granted by the United States to the Shipshaw Aluminum project in Canada.

Representative Coffee (Democrat) of Washington said Canada had placed an embargo on peeler logs needed in manufacture of plywood in the Pacific Northwest.

"We can't get peeler logs from Canada because of the embargo," Coffee said, "at a time when we are sending our peeler logs to all parts of the world."

Coffee introduced the resolution for the investigation. He was asked by the committee to rewrite it to have the investigation cover also the granting of priorities for other materials to foreign nations while they were denied American business men.

The investigation also would deal with the financing of the Shipshaw project. Coffee said the Defense Plant Corporation, a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, had made a contract advancing 68 million for the Shipshaw project, to be repaid in aluminum to be delivered to this Government at 15 cents a pound for domestic use and 17 cents a pound for Lend-Lease use.

It called for 1,370,000 pounds of aluminum to be delivered at the end of 1945, he said, adding the price was the same as charged by the international cartel before the war, and that it cost $7 a pound to manufacture the metal.

Representative Fish (Republican) of New York, member of the committee, said that after the war Canada will be able to "pour" aluminum into the United States at a cheap price, and "destroy" the aluminum industry in this country.

Beach Vacationers Warned on Cameras

Baltimore, June 23 (AP).—Vacationers bound for the beaches this summer can save themselves an extra burden—and perhaps some embarrassment—by leaving their camera and binoculars at home, Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord said today.

The commanding general of the Third Service Command reminded the public that Eastern Defense Command proclamations forbid taking of pictures or use of binoculars in restricted areas along the Atlantic seacoast, including most ocean beaches from Maine to Florida.

Newspaper Guild Urges Restoration of Funds for OWI's Domestic Branch

Attacked in the House by Representative Taber (Republican) of New York, as "an utterly lawless, irresponsible outfit which is doing us no good abroad or at home," the Office of War Information drew the support yesterday of the American Newspaper Guild.

Guild President Milton Murray wrote Acting Chairman McKellar (Democrat) of Tennessee, of the Senate Appropriations Committee urging restoration to the $2,800,000,000 war agencies bill of $5,500,000 to finance OWI's domestic operations for the next fiscal year.

The House had struck out the funds. It left $28,972,000 in the bill to finance OWI's foreign propaganda activites but Taber told his colleagues the agency had made a $400,000 expenditure in this field which was not authorized by law.

He said he was informed that OWI had spent this amount on a contract with Short Wave Research, Inc. This organization, he said, was formed "by a group of people most of whom are on the preferred list" of the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities.

In his letter to McKellar, Murray said the Newspaper Guild believes the OWI "is an essential war agency doing a vital war job."

"We believe that the American people are entitled to get as much information as it is possible for them to get." Murray's letter said. "We believe that now, more than ever—in this critical summer of 1943—a strong Office of War Information is imperative to help the reporters get out the facts to the American people—to help get the news of developments at home and abroad to all Americans. We believe that the OWI has been of great service to the Naiton in helping to obtain information about the war, in helping to eliminate confusion, and in helping to get the facts."

In another communication, the executive committee of the Washington Newspaper Guild supported Murray's stand. The committee said that small Washington news bureaus and correspondents "would find it extremely difficult to get all war news without such a central source."

Half-Billion Rollback Top Is Proposed

had "reluctantly" accepted the present limited rollback, said he had collaborated with other ranking committee members on an amendment to stop the program short.

Wolcott insisted the Administration has adequate authority to "hold prices where they are" by maximum price ceilings without a rollback. Said Wolcott: "If we approve limited subsidies, the camel's nose will be under the tent and we never will be able to stop them."

Consumers Organize

"The Congressional Committee for the Protection of Consumers," first organized consumers' bloc in Congress, meanwhile opened a drive to erase the long record of House antisubsidy action. Some 50 House city members have joined the bloc's fight to maintain the Administration's price control structure.

Five leaders of the group, headed by Representative Thomas E. Scanlon (Democrat) of Pennsylvania, yesterday called on War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes to proffer their aid in his price fight.

Tomorrow in the House Caucus Room the committee will sponsor a convention of consumers' groups from all over the Nation, called to stress the inflationary impact of runaway prices on all fixed income consumers. Mayor LaGuardia of New York will be one of the consumers.

Demands Statement by Davis

Scanlon yesterday addressed a letter to War Food Administrator Chester Davis demanding a statement to the committee on the alleged butter shortage and meat famine. Scanlon said WFA purchase of 100 million pounds of butter at the time the butter subsidy went into effect prevented creameries from taking a loss on butter on hand. He said at least one butter company has told dairy farmers that OPA's nickle a pound subsidy would mean lower prices to them, when as a matter of fact prices are not rolled back to the farmer. He asked Davis to say, first, whether there was a butter shortage, and if so, whether he will release WFA-held butter to relieve the consumer.

Scanlon's letter said the meat subsidy likewise is being blamed for the failure of ranch men to market livestock, adding: "You know that the very purpose of this subsidy was to cut the excessive cost of meat to the consumer without affecting the price or profit paid the rancher, the slaughterer, the packer, or the retailer. . . . The question is—are you going to continue to help spread the packer's propaganda, or are you going to do your job of getting meat to the consumer?"

On Three Commodities

As presented to the Senate yesterday by Senators Taft and Bankhead (Democrat) of Alabama the Senate Banking Committee's $500,000,000 ceiling on RFC borrowings for subsidies would permit the Government to continue the set-back on coffee, meat and butter prices for a year, or use the amount for other consumer subsidies in lieu of these. The Commodity Credit Corporation would be allowed another $175,000,000 for its subsidized purchase of products to promote production. No limit would be placed on war transportation subsidies or on subsidized production of strategic materials for Government use.

"I am more anxious for Congress to approve some policy as to subsidies, than I am anxious to pass any particular policy," Taft told the Senate.

The committee's plan for limited extension of the present roll back immediately ran into bipartisan Senate fire. Senator Clark (Democrat) of Missouri offered his amendment to repeal price act authority for subsidies, while Senators Aiken (Republican) of New York and Gillette (Democrat) of Iowa introduced another to prevent any price roll without specific authority from Congress.

Roosevelt to Ask Draft-Age Increase to 65 as Strike-Breaking Weapon

enmasse, and then sending them back to their jobs in uniforms, under military discipline, and at $50 a month private's pay. A similar device was used in France before the last war to break a nation-wide railroad strike.

Congressional sources generally interpreted the President's statement as indicating he intends to veto the Connally-Smith bill. Some stated privately that an effort would be made to pass the bill over his veto, although Senator Connally (Democrat) of Texas, author of the bill, would not comment on that aspect.

Earlier, Connally had sent a message to the President asking him to sign the bill "in the national interest."

Comment indicated that congressional consideration of the measure would provoke a sharp controversy.

Senator Johnson (Democrat) of armed forces is a position of honor Colorado, a member of the Military Affairs Committee, declared:

"The Army is not a penitentiary. I don't think much of that suggestion as a way to settle the coal dispute."

Senator Byrd (Democrat) of Virginia, approved the proposal, but said he thought the President should sign the Connally-Smith bill anyway.

Representative Smith (Democrat) of Virginia, sponsor of the anti-strike measure in the House, voiced objections to the President's proposal, stating "Membership in the and distinction. To use it as punishment for unpatriotic strikers is to convert the Army into a penal institution and would be an affront to our boys who are engaged on the battlefields.

"A better solution would be to cooperate with the Congress in the enactment of adequate antistrike legislation."

The President issued his statement 24 hours after President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers called the strike off, ordering the miners back to work until October 31, on condition that Government operation of the mines continue.

President Roosevelt made it clear that he was not taking any official notice of Lewis' condition or deadline in the following paragraph:

"The mines for the time being, of course, will continue to be operated by the Secretary of Interior under the executive order of May 1. The terms and conditions of employment will be those announced by the War Labor Board in its directive of June 18. There has been no promise or commitments by the Government to change those terms and conditions in any way."

R. L. Ireland, jr., and former Senator Edward R. Burke, spokesman for the coal operators, issued a joint statement praising the President's stand as "constructive." Earlier, the operators had complained to the War Labor Board that Lewis' return-to-work terms "punished" the operators and "rewarded" Lewis by keeping the mines in Government hands.

"It is to be noted," Ireland and Burke commented, "that the President emphasizes that the miners are returning to work under the terms and conditions of the June 18 directive. We take this to mean that an agreement is to be signed by the parties on the basis of the directive, following which the mines are to be returned to their proper ownership and operation.

"We do not believe that the President will countenance the continued punishment of the operators by withholding from them the possession of their mines because John L. Lewis chooses to defy the United States Government."

It was learned that the operators conveyed similar sentiments to the President in the hope that he would provide assurances that they would not suffer financially as a result of Government operation of the pits.

The draft power was viewed as ample to deal with the threat of another coal strike—either on October 31, or earlier if the Government should decide to return the mines to their owners before that time.

A heated discussion of Lewis' strike-ending terms was understood to have occurred in the meeting of the War Labor Board yesterday with Public Member Wayne L. Morse, compliance officer, contending that they constituted a challenge to the Government which the Government could not ignore. Chairman William H. Davis sharply disagreed.

But with the miners going back, the Government eased controls over soft coal distribution and steel companies trimmed planned curtailments in operations.

Secretary of Interior Ickes, the Federal Fuel Administrator, lifted his order "freezing" all coal in railroad transit. Issued Monday, this order forbade coal deliveries to any consumer having in excess of 10 days supply and was aimed at assuring that war industries with the greatest need received available coal.

Ickes kept in effect controls placed on distribution of hard coal and officials said a permanent program was being worked out.

The United States Steel Corp., which had announced it would shut down seven blast furnaces in the Pittsburgh area today, closed only five. Officials said they might be able to avoid the shutdown of 13 more which, it was previously indicated, would have to be closed tomorrow.

Iron Age, trade publication, estimated an overall loss of 30,000 tons of steel would result from the strike.

Kosher Bakeries To Confer Friday On Delivery Ruling

All kosher bakeries in the District of Columbia will be represented in a conference Friday morning with local Office of Defense Transportation, it was announced by William J. Tobin, ODT director late yesterday.

Regulations and restrictions of deliveries will be discussed and decided upon at the conference.

Restrictions to be enforced will be similar to rulings on bakery deliveries in other sections of the Eastern gasoline shortage area, Tobin explained.

The ODT on May 24 restricted all wholesale and retail deliveries, forbidding all Sunday deliveries except ice, fresh milk and cream.

The maximum weekly number of wholesale bread and perishable bakery product deliveries was set at six in the original order, which also provides for three retail deliveries in the District.

Pardon us for pointing—but are those dew-drops on your brow? No wonder. That stuffy suit you're wearing is hot as the inside of an Army tank. Just step over here—get your shoulders under a shower-cool Bond Sudan Weave. Ah! What a relief! You didn't know there was a breeze blowing, eh? Well you do now, with Sudan's thousands of "open windows" steering it straight at you. And when you get home tonight, look in the mirror. Yes, those smoothly pressed lines are still there—just as they came from the tailor's iron. A neat trick for which Bond's superb needlework and Sudan's fine worsted yarns are famous. Notice we said "worsted." There's not a thread of cotton to harbor a wrinkle. Right now, we've plenty of dark Sudans for business—lighter tones for more leisurely pursuits. And all just 19.50! So what are you waiting for?

Troops Guard Ford Output For Four Hours

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 23.—After keeping a watch over production for more than four hours, Federal troops were withdrawn tonight from the aircraft division of the Ford Motor Co.'s Rouge plant where they had been stationed as a precautionary measure.

A company spokesman said the troops had not been requested, but were moved in "after certain disturbances had occurred in the plant and in anticipation of further disturbances."

Brig. Gen. William E. Guthner, commanding Army troops brought here Monday night to halt bitter race rioting in which 29 were killed said that only a platoon of troops was sent to the Rouge plant, and "only for security."

There had been no outbreaks of violence, General Guthner said adding that the men were called as a result of a walkout of foremen.

1500 Face Riot Charge

Meantime, mass prosecution of 500 misdemeanor and felony cases proceeded as Gov. Harry F. Kelly and Mayor Edward J. Jeffries announced they planned to hunt out the "real inciters and assaulters" of Monday's bitter race rioting which took a toll of 29 dead and more than 700 injured.

Ninety-day sentences were meted out by Judge John P. Scallen to the first of the defendants—both Negro and white—in Recorder's Court, bringing from Judge Scallen the comment that "this court makes no distinction of color."

Governor Kelly pointed out, however, that "the scores of cases being taken to court today are no criterion," adding that those were persons who played only minor parts in the disturbances.

Only Minor Disturbances

Meanwhile, peace prevailed under the direction of 3800 United States Army troops and only relatively minor disturbances had been reported since the soldiers moved in Monday midnight.

Taverns and bars remained closed and a ban on sale of liquor had not been lifted, but restriction on public assembly was eased sufficiently to permit an American League baseball double-header to be played by the Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians. A force of some 400 troops was scattered through the stands.

Horse racing, canceled yesterday, was resumed at the State Fair Grounds racetrack as soldiers patrolled the grounds.

A 10 p. m. general curfew continued in effect tonight.

929 Still in Custody

General Guthner said soldiers would remain on duty at least until the end of the week.

Of the more than 1300 persons arrested since the first outbreak of violence Sunday night, 929 remained in custody when court sessions opened today, said Paul H. Wencel, chief of city detectives. Of those, 22 were women, and approximately 85 per cent Negroes.

War plant absenteeism today had been reduced to about 9 per cent in plants of the Detroit metropolitan area.

Temblors Shake Istanbul, Paris Says

London, June 23 (AP).—The Paris radio said today that Istanbul, Turkey, was shaken by two earthquakes, one last night and another today.

The Berlin radio reported three shocks yesterday in the Adazapar region of Anatolia where official preliminary reports put the death toll at 285 from an earthquake on Sunday.

May See Stalin

Rickenbacker In Moscow For Stimson

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Jpne 23.—Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker is in Moscow on a mission for Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, it was announced here today, and he may see Premier Joseph Stalin before he continues a tour of world battlefields.

Rickenbacker's arrival here Sunday was first revealed locally yesterday to persons attending a ceremony in the Kremlin, where United States Ambassador William H. Standley presented American military awards to 60 Russian soldiers and sailors.

Also present at yesterday's ceremony was Foreign Commissar Molotov, who in a brief speech marking the second anniversary of Russia's entry into the war stressed the Soviet belief that a second front was essential for a quick victory over Germany. A common Allied offensive, Molotov said, would be the foundation of victory and of postwar cooperation.

There was no indication in the announcement of his arrival as to Rickenbacker's activities. It was assumed that he was to see high-ranking military leaders and public officials.

Rickenbacker was accompanied by his personal physician, Dr. Alexander Dahl, and two representatives of the War Department, Col. William Nickols and Maj. A. B. Sherry. The plane was piloted by Capt. W. F. Richmond and the crew included Copilot Lieut. H. H. Cargle and Navigator W. B. Hicks.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

Inside reports indicate that Nazi propaganda for domestic consumption has suddenly changed direction, and changed sharply. German government officials are now speaking boldly and bluntly to the people, with the idea of shocking them into a realization of the rigors that lie ahead, and to make them work and fight for their lives.

The Diplomatic Corps has received word that the Nazi gauleiter at Hamburg made a speech warning his audience that there is a traditional weakness in the German character, which sometimes fails at the final punch—a lack of perseverance necessary to carry a dogged fight to a successful conclusion.

At the same time it is learned that Goebbels has made a speech in much the same vein.

This is regarded as indicating not only that Germany is in desperate circumstances, but also—somewhat more important—that the military are now in control, and the Nazi Party leaders have climbed down from the top notch of leadership.

Realistic expression is typical of the military attitude which has long been opposed to the political palayer of the Nazi Party leaders.

At the same time Washington officials learn that Nazi Party leaders are making rules intended to defend the party against attack and aspersions. This apparently indicates that the party's being attacked from within the country, obviously by the military elements.

This is the fatal crack in Germany—the split between the military elements and the Nazi Party. When the final blowup comes, though it may not be for a long time, it will be between the Nazis and the military.

Wallace's Manure

Professional photographers would give their eyeteeth for a shot of Henry Wallace, dressed in blue slacks, standing on top of a manure pile.

It is the Vice President's own manure pile, and he is proud of it. He has prepared it himself by mixing vegetable matter and manure, layer by layer, and watering it with the garden hose. The result is something he calls by the more delicate name of "compost pile," and which he dearly needs for fertilizing his victory garden.

At the moment, Wallace was standing on top of the pile so that he could throw some of the manure down to cover the old pea vines. The vines had yielded their crop for the season, and he had torn them up by the roots, and was adding them to the compost pile.

He had to do something about the soil. It was made by dumping fill from excavations, when neighboring houses were built. "The soil is so bad," says Mr. Wallace, "that it won't even grow good weeds."

But it will grow good tomatoes. Wallace has gone strong on tomatoes. In fact, Mrs. Wallace, who gets out every morning to work with him before breakfast, thinks he has too many tomato plants. She counted them the other day, and found there were 480.

Almost any evening around 7, you will find the Vice President of the United States pushing between his rows of tomatoes, while Mrs. Wallace, working with a hoe, flicks a little handkerchief in front of her face to drive the gnats away.

"Henry," she says, "how does it happen the gnats don't trouble you? There's not a one around you, and look at the cloud around me."

"They are sensitive, my dear, to the state of mind of the individual!" says the Vice President, implying that if his wife would be calm about it the gnats would go away.

Weaker Liquor

Though the public is generally unaware of it, much of the whisky being sold today is inferior both in quality and quantity to prewar liquor.

As expressed in the trade, "We have dropped a couple of degrees." This is another way of saying that whisky which used to be 90 proof is now 85. In other words, the distillers are diluting their product to make it go farther.

There are limits to this, for the law provides a minimum of 80 proof for anything marketed as whisky.

Likewise there is a general trend toward retailing whisky in "fifths," or one-fifth of a gallon, instead of quarts.

Distillers' explanation for this is the necessity of making liquor go farther with limited supplies. Reduced supplies are reflected in the fact that 1943 consumption of distilled liquors is falling off sharply from 1942. January of this year showed a drop of 24 per cent from January, 1942. February, March and April were off 17, 12 and 10 per cent respectively.

NOTE: All-time high for any one month in the history of the liquor business was last October, when, just before the new tax went on, the public bought 26 million gallons of distilled spirits.

Grant and Lincoln—1943

On a hot summer day in Washington a conference was held between Lincoln and General Grant. The subject of the conference was the identification of emergency vehicles operating during possible air raids.

General Grant had received complaints from Eastern Seaboard cities to the effect that air-raid regulations are causing an increase in automobile accidents. But before the conference was over Grant agreed with Lincoln that the present regulations should not be changed.

Maj. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant 3d, is Assistant Director of OCD in charge of protection activities. Col. Ralph A. Lincoln is Assistant Civil Affairs Officer on the staff of Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, chief of the Eastern Defense Command.

NOTE: General Grant, with a long record as an Army engineer, supervised the construction of the Memorial Bridge, which crosses the Potomac River between the Lincoln Memorial and the Lee home on the Virginia side.

1000 Foremen Quit Work at Ford's River Rouge Plant

Detroit, June 23 (AP).—Approximately 1000 foremen employed in the Ford Motor Co.'s River Rouge plant walked out this afternoon, a company spokesman reported, in sympathy with some 60 fellow members of the Independent Foremen's Association of America, who were suspended following a strike last week.

Robert Keys, president of the Foremen's Association, said the strike last week was due to discharges of 31 foremen who had posted a "We don't want to strike" notice on a plant bulletin board. The notice, Keys said, referred to a technical question involving a wage category in which he asserted the company had delayed a settlement.

6000 Are Graduated By Public Schools

D. C. Youngsters Close Books After Intensive Study, War-Time Activity

Washington youngsters shut their books for the summer yesterday, closing shop after nine months of intensive study and war-accelerated activity.

More than 6000 students were graduated from local public junior high, high and vocational schools this week, while last of the District's commencements will be held today at Wilson and Miner Teachers' Colleges.

The school year that ended yesterday was high lighted by subscriptions by students of many thousands of dollars in war bonds, purchase of about 400 jeeps for the Army and initiation of the Schools at War, salvage, victory garden and victory canning campaigns.

Varied War Activities

Some students entertained servicemen at nearby USO clubs, while others made model airplanes for the Army and Navy, served as nurses' aides or worked for the Red Cross. Other war activities were coordinated under the High School Victory Corps, initiated through the office of Education at many of the District schools.

District school youngsters have been doing their part to relieve the local manpower shortage, too. During the past year, more than 20,000 working permits have been released to students in the 14-17 age group—2398 in the period between June 1 and 19. Yesterday 167 permits were released to 14 and 15-year-olders, while those in the 16-17 age group received 121.

Under the recently initiated work-while-you-go-to-school program for seniors with business training, 125 boys and girls earned $20,000 since February, working 40,000 hours in local business offices, stores and banks. Each worked a minimum of two class periods each school day in jobs related to their classes, while their progress was supervised by school officials.

Two Programs in Doubt

Meanwhile, the future of at least two school programs is still in doubt. As school officials continue to search records to determine whether cadet corps enlistment may be compulsory next fall, it is anticipated that 40-50 per cent of the District's physical education teachers face immediate Army induction. They had been permitted to complete the past school year, but further deferment is unlikely. Also pending is a request of school officials to the War Department that the latter furnish cadet uniforms at below cost.

As schools closed, machinery for study and curbing of the juvenile delinquency problem in junior high schools had been organized with advisory, consulting and administrative committees formed. The advisory committee, headed by Mrs. Marion Wade Doyle, Board of Education president, will hold its first meeting next Tuesday.

Today's Graduations

Graduations scheduled for today: Dr. Clyde M. Hill, sterling professor and chairman of the Department of Education at Yale University, will address Wilson Teacher College's 65 graduates at exercises in Roosevelt High School, 8:30 p. m. His topic will be "In Spite of Dungeon, Fire and Sword." Robert L. Haycock, acting superintendent of schools, will greet the graduating class, while Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent, will deliver the valedictes et salutate. Diplomas will be presented by Robert A. Maurer, vice president of the Board of Education.

At Armstrong High School at 10:30 a. m., 54 students of Miner Teachers College will receive diplomas from Mrs. Marion Wade Doyle, president of the Board of Education. Dr. D. O. W. Holmes, president of Morgan State College, will deliver the commencement address, while Dr. Ballou will greet the graduates.

Ku Klux Klan Blamed for Detroit Riot

Four labor leaders and a churchman, from New York and Detroit, visited the White House yesterday to ask that President Roosevelt act to prosecute those responsible for the Detroit race riot.

One of the group, Charles Collins, executive secretary of the Negro Labor Victory Committee in New York, said the President also was asked to dissolve the Ku Klux Klan and arrest its leaders. Collins asserted 15,000 klansmen were concentrated in the Detroit area and were responsible for a substantial share of the blame for the race riot through distribution of leaflets and the keeping alive of racial antagonism.

The delegation presented its views to Presidential Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre.

Farm Yield Now Expected To Be Normal

to the price strike among major slaughterers, who protest the OPA ceilings, subsidies and rollbacks.

W. O. Fraser, vice chairman of the War Meat Board, said in Chicago getting supplies of beef for the armed forces remained the board's most difficult problem. He predicted cattle marketing would increase "as soon as the uncertainty concerning the rollback in prices is dispelled.

Meanwhile, Representative Thomas A. Jenkins (Republican) of Ohio, chairman of the Republican congressional food study committee, declared the Nation's bread supply is threatened by ineffective food policies and called upon the OPA to raise the price ceilings on corn.

Corn "Sold as Pork"

He said farmers receive 35 to 40 cents more per bushel on corn they "sell as pork" and urged ceiling revision to remedy the situation, so industrial plants and dairy farmers can receive corn they badly need.

Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange, protested to President Roosevelt against food subsidies and declared a return to the food stamp plan of the thirties would be preferable.

"If this Nation is unwilling to pay the cost of its food bill during these years of record income largely based on Government outgo, how can we ever expect our price structure to become balanced?" he asked in an open letter to the Chief Executive.

House Votes Funds to Continue FSA

crat) of North Carolina, chairman of a committee investigating the FSA, promised he would soon report to the House legislation specifically outlining the type of work FSA would be permitted to undertake in the future.

"This is but a stop-gap measure presented to prevent some worthy projects from being left completely without funds," Tarver said. "The next move is to get proper legislation to limit the agency and chart a direction for it."

Cooley read a letter from Administrator Davis saying R. W. Hudson of the Department of Agriculture had been assigned the special job of liquidating the old rural resettlement projects which have irritated Congress from the beginning and are a hangover from the "Tugwell era."

These projects and various other tag-ends of homestead and rehabilitation programs from the early New Deal were assigned to FSA. They were the cause of most of the charges of "Communism" levelled against it—often blotting out the main work of the agency, which was supposedly to provide financial aid and supervision to small farmers unable to obtain loans from banks.

Congress has contended these farmers should be helped to farm ownership and self-sufficiency, and dealt with individually rather than collectively."

Other controversial items in the 185-million dollar agricultural supply bill were disposed of by the House as follows:

1. Continuance of the Federal crop insurance program for wheat and cotton was approved and $7,818,748 voted for administration. The House originally voted to liquidate this activity.

2. The House refused to raise the amount voted the Rural Electrification Administration to 30 million dollars voted by the Senate, but reaffirmed its decision on 20 million dollars.

3. A 50 million dollar school lunch program written in by the Senate was agreed to, with the amendment providing funds could not be used to continue portions of program formerly carried on by the Works Project Administration.

Meantime, the House Agriculture Committee was vote-locked on a bill transfering all food rationing and food pricing powers to the War Food Administrator.

Chairman Fulmer (Democrat) of South Carolina said the measure would be voted out today and expressed belief it would go far toward solving the "food muddle."

Some observers, however, believed Administration leaders protesting transfer of OPA powers to WFA would see that the bill did not come up for a vote until autumn.

Immigrant's Son Honored; Helped Efface Regiment

out sleep, rest or food," declared the Marine, Private First Class Nash W. Phillips of Fayetteville, N. C.

The official citation accompanying the award of the Nation's highest decroation, continuing the story of Basilone's one-man battle, told of his further exploits after reinforcements reached the nearly breached American line.

"A little later," it stated, "with ammunition critically low and the supply lines cut off, Sergeant Basilone, at great risk of his life and in the face of continued enemy attack, battled his way through hostile lines with urgently needed shells for his gunners, thereby contributing in a large measure to the virtual annihilation of a Japanese regiment."

"Manila John" acquired his nickname by virtue of former service with the United States Army in the Philippines. Capt. Regan Fuller of Washington who served with Basilone on Guadalcanal, considers him one of the greatest fighting men he has ever seen. The Marine hero is now in the South Pacific resting up for new campaigns.

DEFEND FREEDOM - BUY WAR BONDS

AMERICA has gone from a nation of plenty to a land of rationing, to win this war.

This Company, so far, has been able to maintain the same standards of electrical service to all its customers that has become noteworthy in the past. But, things are not as usual, and we must join hands in mutual self-denial and economy to meet the demands of war. To run our business, we need thousands of tons of fuel and large quantities of materials brought here by extraordinary effort of the railroads. These private transportation facilities are now overburdened in delivering huge quantities of materials and supplies for our armed forces. Every car of fuel, or other materials that can be saved in transportation, in the conduct of our local business, means extra transportation space to carry vitally necessary war materials to our fighting forces overseas. So, use electricity carefully and do not waste it, simply because it is cheap and unrationed.

There is no shortage of electricity here or over America. There is, at present, plenty of power for war production and civilian needs. Every reasonable need of Washington and surrounding areas served by this Company is now being fully met, but this does not condone waste of electricity, which is a war material. "Willful waste brings woeful want."

Six Area Fliers Win Medals In Air Exploits

Members of the Eighth Air Force participating in intensive raids on Axis territory in Europe, six Washington men were among about 1000 Army Air Forces personnel decorated for exploits, the War Department announced yesterday.

RAMER

Cramer Born at West Point

CRAMER, who recently received the Air Medal, is a son of the late Lieut. Col. R. V. Cramer and was born at West Point, N. Y. He came here with his family in 1930. After attending Western High School and Millard Prep School he was graduated from West Point in 1941. He received air instruction at Randolph and Kelly Fields before going overseas last October.

BRADFORD

DeRussy, the son of an Army major, attended the University of Hawaii and West Point Preparatory School at Schofield Barracks, T. H., before entering the United States Military Academy. He entered the Air Corps Flying School at Randolph Field and was commissioned in the Air Corps Reserve after graduation from the advanced school at Kelly Field.

Blake, District Native

Blake was born in Washington on February 24, 1916, and attended McKinley High School, Strand Business School and Millard Preparatory School. He was employed by Eastern Air Lines when he enlisted in the Air Corps, January 2, 1942. He went overseas last October after graduation from the gunnery school at Boise, Idaho. His mother, Mrs. George Simmons, resides at 5337 Broad Branch Road Northwest.

BLAKE

Reported killed in action March 31, Bradford was a native Washingtonian. A graduate of Central High School, he entered the Army shortly after the attack on Pearl Harbor. He had been on overseas duty since last September.

Edwards, an aerial gunner, was born 32 years ago in Philadelphia. Coming to Washington at the age of 9. After attending local schools, he attended the University of Maryland and a law school in Baltimore.

2 D. C. Men Transferred To Nazi Camps

Reported prisoners of Italy by the War Department yesterday, Pvt. Marshall E. Fridley and Pvt. First Class John P. Rosendall of Washington recently have been transferred to German prison camps, their families informed The Post.

M. E. FRIDLEY

Private Fridley is the son of Mrs. Harriet Allen of 903 Twelfth Street Southeast, while Pvt. First Class Rosendall is the uncle of Marjorie Conn of 630 Wayne Avenue, Silver Spring, and son of the late Paul F. Rosendall of 2400 Thirteenth Street Northwest, who died in April. They were among 283 United States soldiers reported interned by Italy, the War Department stated.

Born in Craigsville, Va., December 25, 1919, Fridley grew up in that town with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Via. He was a factory foreman in Justice Branch, Va., before entering the Army June 24, 1942. He went overseas last November and last wrote his mother on March 2. The War Department stated he was taken prisoner in North Africa March 30.

Rosendall, 25, a Washington native, attended John Quincy Adams School and Central High School, where he was a member of the cadet corps and played on the baseball team. Before entering the Army in September, 1941, he was employed at Hibbs Stock Exchange and as a special delivery mailman. His last communication was dated January 31 from North Africa.

'Round-Clock Raids Pound Nazi Europe

tacks across the channel by fighters.)

Muelheim in the bomb-pocked German Huhr was slammed by hundreds of R. A. F. four-engined bombers Tuesday night, witr bombs starting many fires that "soon joined together" and sent fiflames leaping hundreds of feet high, the Air Ministry announced. One pilot reported concentrated fires "for about 2 square miles."

The ne wfires started there brought from the German radio the statement that "what the population of these areas (the Ruhr) has had to endure lately is unbelievable fo reveryone who has not witnessed such raid."

The Ruhr has taken a fearful pounding. The Ministry of Information said "there have been at least 550 attacks on targets there by the R. A. F." The 6 raids on Cologne or Dortmund, 60 on Duisburg, Hamborn, 85 on Wilhelmshaven and 44 on Gelsenkirchen.

The fleet of bombers that aimed its blow upon Muelheim flew into that heart of German industry with fires of destruction still visible in Huls, pounded by Fortresses Tuesday, and from Krefeld, smashed by the R. A. F. Monday night. One pilot said Krefeld looked "like a circle of smouldering ashes."

Best Concentrated Attack

Muelheim, lying near Duisburg and about 20 miles from Huls, has 136,000 population in peacetime. It is the site of a big railway repair yard and a major Ruhr outlet to southern Germany.

Veteran fliers called it the best concentrated attack of their experience.

A German broadcast said Muelheim and Oberhausen suffered "major casualties" last night. The British did not mention any attack upon Oberhausen. The Nazis said 24 bombers were shot down.

Damage to Antwerp

Aerial photographs taken by attacking Fortress planes Tuesday disclosed widespread damage both at Huls and Antwerp, it was authoritatively reported. At Huls, the pictures showed the highly combustible synthetic rubber plant aflame, and the entire target plastered with incendiary and explosive bombs.

At Antwerp, bomb bursts were shown upon the former Ford motor plant next to the main target, the former General Motors factory, and upon the dockside the warehouses, it was said.

Openly telegraphing their aerial blows in an effort to save the civilian population of occupied countries, the Allies extended a warning today to the Dutch to move away from potential targets, factories producing war material for the Axis.

Broadcast over Radio Orange, the voice of the Netherlands government, it followed similar warnings earlier this week to the French and Belgians. The broadcast warned that the Allies planned attacks "with still more fierceness."

Tense Nerves Aboard Transport Breed Strange Rumors; Same Stories Heard on All Ships

on her, ready to blow her out of the water, because we heard her in our listening devices. She saw us as she broke water and signaled just in time that she was one of ours. It is not explained how it happens that she did not hear us in her listening devices, and if the question arises it is explained that probably her listening devices were out of order.

Tales About Officers

3. Some terrible and nameless thing has happened among the officers (this rumor is only among the enlisted men). The crime they have committed is not mentioned, but it is known that a number of officers are under detention and will be courtmartialed. This rumor may be pure wishful thinking.

4. Both the officers' post exchanges and the enlisted men's post exchanges sell a watery pop in brown bottles. The soldiers know very well that what is in their bottles is pop, but the rumor runs through the ship that the brown bottles in the officers' lounge contain beer. Some little discontent arises from this tale until it is forgotten in a new rumor.

Reports About Vessel

5. The front end of the ship is weak and only patched up. On the last voyage she cut a destroyer (sometimes a cruiser) in two and they patched her up and sent her out any way. She is perfectly all right, unless we run into heavy weather, in which case she is very likely to fall to pieces. Since men are not allowed on the fore peak, because the gun crews are there, they cannot look over and see whether or not this is true.

6. Last night the German radio announced that this ship had been sunk. The Germans often do this, fishing for information. While parents, wives and friends do not know exactly what ship we are on, they know about when we were alerted and they will be frantic and there is no way of telling them that we are all right, for no messages are permitted to go out. The soldiers go about worrying to think of the worry of their people.

And the Epidemic Yarn

7. Some kind of epidemic has broken out on the ship. The officers are keeping it quiet to prevent panic. They are burying the dead secretly at night.

As the days go by and the men grow more restless and the parchesi games have fallen off because the sinews of the game have gotten into a few lean and hungry hands, the rumors grow more intense. Somewhere in midocean a big patrol plane flies near to us and circles protectively and the rumor springs up that she has signaled the captain to change course. Something terrific is going on somewhere and we are changing our destination.

Since we change our course every 30 seconds anyway there is no telling by watching the wake where we are going. So the rumors go. It would be interesting if the ship's officers would post a list of rumors the men are likely to hear. It would certainly eliminate some apprehensions on the part of the men, and it would be interesting to see whether then a whole new list of fresh, unused rumors would grow up.

Amazing results shown in improving the Looks... boosting VITALITY!

1—Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach

2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

THESE two important steps may help you to overcome

Sour Stomach Jerky Nerves
Loss of Appetite Underweight
Digestive Complaints Weakness
Poor Complexion

Improper diet, overwork, undue worries, colds, the flu or other illness often impairs the stomach's digestive functions and reduces the red-blood strength.

A person who is operating on only a 70 to 75% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped.

At such times Nature needs extra help to restore its proper functions and balance. Undigested food places a tax on the system...insufficient blood strength is a detriment to good health.

If you are subject to poor digestion or suspect deficient red-blood as the cause of your trouble, yet have no organic complication or focal infection, SSS Tonic may be just what you need!

SSS Tonic is especially designed to build-up blood strength when deficient ...and to promote those stomach juices which digest the food so your body can make proper use of it in rebuilding worn-out tissue.

These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat ... to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality ... pep ... become animated ... more attractive!

Build Sturdy Health
so that the Doctors may better serve our Fighting Forces

Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits SSS Tonic has brought to them and scientific research shows that it gets results—that's why so many say "SSS Tonic builds sturdy health—makes you feel like yourself again." At drug stores in 10 and 20 oz. sizes. S.S.S. Co.

Mrs. Meloney, Magazine Editor, Dies

By the Associated Press

Pawling, N. Y., June 23.—Mrs. William Brown Meloney, editorial director of "This Week," Sunday magazine of the Herald Tribune, and considered one of the Nation's leading women's editors, died today.

Mrs. Meloney began her newspaper career at the age of 16 when she became a reporter for the Washington, (D. C.) Post. Two years later she was made chief of the Washington Bureau of the Denver Post, first woman believed to hold such a position.

Mrs. Meloney, then Marie Mattingly, got her first scoop for The Post when she obtained an exclusive, and signed, interview with the Chinese Ambassador, Wu Tingfang, who knew her through having played chess with her mother.

Later she got an exclusive story on the purchase of a house for Admiral Dewey by his grateful countrymen, which resulted in her getting a regular job on The Post staff. Then she got an exclusive story on the wedding of Admiral Dewey.

In 1914 she originated and worked out plans for the organization of the Junior Red Cross.

Later she worked for The World and The Sun in New York but gave up her newspaper career after being married to Colonel Meloney, an editor of The Sun.

Ten years later she resumed her professional career and in succession served as editor of "Women's Magazine," associate editor of "Everybody's" and editor of "Delineator." In 1926 she became editor of the Herald Tribune Sunday magazine and in 1935 editor of "This Week" which succeeded the Sunday magazine. She assumed the position of editorial director last June 3.

In 1930 she organized the first Herald Tribune forum on current problems for women's clubs, an event which now brings together speakers from throughout the world.

When Mrs. Meloney learned that Mme. Marie Curie, discoverer of radium, was without radium to carry on her research, she initiated a campaign which raised $100,000 for the purchase of a gramme of radium and new research equipment for the scientist.

Mrs. Meloney was decorated three times each by the governments of Belgium and France for her work in behalf of victims of the First World War and by the Polish government for furnishing a gramme of radium to the cancer hospital in Warsaw.

She leaves a son, William Brown Meloney, an author. Her husband died in 1925.

Playgrounds And Pools Open Tomorrow

Playground activities will be keynoted by the Victory Builders' program this summer, Mrs. Clarice Smith, director of Recreation Department's division of neighborhood centers, said in announcing opening tomorrow of the department's full program for the summer.

Sixty-six playgrounds, 12 wading pools, 25 swimming pools and 22 shower stops will be available for white activities, and 39 playgrounds, 2 wading pools, 3 swimming pools and 20 shower stops for Negro.

The victory program is best explained by recitation of the pledge which all participants must take, according to Mrs. Smith. The pledge reads: "It is the duty of every loyal American to build himself for victory. Therefore, I pledge I will develop my health, improve my skills, be mentally alert, be loyal and give service to my country."

Achievement tests open to young people from 9 to 19 will stress physical fitness, service, and leadership. Swimming, calesthenics, hiking, cooking out, knowledge of air raid facts and the words of the "Star Spangled Banner," first aid, use of salvage materials, civilian defense work all will figure in the victory program.

Martin Rites To Take Place At St. Albans

Funeral services for George C. Martin, 68, executive secretary of the United States Board of Geographical Names, will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at St. Albans Church. He died Tuesday at his home, 3126 Thirty-eighth Street Northwest, after an illness of several weeks.

A native of Massachusetts, Mr. Martin attended Cornell University and obtained his Ph.D. degree from Johns Hopkins. After a year's work with the Philadelphia National Academy of Science, he became associated with the United States Geological Survey, of which he was a member for 20 years.

In 1912 Mr. Martin was in charge of the National Geographic Society's expedition to Mount Katmai, Alaska. He published several books on Alaskan mining, and on coal and oil fields in the United States and Mexico.

Mr. Martin was a member of the Geological Society of America, the Association of Petroleum Geologists, the American Geographical Society, the Geological Society of Washington and the Cosmos Club. Surviving are his son, William Martin, Department of Agriculture consultant in Peru; a daughter, Mrs. Louise Harrington of Adams, Mass., and a brother, Col. Lawrence Martin, chief of the map division of the Library of Congress.

Pounding The Ruhr

According to the R. A. F., which is not given to exaggeration, the Ruhr is now the most heavily bombed region in history. Essen, Dortmund, Duisberg, Wupperthal, Mulheim—these and other Ruhr centers have been subjected to an aerial assault that is without precedent in intensity. And the Allied offensive shows no signs of slackening. On the contrary, the fact that the Ruhr is now being raided not only at night by the R. A. F. but also in daylight by heavy bombers of the United States Army Air Force, suggests that what the Ruhr has received so far is a mere taste of what is yet in store for it.

No doubt Germany has done and is doing everything possible to move plants and factories from the vulnerable Ruhr area to safer regions elsewhere in the Reich. But there is a limit beyond which dispersal of industry cannot be carried out. It is for this reason and also because a sizable portion of German war production remains and will remain in the Ruhr that the Allied aerial offensive against that region is continuing. While the liquidation of the Ruhr as a German industrial center may not of itself knock Germany out of the war, it would go a long way in the achievement of that objective.

No Check-Off

John L. Lewis has made another conditional surrender to the authority of the Federal Government. He will allow the members of his union to return to work in the coal mines until the end of October—provided that operation of the mines remains in governmental hands. It may or may not be considered desirable to return these mines to their private owners within the next few months. That is something which the Government will have to determine in the light of future developments. We do not know. But we do know it is wholly undesirable to have the Government's action determined by John L. Lewis.

Mr. Lewis is in a position to dictate conditions today for the sole and simple reason that he succeeded in imposing his will upon the Government in the past. The blustering arrogance with which he recently defied the War Labor Board enabled him to overthrow the National Defense Mediation Board in 1941 when it refused to enforce a closed shop contract upon the coal mining industry. With the demise of that agency and the imposition of a closed shop through the subterfuge of unofficial arbitration conducted by John Steelman, Lewis found himself empowered to control the working life of virtually every coal miner in America.

This control is reinforced by the checkoff system of collecting union dues. Mr. Lewis plainly expects the Government, as operator of the mines, to continue this system. What he asks, in short, is that the Custodian of Mines shall collect dues and turn them over to the union treasury in order to enrich a strike fund which will enable the union to defy the Government again when its magnanimously granted truce has expired.

The checkoff has its useful place in normal relations between management and labor. But it has no place in the relations between the Government and its employes. If it were to be continued now in the coal mining industry, it would indicate merely that the Government operation was purely pro forma—that is, a concession to Mr. Lewis' whim. Either the Government should take over the mines in fact, imposing its own conditions of employment, or it should return the mines to their owners and tell the miners to go to work under the terms of the existing contract.

It is curious that this contract seems entirely satisfactory to Mr. Lewis under Government operation and yet is viewed by him as an "infamous yellow-dog contract" so long as the mines are in private hands. He is scarcely entitled to have it both ways. The fact is that Lewis is demanding Government operation as a device to save his own face, since he has not been able to bludgeon the full measure of his wage demands out of the War Labor Board. But the Lewis physiognomy is not now so universally beloved that the saving of it can be considered a national necessity.

What is a national necessity is the saving of the Government's authority and prestige. It may be more difficult to settle the coal crisis on the Government's terms than on John Lewis'. But it is worth the extra trouble, even at a temporary cost to the war effort. Any concessions to John Lewis at this time will make the price of getting coal mined, in the long run, higher than this Nation can afford to pay.

Food vs. Feed

Every day brings new evidence of the serious dislocations caused by OPA's bungling efforts to control food prices. Although meat is fast disappearing from retail stores, representatives of livestock growers assert that Government estimates indicate a surplus of 15,400,000 head of cattle by the beginning of 1944. Despite this immense potential meat supply, cattle are not being shipped to market in normal quantities. Moreover, many small packers are going out of business or threatening to quit because, they say, they lose money on each pound of beef sold. Hogs, likewise, are being produced in great quantity, with a heavy increase in numbers in prospect, to be added to greatly increased existing supplies.

The explanation of this paradox of superabundant supplies of livestock coincident with a dearth of consumable meat is simple. The lack of a ceiling on livestock prices has led to heavy production of meat animals, while the imposition of ceiling prices on processed meats has discouraged slaughtering and limited sales of meat. Meat shortages, however, are not the only unfortunate consequence of OPA's mistakes of judgment. Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York called attention to another serious maladjustment in a recent address to the annual conference of Governors. OPA, he remarked, had "developed a theory that it would be a good idea to repeal the natural law of economics that corn and hog prices are tied together. The result is a ceiling price on corn of $1.05 at Chicago. Meanwhile, the farmer can get $1.45 for the same corn right on the farm just by throwing it over the fence to his pigs." Consequently, the New York dairy cow, dependent upon corn bought at the ceiling price of $1.05 per bushel, has a very poor chance of survival against an Iowa hog fattened on the farm.

Governor Dewey concludes that the Midwest ought to slaughter more pigs and use the released feed to aid New York's dairy and poultry producers, thereby making our limited grain supplies go further. He warned that meat animals are "eating into the precious food reserves which must be increased if we are even to begin saving the undernourished people of a rescued Europe." This is substantially the same sort of appeal as that put forth by former President Hoover in his criticism of the Administration's food program.

Another significant indication of the disruptive effort of OPA's failure to link feed prices to livestock prices is supplied by the closing of a large plant manufacturing starch and dextrose sugar at Pekin, Ill., because of inability to obtain corn at ceiling prices. Any widespread closing of such plants will, it is said, have serious consequences, since many essential industries, including war industries, are dependent upon corn products. Here we find another paradox—an important industry compelled to close for lack of corn, although farmers are known to be hoarding large amounts of corn or feeding it to their high priced hogs.

The dislocations already caused by setting ceiling prices for corn without imposing corresponding ceilings on livestock are minor calamities compared to what may lie ahead. If the dairy and poultry industries, for instance, are deprived of necessary feed supplies, shortages of milk, cheese and poultry will ensue. For that matter, some cattle and hog producers complain that they, too, face a crisis for lack of feed and that wholesale slaughter of cattle and hogs not yet ready for market impends because of inability to feed them. Nevertheless, the suggestion that corn ceiling prices be eliminated causes grave misgivings, because that would doubtless send prices of corn skyrocketing.

The basic issue confronting the Food Administration and OPA was raised by Governor Dewey when he urged less meat production as a means of making our grain supplies go farther. The Government must first decide whether its meat production plans need revision before taking action to adjust feed prices and to arrange for the allocation of feed supplies. To continue the present policy or drift is to court disaster. Meantime, New York is turning to Canada for grain to feed her dairy herds and her poultry because, Governor Dewey says, "we cannot wait forever for Washington to discover the laws of economics. We have to get feed wherever we can find it."

Preparing For Burma

The appointment of Field Marshal Sir Archibald Wavell as viceroy of India has military implications which make it of interest to the whole of the United Nations. Hitherto Field Marshal Wavell has been commander in chief in India. As such he was in charge of the campaigns in Burma which failed to keep Japan out of Burma and which have not weakened the Japanese hold. The promotion of Sir Archibald Wavell may provide the opportunity for transferring the assignment to Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, our general in command in China.

Such a shift would doubtless be as welcome to the Chinese as to the Americans. The British are preoccupied at present with the projected campaign against Hitler. They do not feel the same sense of urgency for hastening the downfall of Japan as the Chinese and the Americans do. Burma, however, figures prominently in the calculations of both Chungking and Washington. It must be recaptured as the preliminary to the use of China as the springboard for the definitive attack on Japan. In Yunnan Province General Stilwell is training a large Chinese army which will be used in the next campaign against Burma and which will then be the nucleus force for major operations against Japan.

For the next campaign against Burma, which cannot begin till fall, will come from the Chinese as well as the Indian border. Thus the advantage of putting General Stilwell in charge of the entire campaign is obvious. He has the further advantage of experience in India. He took his ill-prepared Chinese force out of Burma into India, and in India worked in close association with Marshal Wavell. Doubtless General Stilwell would find a like-minded coadjutor in the new commander in chief in India, Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck. General Auchinleck is an able soldier and a man, moreover, with a reputation as a sympathizer with the nationalist aspirations of India. Both attributes will react one upon the other in enabling him to build up the new Indian army as an offensive instrument.

Beliefs Are Personal

Mr. Dooley's famous dictum that the Supreme Court follows the election returns may be given even wider application. Apparently the Court also follows the course of foreign affairs. This is no more than to say that the Court is aware of the significant social currents which dominate our times.

In the opinions delivered on Monday respecting the Government's right to revoke the citizenship of the Communist, William Schneiderman, both Mr. Justice Murphy, who expressed the majority view denying that right, and Chief Justice Stone, who spoke for the minority, took pains to assert that "our relations with Russia, as well as our views regarding its government and the merits of Communism are immaterial to a decision of this case." However, the judgment of the Court was tinged to some extent by the contemporary concept that our basic freedoms must have universal application. And that is neither unwise nor unfortunate.

This was a difficult case to decide, since it involved a question of attitude, rather than of action. The dissenting arguments were exceedingly persuasive. But the verdict evidently turned upon an old judicial principle, reiterated by Justice Murphy: ". . . Under our traditions, beliefs are personal and not a matter of mere association . . . Men in adhering to a political party or other organization notoriously do not subscribe unqualifiedly to all of its platforms or asserted principles."

Here is a doctrine which Congressmen Dies and Kerr and other inquisitorial patrioteers might well commit to memory. If this has relevance in the case of an admitted member and official of the Communist Party, it must apply with even greater force to the case of an individual whose affiliation with the party is at most a remote one—that is, through some organization regarded as a Communist front or allegedly dominated by Communists. The establishment of guilt by association is a procedure wholly alien to our traditions.

"Nowhere in the world today," Justice Murphy asserted, "is the right of citizenship of greater worth to an individual than it is in this country . . . This does not mean that once granted to an alien, citizenship cannot be revoked or canceled on legal grounds. But such a right once conferred should not be taken away without the clearest sort of justification and proof." A man's reputation as a patriotic and loyal American is no less precious to him and should be taken away no more lightly.

The chief significance of the decision in this Schneiderman case would appear to be its reinforcement of the Court's emphasis on the rights of individuals. Once more, as it did in the Jehovah's Witnesses cases, the Court has acted to curb the power of the State to enforce conformity. This is also the emphasis of the Bill of Rights. It does not seem impertinent to suggest that the Court is what the Constitution says it is.

Tax Day

The introduction of the withholding tax has destroyed the usefulness of the tax anticipation notes for the great majority of small income-tax payers, since in future most of their income taxes will be paid at regular intervals by deductions at the source. As a result the Treasury has recognized an obligation to redeem the outstanding notes, with interest, whenever presented, although holders may retain them until maturity if they wish. That is a fair arrangement in view of the unexpected change in the tax laws. It is also a reminder that henceforth the average small-tax payer, deriving his income from wages or salaries, need no longer worry about saving up for tax day. That is being done for him.

NIGHT VISIT

Sure-footed as a deer, he goes
Along the secret path he knows.
Any moonlit night he'll follow
Through the bracken-gleaming hollow.
Where the moon's slow silver drips
On his reaching finger-tips!
He needs neither guide nor lamp,
But when the night is sweet and damp
With dew, he'll visit, quite at ease,
His old, gnarled gnomes of apple trees.
There, where moon and starlight dapples
Leaves that veil round, silver apples,
He'll lean against a bough and drink
Silence at the dark's cool brink;
Then turning home, he'll wisely keep
His old trees' quietness through his sleep!

PAULINE HAVARD

Occupied Countries

By Egon Rarshofer-Wertheimer

Postwar Planning

BOTH FASCISM and Nazism are reflexes of a crisis threatening our whole civilization from within. They are chiefly the consequences of the democratic failure to carry democracy from the political into the economic and social field. The only traits common to totalitarian occupation and the military occupation of the past are their outward appearances.

With the exception of Russia, the social fabric of the territories affected by the last war remained essentially unchanged. After the departure of the German military and civilian administration from the occupied territories, there remained only hatred, misery and the ruins wrought by the war. The political and social fabric had not been seriously impaired. Hitlerian domination has not only transformed the economic structure of the occupied countries to the image of the conqueror but also has dissolved the social structure in the majority of countries and, in some cases, even jeopardized their national identity.

From the point of view of postwar planning this implies that totalitarian domination has, in most of the subjected countries, and also in Germany and Italy, not only destroyed the traditional political framework but the material and psychological foundations needed for their functioning.

Democratic Machinery

In the countries that had previously been democratic, not only has the democratic machinery been destroyed, but the democratic approach has been obliterated. By this is not meant that there are no more democrats left in countries like the Netherlands, Norway or Czecho-Slovakia, but, as an organized force, democracy and democratic procedures have been disrupted.

Moreover, the most energetic anti-totalitarian elements in these countries have been driven underground and compelled to fight the oppressor with his own weapons. It is inevitable that the chief antagonists of totalitarianism at home reflect in their mentality the very violence of the system they oppose. The basis of a future democratic leadership has thus been unfavorably affected by the character of the domination for a long time to come.

It is under these circumstances dangerous and comfortable illusion to reckon with the possibility of holding democratic elections immediately after the collapse of Hitlerism and the withdrawal of the German armies, and to assume that the direction of the fate of the liberated nations can, after a short interval, safely be entrusted to the hands of normally established and normally functioning governments.

The United Nations cannot consider their trusteeship a mere war measure, to be discarded in the hour of victory. Whether they wish it or not they must familiarize themselves with the idea that their role will not cease as soon as the Hitlerian octopus collapses. They must realize that it is their vital duty to draw up beforehand the outlines of the postwar order and to watch—with victory won—over the first steps of executing their grand designs. Only the existence of a master plan for the aftermath established in advance can prevent anarchy, regional wars, starvation, bloodshed and the establishment of dangerous faits accomplis in the period immediately following victory over the Axis.

Difficulties Created

The difficulties created by the character of totalitarian oppression will be tremendous. However, some of its aftereffects can be turned to good ends if they are recognized as such in time. The very fact that everything was constantly in flux and evolution during the time of Fascist overlordship can be beneficial to the victors in the establishment of their own order. Ordinary resistance due to inertia, to traditions and frozen frontiers of habit and mind will be diminished. The fact that about 15 nations have already experienced grand-scal planning in public affairs will give the victors the unique chance of finding tht soil prepared for grand-scale operations of another kind. Moreover, the utter disregard of vested interests displayed by the totalitarian conqueror might if turned to their own ends by the victors, diminish the type of sullen resistance against innovations per se which so largely contributed to the failure of the last peacemaking in 1919.

One condition must, however, be fulfilled. The victors must act with lightning speed, in the very hour of triumph, before the sterility and inertia, the exhaustion and fatalism typical of times immediately following major wars, have again taken possession of the minds of the nations.

Struggle In Algiers

By Barnet Nover

France And Her Allies

IT WOULD BE a gross exaggeration to call the compromise arrangement which has just been reached at Algiers between Generals de Gaulle and Giraud a settlement.

It is no more a settlement of the issue involved in the dispute that brought the newly created French Committee of National Liberation to the verge of dissolution than the return of the coal miners to the pits constitutes a settlement of the coal strike.

What happened at Algiers was that neither side was prepared to give way to the other's demands but were equally unwilling to destroy the committee. So the issue was shelved and the status quo in the matter of control of the French armed forces was restored.

General Giraud will retain the command of the French armies in north and west Africa. General de Gaulle will continue as commander of all French forces in the rest of the empire. The only change in the situation, and it is of problematical value, lies in the creation of a liaison committee of eight, composed of the two generals and the chiefs of staff of their respective military, naval and air forces. To this committee has been entrusted the difficult task of unifying and reorganizing all French fighting forces.

THE STRUGGLE at Algiers has been presented to the American public as one between General de Gaulle and General Giraud.

Had it been only that the issue would long ago have been resolved—and in General de Gaulle's favor. Whether we like it or not, and it is evident that many in high places both in Washington and in London do not like it, De Gaulle's popularity and prestige among the French people, both in North Africa and in metropolitan France, has been steadily rising.

That is why at every stage of the political struggle that began in North Africa with the elevation of Giraud to the place left vacant through the assassination of Admiral Darlan, it was De Gaulle who had his way, it was Giraud who found it necessary to make concessions.

De Gaullist pressure, aided by public opinion in America, Britain and North Africa itself, compelled Giraud to hasten the release of political prisoners, abolish Vichy laws, reestablish republican institutions and finally, eliminate such men as Nogues and Peyrouton, whom the Fighting French regarded with anathema as former collaborationists.

And had it not been for the powerful support he received from the Allies, to whom, in the first instance, he owes his post as commander in chief of the French forces in North Africa, Giraud would nc doubt have been forced to give way to the latest De Gaulle demands, namely, the elimination of Vichy elements in the army, the modernization of the French military forces and the subordination of the commander in chief to the Committee of National Liberation, a body from which Giraud as commander in chief, would have been excluded.

The basic struggle in Algiers during these last few weeks, has been between De Gaulle and his followers, on the one hand, and the American and British Governments, on the other.

IT HAS NOT HELPED De Gaulle with Washington and London that he has been stiff-necked, uncompromising, unyielding. But that has not hurt him with the French people.

For a quarter of a century the French have seen their leaders pursue a compromising and yielding course. They saw Clemenceau give way to Wilson, Briand to the British and later to the Weimar Republic, Laval to the Italians and Petain to the Nazis. Whatever the motive—friendship with America or Britain or Italy or peace with the Reich—the result was disaster.

It was three years ago this very week that France reached the very nadir of her fortunes as a nation. France had lost wars before. But there was something shameful both in the manner and in the completeness of the surrender to Hitler in June, 1940, and Frenchmen of this generation will bear the psychic wounds of that betrayal as long as they live.

BUT NOT ALL France surrendered and not all Frenchmen. Among the latter was Charles de Gaulle. He refused to accept defeat. And his stand, as it became known in France, was balm to the bruised and battered spirits of the French people. Through De Gaulle and those who in the French empire and in the Allied world rallied to his banner French self-esteem was restored. Because of him and what he stood for the Frenchmen could regard the Armistice at Rethondes not as the shameful act of the nation but the treasonable action of a cabal. It was because De Gaulle was uncompromising at the outset and remains uncompromising today that his following has grown.

IN AN ARTICLE on "New China's Demands" in the current issue of Foreign Affairs, Prof. T. S. Chien, chairman of the committee on foreign relations of the People's Political Council, warns the Allies that the new Chinese nation may behave chauvinistically. "Perhaps," he says, "the attitude of the resurrected Poland after the First World War is an instance of what is to be expected from China."

The same promises to be true of resurrected France.

Having gone through the fires of defeat and disaster, of personal and national humiliation, the French are bound to be resentful of dictation, however well-intentioned and even from a friendly source.

Our policy in North Africa during these last seven months only added fuel to the fires of French chauvinism. Seeking to undermine De Gaulle we have only strengthened him. Seeking to reunite the French to us we have created a gulf of misunderstanding between us. Neither we nor the French can profit by such a development.

Men's Fashions

I take the liberty of expressing my opinion about the champion of sensible men recently elected.

Please notice that the champion, Mr. Graubner, wears short sleeves. When a man writes a letter, his arm nearly always touches the surface of the table or desk he writes on. In doing this, if he has a bare arm, he often finds blotting paper, dirt or dust stuck to his arm at the parts nearer his hand. If you don't believe me, just try it some time when you are nice and sticky.

Why should he be wearing long trousers? He only needs short trousers coming down to just above the knees.

This is what, I think, the most sensible man of 1943 should wear:

1 well-ventilated straw hat.
1 open-collared, long-sleeved ventilated shirt.
2 unmentionables.
1 belt.
1 pair of short pants.
1 pair ankle socks.
1 pair well-ventilated shoes.

Bureaucracy

Through comments from editorials of other papers I have learned of your outspoken fearlessness when it comes to criticizing the acts of the powers that be.

The people are fed up with this needless regimentation. We are ready to cooperate and do all in our powers to win this war. But we will not much longer tolerate the rules and dictates of a bunch of theatrical ignoramuses with dictatorial aspiration. Bureaucracy and the outrage of the OPA must go if it takes a Republican landslide to do it, and this is written by a Democrat who never voted the Republican ticket, but who believes in the right of the individual and the independence of the States to govern within their own jurisdictions.

Suffering Peoples

Rufus Jones' account of the work of the Quaker unit whose activities he has been directing, painted a picture of conditions existing there today, and the desperate need of help, which was heartrending; but amid the tragedy of it all, there was a note of satisfaction in the fact that such endeavors are doing more than anything else to counteract the propaganda against us, with which the minds of our brothers and sisters in other lands have been poisoned, and these acts of mercy have gone a long way in winning confidence in America's disinterested and friendly attitude.

Another reassuring declaration made by the speaker was that not one dollar of money or one mouthful of food sent through their organization or through the Red Cross, through whom the writer understands they work, has ever failed to reach those for whom it was intended.

Italians

What are the Italians waiting for? Surely by now they must realize that the United Nations are going to utterly defeat them militarily.

It may be hard for them to reconcile themselves to the certain loss of former Austrian territory to Yugoslavia, such as Istria, Gorizia, Fiume, Fara and the Adriatic Islands, but that is coming anyway, so by refusing to overthrow Mussolini and giving up now they are merely suffering for a lost and very wrong cause.

The red is being knocked out of the Italian flag through the capture of Pantelleria and Lampedusa—and many more are coming, so why not quit now while there is some green left in their flag?

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Investigating Gotham's Mayor

The New York City Council has voted to investigate Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia. This will give the city three summer circuses, one indoor, one outdoor and one half and half.

It will subpena all his personal papers in an attempt to find a bingo card, a $2 mutuel ticket or a copy of Racing Form.

And give special attention to a rumor that the little boy who writes all those letters to the Mayor about daddy losing his money at the races shaves twice a day.

This is one city probe that will be novel. There will be no charges that the Mayor is not honest. Fiorello is so honest that he makes it seem a little offensive and unpopular.

In fact, the purpose of the inquiry is a puzzle. It may just represent somebody's determination to clear up the mystery of how the official anthem of the United States Marines got into the Mayor's Sunday radio broadcast as his theme song.

Friends of the Mayor are 100 per cent behind the investigation. They think it's the only way he can be made to sit quietly for a couple of hours and get a little rest.

It ought to be a terrific summer amusement, even if Hizzoner only takes the stand between fires. We predict that before the questioning has lasted 15 minutes the newspapers will be on the street with headlines: "City Council Convicted; Mayor Grants Stay of Execution."

Questioning Mayor LaGuardia in a city inquiry is like attempting to make a den of lions fill out a questionnaire.

So far the investigators have not announced whether the inquiry will be over a national network, how much will be asked for picture rights or what orchestra the Mayor will direct between demands of "Answer yes or no!"

It has rejected, however, his offer to appear in full Indian headdress and answer all questions in five languages.

This department has learned through reliable sources that the investigation will have as its main aim the clearing up of these points:

1. Do the Mayor's cooking recipes, as given by him over the radio on Sunday, constitute a conspiracy against the public health?
2. While the fire ax is all right for fighting fires, should New York continue to accept it as a proper weapon for dealing with critics?
3. Is a citizen who asks for lower real estate taxes necessarily a tinhorn, a punk or a tout?
4. If the Mayor really has a secret pill which gives him all that amazing vitality, should he be forced to share it with the people?

On with the probe! And may the investigators have plenty of air protection.

"We can't go back to the old dilapidated, noisy, rattling trolley cars," declares a public official.

Elmer Twitchell rises to the defense of the trolley. "Dilapidated noisy, rattling, my eye!" he thunders. "Compared with it, the present-day de luxe bus is so much junk. The old-fashioned trolley had seats for all; it wasn't capable of half the alarming noises made by a bus, and—best of all—the motorman could stop it without throwing the patrons onto their ears."

We are with Elmer. In our boyhood the trolley car was the thing and the debut in the spring of the first "open cars" was a thrill. Only the well-to-do went to work or to the shore in other vehicles. On Sunday the whole town turned out for rides to Momauguin, Savin Rock or Lighthouse Point. And the trolley companies turned out cars end to end to carry them.

Disgusted

I note with interest the disgruntled citizen who signs himself "Disgusted" in your Post of June 14. If he will look around a bit he may find his uniform (no doubt officer's) in a Washington office more comfortable than the millions in battles and camps.

My oldest son enlisted for two years' foreign service. He served his two years honorably in Hawaii. He sailed for California a week before the Japs struck. He was turned right around and sent to Australia. He has served in Australia and New Guinea ever since. He is just out of the hospital with malaria. He is glad to be back with his outfit. I have a second son who left a remunerative position in an insurance company to become a private in the Army. I have a son-in-law who left a remunerative job to become a private.

We are all proud that none of them asked for any deferment and that none of them are fussing about some other fellow having a softer cushion to sit on. Every one of them is just as fond of his family and home life as those who are left with them.

While I am only a poor farmer, with increased production, I also am proud of my bit. Let's all cheer and stop beefing.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Mr. Lewis And Congress

WE MUST begin by recognizing the fact that in all respects but one, the terms on which Mr. John L. Lewis has acted conform with the war labor policy laid down by Congress in the Connally-Smith bill.

LIPPMANN

The policy declared in that bill is to have the Government take possession of any plant to insure operation in the interest of the war effort. Mr. Lewis has now said that, at least until October 31, he will permit the miners to work provided the Government continues in control of the coal mines. The bill passed by Congress says that during the period of Government control the terms of employment shall be those in effect at the time possession is taken. Mr. Lewis says that the terms of employment shall be those now in effect, in other words that Mr. Ickes shall not rescind the benefits he has granted since he became custodian of the mines.

The only point at which Mr. Lewis' action diverges from the principles of the Connally-Smith bill is in his implied assumption that he would resume the strike on October 31. According to the bill, he would go to jail if he connived at a strike while Mr. Ickes is custodian of the mines. On the other hand, if the Government had before October 31 returned the mines to the private operators, Mr. Lewis would be entitled under the bill to have the miners vote on whether they wished to strike. If after 30 days' notice, they did vote to strike, the only remedy the Government has under the bill to prevent the strike is once more to have Mr. Ickes take control of the mines.

Thus we find Mr. Lewis agreeing with majorities in both houses of Congress, no doubt to their astonishment at finding that they are bedfellows, that strikes may be outlawed in war industries only when the Government takes possession of the war industries.

THE FIRST question we have to consider, therefore, is whether the Connally-Smith-Lewis war labor policy is a remedy for the defects of the Roosevelt-Green-Murray policy. That consists of a voluntary agreement not to strike in any important plant whether it is private or Government controlled. The Roosevelt policy is obviously inadequate. Mr. Lewis set out to prove it was inadequate by calling a strike, and having called the strike, it is plain that the voluntary agreement is not enough. But can the country be satisfied with the congressional substitute which authorizes strikes in war plants except when the Government takes possession of them? The answer is no. If the congressional policy were allowed to stand by itself, we should soon run short of Iekeses to be the custodians of our war plants.

Thus the question to which we have to find the answer is how to reinforce the general Roosevelt-Green-Murray no-strike agreement without being compelled by Mr. Lewis, or by anyone who chooses to imitate him, to take Government control of every threatened war industry. This will not be easy to do, and we shall need cool heads, and much more courage and wisdom than have yet been applied to this difficult and delicate problem.

BY SNAPPING up the terms which the Connally-Smith bill offered him, Mr. Lewis has exposed the weakness in the position at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue. This is the refusal to face the fact that in a war of national survival every man's life and every man's work and every man's property is dedicated to the Nation.

All of the parties concerned shy away from the absolute prohibition of all strikes in war industries, and from the compulsory arbitration of all disputes. All of them either oppose or hesitate to accept a universal service act to back up the Selective Service under which men are conscripted to fight.

Yet the bold policy is the wisest policy: we should grasp the nettle firmly and it will sting us much less. We should enact the Austin-Wadsworth National War Service Act. We should also enact compulsory arbitration, preferably, it seems to me, under a new war labor tribunal which does not "represent" labor or industry but is composed of judges who represent only the Nation as a whole. Mr. Lewis has acknowledged that he will not and cannot strike against the Government. Then the thing to do is to make it unlawful to strike during wartime, once every man and woman is by law in the service of the Nation.

I KNOW this policy will not commend itself quickly to he leaders of labor or their political friends. But they should stop and look and listen. They should keep an open mind when candid observers tell them that organized labor is riding for a fall. They are not seeing clearly what is going on in this country, and they must, before it is too late, be willing to listen to those who can tell them the disagreeable but necessary truth.

The fact is that under the recent laws the labor unions have acquired rights, just rights, but without accepting the corresponding duties. At the same time they have acquired enormous economic power because there is an overwhelming demand for labor, and the Nation is absolutely dependent upon their work. The truth which they must face is that they now occupy a privileged position, not as compared with their employers, but as compared with the mass of small farmers, of white collar employes, and above all as compared with the men in the armed forces.

THE LABOR leaders, and their firm friends—foremost among them the President—will be perilously blind to the realities if they refuse to see the elementary wisdom, indeed the sheer prudence and expediency, of putting the house of labor in order before there is an explosion of popular feeling.

Therefore, instead of resenting the reforms which are inevitable, they should initiate them. No one likes to be reformed. But the reforms will be more workable and more generous if the leaders of labor and their friends have the unusual good sense to participate in working them out.

FINALLY IT must be said summarily, though its overwhelming importance is obvious, that no war labor policy, however constructive and comprehensive, will in the long run work if the stabilization of the cost of living with assured rations is not resolutely carried out.

Governors Hit Strikes

Security Threatened

By the Associated Press

Columbus, Ohio, June 23.—America's Governors formally condemned today "any strike by any group anywhere in America as affecting esential industries for the duration of this war."

"Any such strikes or stoppages gravely threaten the security of our Nation and endanger the cause for which we fight," said a resolution unanimously adopted by the thirty-fifth annual Governors' Conference.

"We deplore the fact that in too many instances affecting seriously the production of vital war equipment and materiel there have been strikes, stoppages and slow-downs of such production," the resolution further stated. "We disapprove and condemn any strike by any group anywhere in America as affecting essential industries for the duration of this war.

Farmers Commended

"We view with confidence and approval," it said "the almost unanimous practice of submitting controversies and differences to the duly constituted agencies for arbitration and conciliation, and we urge that such agencies, State and Federal, act promptly and fairly with respect to all such controversies so submitted."

Gov. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts today was named chairman of the annual Governors Conference forthe ensuing year. Saltonstall, a Republican, succeeds Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor of Maryland, a Democrat.

The Governors commanded labor and management "for the superb cooperation and unparalleled results that have been achieved in the production of material and equipment essential for complete victory."

In the same resolution, adopted at the final conference session, the chief executives said:

"We commend the farmers of America for their magnificent and sustained effort in the all important food and feed victory program, and we urge the fullest cooperation with the farmers on the part of State and Government agencies to the end that farmers of America may be able to carry on without frustration or financial disaster this program of unprecedented production."

States' Rights Discussed

The conference also stated that:

"No further concessions or encroachments on States' rights should be agreed to, except such as may clearly appear to be necessary to achieve victory.

"All rights of the States heretofore relinquished to the Federal Government to further the war effort be promptly reclaimed when this war shall have been successfully terminated.

Grain Requested

Another approved resolution requested the Federal Government "to act immediately to the end that adequate supplies of corn and other feed, so essential to our war effort, are at once provided to livestock and poultry feeders, dairymen, and manufacturers of feed for livestock and poultry."

The conference said livestock and poultry interests are unable to buy adequate feed grain on the market.

"This condition leads to the throwing on the market of livestock before it is fully developed and the too-rapid increase of sale of dairy cows, gravely threatens poultry growers and encourages black market operations," the resolution said.

'Lasting Peace' Resolution Faces Delay

The Fulbright "lasting peace" resolution unanimously reported by the House Foreign Affairs Committee last week, will be laid aside by the House until fall, it was reliably indicated last night.

Plans for a speedy House vote on the concurrent resolution, jointly backed by leading members of both political parties, are understood to have been abandoned at the request of some friends of the move.

The present program calls for House consideration of the resolution shortly after the House returns from its midsummer recess, with the Senate later following suit on its own pending postwar measures.

Backers Still Enthusiastic

Prominent Republicans who supported the measure in the committee and still enthusiastically favor it, were said to have urged the delay to guard against a possible floor fight on the measure at the present time.

There were strong differences among Republican supporters over plans for immediate consideration, with at least one—Representative Eaton of New Jersey—urging that it be considered at once.

Others felt there would be more unified support for the resolution if members were given more time to study it and a chance to tap the sentiment of their home districts before they vote. Leaders are said to have deferred to this view.

The resolution, supported by prominent former isolationists as well as leading House interventionists, would put both House and Senate on record in favor of "creation of appropriate international machinery with power to establish and to maintain a just and lasting peace and as favoring participation of the United States therein."

To Await House Action

Chairman Tom Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has indicated he will wait for the House to act before calling his postwar subcommittee together after the recess to report out their own version of the resolution.

Representative Sol Bloom's House Foreign Affairs Committee meanwhile released a survey of all measures on postwar questions introduced in House and Senate. A breakdown showed 6 postwar bills and resolutions already have been introduced in the House, 11 sponsored by Republicans and 14 by Democrats.

Navy to Ship Men to Alaska Aboard Planes

The Navy last night announced plans for stepping up aerial shipments of supplies and men to Alaska— evidently a preliminary move to offensive operations launched against Japan from the North Pacific.

At the same time, reports from the Aleutians declared that bad weather has virtually halted air operations against the last remaining enemy base in the area—on Kiska Island—with little prospect of favorable conditions until fall.

This indicated that any such naval offensive as was hinted in the Navy statement might be some months developing.

New Squadron Organized

"Steps have been taken," the statement declared, "to create a more intensified and more closely integrated air transportation service for a rapid shipment of necessary personnel and war materials to naval establishments in the Alaskan area.

"On June 24, Squadron No. 5 of the Naval Air Transport Service will be commissioned at Seattle, Wash., headquarters of the new squadron, which will conduct an intensive air transport service with landplanes into the Alaskan area, connecting naval establishments and outposts there with supply centers in the United States."

This will give the Naval Air Transport Service a total of eight squadrons, operating across the Atlantic and Pacific, and, it was said, "is indicative of the increasing pace of the demand for communication lines into Alaska and the Aleutians brought on by expanded Navy operations in that area."

Weather Stops Flying

The report that weather conditions had virtually stopped aerial operations in the Aleutians came from William L. Worden, Associated Press correspondent at Alaskan Defense Command Headquarters.

He said that officers there expect no good flying weather in June or July and but little in August. Only May, September or October offer "any particular hopes for the entire year," he said. The fog has been so bad, it was stated, that Army transport planes have been able to make only a couple of trips between two Aleutian bases in the past 17 days, although there were aircraft and supplies available for several trips daily.

More Withholding Tax Questions Answered

Below are additional questions and answers, prepared by the Treasury, in explanation of the withholding tax effective July 1:

Q. What happens if the amount of my "withholding exemption" changes during the year?

A. You should furnish your employer a new withholding exemption certificate within 10 days of such change in order that your employer may give effect at the earliest date required by law to the change in your marital status or the number of your dependents.

Q. Is my employer required to withhold exactly 20 per cent of my pay above my exemption?

A. No. Your employer may elect to use the "Wage Bracket Tables" provided by law which vary slightly from exact computations at 20 per cent. These tables set definite amounts to be withheld from each pay. For example, in the case of married employes with three dependents, whose weekly wage is anywhere between $50 and $60, the employer is authorized to withhold a flat amount of $2.60 per week, instead of requiring him to figure the exact amount for each individual employe. The law grants the employer this "short-cut" method in order to simplify his job of computing the amount to be withheld for each individual worker. However, cases where "Wage Bracket Tables" are used, the amount of tax withheld will be only slightly different from an exact computation at 20 per cent.

Q. Isn't a large part of last year's income tax canceled or "forgiven"?

A. Yes, from 75 per cent to 100 per cent, depending upon the amount of your taxes for the years 1942 and 1943.

Q. How about that part which is not canceled?

A. The part which is not canceled you still owe to the Government. You pay it in equal parts in March, 1944, and March, 1945.

Q. Since three-fourths of last year's taxes are canceled and I paid one quarter this past March, doesn't that clear me up on my 1942 tax?

A. No. Your quarterly payment of March 15 applies on your 1943 tax. So does the June 15 payment, which must be made. If part of your 1942 tax is "unforgiven," you still owe it to the Government as part of your 1943 tax liability. Payment of one-half of that balance is due in March, 1944, and payment of the other half in March, 1945.

Q. Then the payment of one-fourth I made in March, added to the forgiveness of three-fourths does not free me from paying another quarterly installment on or before June 15.

A. No. You are still required to make that June 15 payment.

Q. What happens to the money my employer withholds?

A. The money withheld from your wages is paid by your employer to the United States Treasury. The amount withheld from you stands to your credit at the Treasury against the amount you owe on income and victory tax.

Q. Does the employer have the use of my money that he has withheld?

A. No. The amount of tax withheld from your wages by your employer is a special fund in trust for the United States.

Q. What proof have I that I have that much credit against my taxes?

A. Shortly after the close of the year or termination of your employment you will be furnished a receipt by your employer showing the amount of the tax deducted and withheld from your pay.

Q. Is the withholding tax an additional income tax like the victory tax?

A. No. It's a deduction from your pay which goes toward paying your regular income tax, including the victory tax.

Making of Cartons For Drinks Banned

The manufacture of paper board cartons to carry soft drinks has been prohibited, the War Production Board announced yesterday.

About 12,000 tons of paper board will be saved annually, WPB estimated, adding that present inventories of the containers are large and should, if carefully used, last out the summer.

The order also imposes restrictions on wrappers for cigarette packages, cigarette cartons, rubber-heel boxes and certain wearing apparel accessories boxes.

War Relocation Dominated By Japs, League Files Show

By Edward Ryan

Post Staff Writer

Representative Dies (Democrat) of Texas announced yesterday that his House Committee on Un-American Activities will begin hearings next week on Japanese activities in this country, on the Government's program for dealing with the Japanese, and on the recent race riots in Detroit.

Dies told a press conference the hearings would be based in part on testimony gathered by a subcommittee on the West Coast and on files seized in Washington 10 days ago from the Japanese-American Citizens League. He said information in the league files, if true, showed the organization "largely dominated," and in part "dictated" policies of the Government's War Relocation Authority.

Evidence of Releases

He said there was evidence Japanese had been released from the relocation centers without sufficiently careful investigation, and he cited the following statement, identified by Robert Stripling, chief Dies investigator, as taken from a report by a Japanese-American Citizens League official writing last April 26 from Washington to his headquarters in Salt Lake City, Utah:

"This is strictly off the record but the project directors alone now have the power to issue indefinite furloughs. They do not need an FBI check. It seems that the prime requisite in determining whether one receives a furlough or not is his answers to Questions 27 and 28 (identified by Stripling as loyalty questions). This unusual procedure is only a temporary one which will permit the WRA here to catch up with several thousand clearance requests which they now have in the files. Once they catch up, they will again resort to the former procedure of an FBI clearance but the project director will have power to issue the furlough in cases of cleared individuals without referring them back to Washington as previously."

Activity in Detroit

Answering a question, Dies said "I think there is evidence" of Japanese who had been released from the camps engaging in subversive activities, "if the definition of subversive includes propaganda designed to spread racial hatred." He said "we will have a number of instances," but he declined to name or describe any, of Japanese released from the camps engaging in that type of propaganda. Instead, he said a report by a Dies investigator had named a Japanese major, now in an American concentration camp, having recruited some 150 Negroes into the Universal Negro Improvement Association in Detroit, but he said the association was no longer active. On another question, Dies said there had been testimony the Ku Klux Klan had recruited a "number of members" in the Detroit area. In summary, he attributed the Detroit riots to the preachments of class and race prejudice by people in this country and outside.

Oil Firm Has Lease Report, but Probers Haven't

By the Associated Press

Members of a House committee investigating the abrogated Standard Oil of California-Navy Department contract for joint development of the Elk Hills petroleum reserve expressed astonishment last night that a copy of the Justice Department report on the contract, withheld from the committee, had been furnished the oil company.

Chairman Peterson (Democrat) of Florida said he would demand that Justice Department officials present the committee with a copy at its next session, on Friday, and that he would remove all restrictions on questioning of the officials.

"There is no reason now," he declared, "why the committee investigation should not get into full swing. Restrictions which I have hitherto allowed to be placed on questioning in order to allow the Navy Department and the President to consider the Justice Department's report, will be removed at our next sesson. The committee now feels it should proceed with the investigation without further hindrance.

Peterson said he had learned from R. Keith Kane, Navy Department attorney, that the report had been given Standard.

Kane explained, Peterson said, that he had been given permission of the Attorney General to send a copy of the report to the company.

Meanwhile, Chairman Hatch (Democrat of New Mexico of the Senate Lands Committee said jurisdictional problems arising from the interest of four congressional committees in the Elk Hills investigation might be solved by appointment of a joint Senate-House committee.

This, Hatch declared, would include members of the House and Senate Naval Affairs Committees and the House and Senate Public Lands Committees.

Gold Mine Closing By WPB to Remain

The War Production Board said yesterday it has decided to keep in effect its order closing nonessential gold mines.

Gold mine operators and some members of Congress from gold mining States recently had urged WPB to set aside or modify the order, contending that it had had a "ruinous" effect on some gold mining communities and it had not greatly contributed to the labor supply in other mines because of the reluctance of miners to leave their homes.

Playwrights End Season With Nothing But Hits

Five-Year-Old Company Has Nice Record; "Arsenic and Old Lace" Cross Roads' First; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

ON SATURDAY, June 26, the Playwrights' Company will end its fifth season in something more than a faint flicker of glory.

Their season's record is one of three outstanding hits in three tries, which is by way of being what the baseball writers would describe as batting 1000. This trilogy of successes was comprised of Maxwell Anderson's "The Eve of St. Mark," S. N. Behrman's "The Pirate," starring the Lunts, and Sidney Kingsley's "The Patriots," winner of the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award as the best native play of the year. When "The Eve of St. Mark" and "The Patriots" close on Saturday night, they will have run up 306 and 172 Broadway performances at the Cort and National theaters, respectively.

BETTY FIELD

In their first five years of theatrical producing, the Playwrights have presented 14 plays in New York, eight of which have enjoyed extensive road tours. The longest run was registered by Robert E. Sherwood's Pulitzer Prize-winning "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," starring Raymond Massey, with 472 Broadway performances to its credit. "The Eve of St. Mark" stands in second place with its 306.

For their total of 14 productions, the Playwrights' Company can point with pardonable pride to an aggregate of 2196 New York performances—an average run of 157 performances, or 20 weeks, per play.

Not bad, by and large.

As to the Playwrights' sixth season, little of definiteness can be prophesied beyond the fact that it will get under way in August with—appropriately enough—"A New Life," a new play by Elmer Rice, with Betty Field (Mrs. Rice in private life) in the leading role. This is not the drama based on the life of Thomas Paine upon which Mr. Rice is reputed to have been working, but a play of contemporary significance. Its Broadway premiere is tentatively set for September, following a brief out-of-town engagement—which one hopes may mean Washington.

Plans of the other three dramatist-members of the firm necessarily are nebulous, as the saying goes. Maxwell Anderson, in the uniform of a foreign correspondent, now is in North Africa, presumably absorbing material for a new play, even if that is not his primary function abroad. Sam Behrman, having just completed work on a Hollywood chore, now is recovering from an attack of the flu at his home in Connecticut. His habitual silence gives no hint of whether his convalescence will contrive to plot a new comedy. As to Robert E. Sherwood, it probably would be best to call up the OWI. Since it is reliably reported that despite contrary rumors he is not expected to resign his post, the probability is that no play will be dripping off the end of his pen for the duration.

Bulletin From the "Old Red Barn"

It is Director Howard F. Wentworth, no less, who finally comes out into the open with the flat declaration that the Cross Roads Theater, over at Baileys Cross Roads, in Virginia, will open its seventh summer season on Wednesday night, June 30, with the current Broadway hit, "Arsenic and Old Lace," Joseph Kesselring's enthrallingly hilarious salute to homicide and elderberry wine.

Many will be heartened by Mr. Wentworth's further announcement that Catherine Ryan, the Cross Roads' richly gifted star, will be seen in the priceless role of Abby Brewster, one of the spinster sisters who go in for gentle murder for sweet charity's sake. The Boris Karloff-Erich von Stroheim role of Jonathan Brewster will be played by W. Walter Timmis, who deserted the stage not long ago to take a major part in Uncle Sam's bigger show as a Lieutenant Commander in the Navy. His wife, Eleanor Morgan Timmis, a character actress of wide experience, will be cast as Martha Brewster. The remainder of the cast would appear to be top-hole, embracing as it does such as Forney Reese, Zack Waters and Marijane Swanson.

The Cross Roads, furthermore, tosses out the reminder that buses marked "Bailey's Cross Roads" leave from in front of the old Post-office Building, Pennsylvania Avenue at Twelfth, nightly at 7, 7:30 and 8 o'clock, with bus service back to town immediately after the final curtain. Also that ticket reservations may be obtained by calling GLEBE-1380, any day after 12 noon. "Arsenic and Old Lace" will run through July 3 and be repeated, Wednesday through Saturday, the following week. So now you know.

Purely on the basis of past performances, it should be quite a show that will be coming off tonight at 8:20 in the Presidential Ballroom of the Statler Hotel. Phil Hayden, who has been in the Army since last September, flew east on furlough last weekend to put the finishing touches on his studio's annual "Revue Intime," already pretty thoroughly whipped into shape by Betty Bigelow, his assistant director. As usual, some 200-odd pupils of the Hayden Studios of the Dance—ranging in ages from 3 and 4 years to semiprofessional adults—will present a capacious and colorful program embracing all forms of the terpsichorean art.

We, Too, Have Suffered!

Speaking of the dance, Mr. Charles F. Young writes under date of June 14, at too great length to quote in full, complaining of a situation in the local theaters presenting stage bills that frequently has irked us, too.

Says he, in part: "I particularly like individual dancing. There have been some very good teams and some very good solo dancers, but to me the sound of the dancer's feet is the part I enjoy most. The noise of the horns and drums makes a deafening racket, so that not only is it impossible to hear the dancers, but it renders one almost ready to do what that song in the last war said should be done to the bugler! Is there not some way to get the orchestra to put on soft music when there are tap or interpretative dancers on the stage?"

I will go Mr. Young one better and include many of the vocalists among those who too often are drowned out. But I will say, also, that it is generally the visiting stage bands and not the local pit orchestras that are the worst offenders.

Sold to the Warners!

Hollywood, June 23.—Now that "Dough Girls" has opened here, sure it's a hit. It can be told that Warner's have bought the picture rights. I only hope they won't have to wait as long to release it as they have "Arsenic and Old Lace" and "Watch on the Rhine."

GRACIE ALLEN

The Theater Guild is toying with idea of making a film of "Oklahoma" itself with Rouben Mamoulian, who directed show, also doing picture. Every major studio in Hollywood wants it but they figure why not keep the profits in the family. Well, why not?"

Howard Lang, since the record run in Chicago of "Good Night Ladies" is going into production of "School for Brides." No, he hasn't asked Mrs. Charlie Chaplin to star in it.

Marcia Winn of the Chicago Tribune is visiting here getting stories for that paper.

Patience Does It

Gracie Allen was bound and determined to get her murder mystery produced. So, sure enough, her son Ronnie, aged 9, has put one over on his school class, and they'll act it out with Grace and George in the audience. Wonder if Gracie will start shouting author.

Paramount's excited about signing Johnny Coy, New York Versailles dancer, for Betty Hutton in "Incendiary Blonde." Already, Metro's tried to borrow him for "Broadway Rhythm." He reports August 1. Even after 14 years of marriage Paul Whiteman doesn't like to start any performance 'til he catches sight of Margaret Livingston in the audience.

Fame at Last

Michael O'Shea, who made his debut in "Lady of Burlesque," finds himself famous at last. The Ashkins of St. Louis named a baby for him. Pinky Lee, whose dancing and comedy was mighty good in that picture, is headed back to Broadway. Victor McLaglen got a baby Austin through a will and a friend's death. Marjorie Reynolds goes into "Ministry of Fear" with Ray Milland while waiting for the next Irving Berlin-Mark Sandrich-Bing Crosby-Fred Astaire picture, which is almost as far off as the end of the war.

Akim Tamiroff must take off 25 pounds for Deanna Durbin's next. Doctor ordered a steak diet. But where, oh where, can he find them? Twentieth Century testing young Scott Edwards, protege of the Wendell Willkies.

A Hot Time

Tonight at marine base on Mojave desert I'll have a chance to become acquainted all over again with that branch of the service when I was guest on the Vox Pop program with Ray Bolger and Ned Sparks. It emanates from there. It's going to be a warm welcome—120 degrees in the shade, and no shade!

Sorry I couldn't get on to New York to present the Motion Picture Magazine award for the best picture to Sol Lesser for "Stage Door Canteen" on the Guy Lombardo show. Am I weeping! Imagine having a chance to fly to New York and being too busy to do it.

The industry's already setting up it's wailing wall. In July pictures already set for production will need 6000 extras with only about 300 available.

Veloz and Yolanda fly to Honolulu to give concerts at Pearl Harbor in September by permission of the Navy. Only one show allowed civilians.

New York, June 23.

The favorite, as of last week, for the post of United States Minister to Canada is Ray Atherson, Chief of the European Affairs Division of the State Department . . . The Army has obtained a 12-minute sound-movie reel of the late Sergt. Meyer Levin, who was Colin Kelly's bombardier, taken while he was at Midway. It will be incorporated in the United States Army Newsreel. A copy of it will be presented to Levin's parents . . . When Solicitor General Charles Fahy accepts the court job vacated by Judge Vinson, the new economic stabilizer, his successor in the Department of Justice is expected to be Wendell Burge.

MIRIAM HOPKINS

Hollywood is snaring Sinclair Lewis. He'll probably leave this week, with a movie contract . . . Major General Cannon, who recently was promoted in Africa, has had to send to the States for his additional stars. He couldn't find any extra ones in all of Africa . . . Eddie Cantor's daughter, Marilyn, will make her legitimate theater debut in "See My Lawyer," with Block & Sully. It opens at the Adams Theater in Newark this week . . . Boris Kostelanetz, the Assistant United States Attorney here, will be named as a special prosecutor to go to Chicago and try the cases of the defendants charged with extortion, in the Bioff-Browne movie indictments.

Two years ago John Whittaker, the noted war correspondent, was kicked out of Italy. Instead of accepting another newspaper job, he decided to enlist in the armed forces. The doctors told him that he needed a spine-breaking operation, to cure his bad back. Whittaker went on a lecture tour, to raise money for that operation . . . When he left the hospital, he tried to join the Marines. The examining physicians informed him that his back wouldn't be healed for at least another year. Whittaker is spending that year in Africa, for the Office of Strategic Services. He has General Holcomb's promise that as soon as the year is over, the Marines will accept him.

John Gunther's "Inside Europe" was published in 1936. It was completely rewritten and published anew in 1938, 1940 and 1942. There won't be another "Inside Europe" in 1944. Instead, when the peace conference comes, he'll write a short book about it and will call it "Inside Tomorrow" . . . The high altitude of Mexico City is impairing Magda Lupescu's health. That's another reason why King Carol is anxious to bring here here

A young man now in Africa owns a small paper in Kansas. He sent a 300-word story which had to be cleared through the Army's Public Relations Bureau. The officers who read it liked it so much that instead of approving it for use in the Kansas paper, they sent it to a magazine and forwarded the $350 payment to the young man in Africa . . . Andre Maurois received his clearance papers and went to Africa . . . Miriam Hopkins' son, who never has seen his mother on a stage, will have his wish fulfilled. Instead of going to camp, he's coming to New York to spend the summer here, where he can see her star in "The Skin of Our Teeth."

Jim Rowe, Assistant Attorney General, is being commissioned as a captain. Oscar Cox probably will replace him . . . The Association of Radio News Analysts has become an ultra-exclusive organization. Scene Brings War Close to Home

Hollywood.—While enacting his own death scene before the movie cameras, the personal tragedy of war was brought close home to Guinn (Big Boy) Williams.

The husky actor in "Minesweeper," a Pine-Thomas Paramount production, plays the part of a Navy chief gunner's mate who is killed when his boat strikes a Jap mine. As he worked in the explosion scene he had in his pocket a letter which he had just received that morning from relatives in San Angelo, Tex.

The letter announced that Big Boy's nephew, 22-year-old Lieut. Byron Andrews, Army pilot, had been killed in action in the South Pacific.

Bette Davis Will Too Make That One!

Hollywood, June 23 (INS).—Don't let anybody tell you that Bette Davis isn't going to do "Ethan Frome" and that Joan Crawford will take her place.

BETTE DAVIS

Jack Warner has handed it to Henry Blanke to produce and it may precede "The Corn Is Green." Bette gets back in a few weeks and her schedule is four pictures—"Ethan "Frome," "The Corn Is Green," "Mr. Skeffington" and "Tower of Strength."

"The Tower of Strength" is by Baroness Lili Hatvany, who adapted "Escape." The baroness arrives on the Warner lot this week to confer with Robert Buckner, producer of the film.

George Jessel and Lois Andrews almost stopped the show when they walked into the Biltmore Theater for the opening of "Doughgirls"—Lois, in an ermine coat that swept the floor, orchids in her hair and the most decollette gown Hollywood has seen since the war. Georgie took it big, too. He's doing all right in the Hollywood he scorned. Maybe he will make a good picture. He has had enough experience. At any rate, the idea given him for his first musical is "And the Yanks Laugh." Twentieth idea is to get big name entertainers to take part in what is supposed to be overseas entertainment for the boys.

Jed Harris, who usually breezes into town like a flash, and out again before anyone sets eyes on him, is really working here now. He is getting Franz Werfel's story, "Jacobowsky and the Colonel," in shape to produce for Twentieth Century-Fox. Jed, who is one of Broadway's producers, seems to be settling down to movies. After he confers with Werfel he will discuss "Georgia Boy" with Erskine Caldwell, for that recent best seller has also been handed him. His third picture deal for Twentieth is an untitled musical.

Eight months ago Harry Harris, who had been a motion picture director in the silent days, wrote to me and said that he was in the Santa Clara Hospital penniless, but that if he could have artificial limbs he would be able to work. He had no means to buy those limbs. I took up the matter with Jean Hersholt of the Motion Picture Relief Fund. Now comes a letter saying that Mr. Harris is in the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital and that the executive committee of the Motion Picture Relief Fund has voted to buy artificial limbs for him. I am told if the California rehabilitation department has concrete evidence of future employment, it is possible they would give the limbs to Mr. Harris. How about finding him a job?

A line or two: Henry Willson has given up his agency duties to take the post of assistant to Dan O'Shea, president of David Selznick's Vanguard Co. . . . Big-hearted Paramount told Alan Ladd they would take care of his fan mail for the duration and they have had to hire four girls to take care of it. He gets 2000 letters a day . . . Pals of Bill Pierce's in Hollywood (he used to be a P. A. at "U" before joining the Tank Corps) will be sorry to hear he is in the hospital at Fort Knox, Ky., with a broken arm and a crushed leg . . . James Craig doesn't care who knows that he hails from "Frog Jump," Tenn. . . . Lou Costello had to remain in bed for the festivities, but he was present and accounted for at the first party since his illness when he and Bud Abbott feted the Eddie Shermans on their twenty-first anniversary Sunday.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Mary Hay Barthelmess, Dick's daughter, is now in the WAVES; Fanny Brice and John Conti, who remain Hollywood's most constant twosome, tripping the light fantastic at the Palladium.

The report that Gloria Vanderbilt and Pat Di Cicco are expecting the stork is true, according to a friend who dined with them in the East; Martha Scott's husband, Carlton Alsop, joins her in Salt Lake City, June 26. Martha goes to Utah on location for Republic and Carlton comes here from New York to reunite with her after three months' separation.

Betty Grable begged for an additional three days in New York, so she'll get back Thursday; Ernest Hemingway has wired Ingrid Bergman he is coming on from Cuba for the "For Whom the Bell Tolls" opening.

Find New Way To Crash Hollywood

Hollywood.—The surest ways to crash Hollywood this season seem to be through Europe, Africa and the far Pacific.

Keeping abreast of the war headlines, the film studios are culling most of their dramatic material right out of the dispatches from the front. Which means that they're not only glorifying heroes, but finding an increasing need for seasoned members of the armed forces to act as technical advisers on war pictures.

Arkansas Doctor

Lieut. Comdr. Corydon M. Wassell, for instance, is a former Arkansas country doctor who probably never expected to see the inside of a film studio, let alone be the hero of a C. B. De Mille epic. But that's just what has happened, all because the doctor won the Navy Cross and a fireside chat tribute from President Roosevelt for rescuing nine helplessly wounded American sailors from Java during the Jap invasion of the Dutch East Indies.

Now he's acting as technical adviser on "The Story of Dr. Wassell," part of the proceeds of which will go to the Navy Relief Society.

Lieut. Eunice Hatchitt, Army nurse, went through the entire Bataan campaign and was evacuated from Corregidor by airplane less than a week before the last American outpost in the Philippines fell.

Col. Tom W. Doyle commanded the combat team of the Firty-fifth Infantry, Filipino Scouts, and was evacuated by submarine three days before the surrender of Corregidor.

Both Advising

Now both are acting as technical advisers on Paramount's "So Proudly We Hail," starring Claudette Colbert, Paulette Goddard and Veronica Lake.

Capt. Lewis S. Chappelear commanded a machine gun emplacement on Bataan. M.-G.-M. has borrowed him from the Army to get the benefit of his experience in recreating details of just such a gun emplacemnt for "Bataan Patrol," starring Robert Taylor.

Wei F. Hsueh went through four years of war against Japan in his native China. Helen Kuo went through two bombings of her home town, Canton. And both technical advised on Paramount's "China," which stars Alan Ladd and Loretta Young.

Italian Raids Concentrated On Railroads

said. All the Allied planes returned safely.

From North African bases, other Allied airmen flew out yesterday in patrols and reconnaissance preparing for new assaults, and headquarters announced that coastal airforce planes sank a medium-sized enemy vessel off the southeast coast of Sardinia Monday night, and attacked barges.

(In London, an R. A. F. commentator indicated that Rome might fall under Allied bombsights, for he stressed that the Italian Capital could definitely and permanently be considered safe only if it were declared an open city, and if the Allies were convinced that it was not contributing to Axis war strength.

(This, he emphasized, did not mean it had been decided to bomb Rome. The commentator, who cannot be identified, declared the sole purpose of bombing was to reduce the enemy's strength and resistance and bleed their war power to save Allied lives. Rome's military and industrial importance should not be overshadowed by the presence of the Vatican and other ancient shrines, he added.)

Reconnaissance pictures, the Northwest African Air Force Command announced, disclosed that 40 per cent of the royal arsenal at Naples had been destroyed by Flying Fortresses and Wellingtons in heavy smashes at the great seaport and rail center for southern Italy.

The photographs showed severe damage in the industrial region, at least three direct hits on a torpedo factory, smashing of large portions of an air frame works, hits on artillery barracks, motor transport depots, 25 hits on the central station and railway sidings, 10 more upon locomotive sheds, and others upon the roundhouse, a turntable and freight cars. The entire motor transport and store depot was ruined at nearby Cancello.

Other pictures showed heavy damage by American bombs to railway objectives in Salerno, 30 miles southeast of Naples, and that at least 40 cars had been destroyed by the American Mitchell attack upon Battipaglia near Salerno, with damage so great that no rolling stock had moved along there since the attack.

tests June 8.

Simulated daylight raids also were held over the same area Tuesday and yesterday.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of civilian defense, said his office did not even know the test was scheduled and that he had gone to bed when the signals began sounding. He went to the control center, where he remained during the entire test.

While the red signal was of short duration, the length of the first blue brought protests from many persons, including taxicab drivers. A number of violations of the "lights out" rule was reported. A series of lighted windows, including one brilliant red light with another red light on the front of the Earle Building, glowed during all signals.

During the long blue crowds thronged downtown streets, but were herded quickly into shelters and store openings when the red finally came.

In further simulation of an actual raid, fighter planes were sent aloft to intercept the bombers. Observers from the ground were of the opinion that the planes spotted by the searchlights in the first blue were interceptors and that the second group, in the second blue, were bombers, although this was not confirmed by the Army.

is now more than 24 per cent above January 1, 1941, levels.

Government officials believe that continuation of the rise in the cost of living will make an adjustment in the "Little Steel" yardstick necessary to compensate partially for the increase above 15 per cent.

This was revealed by WLB's action in the coal case. Although the board denied the miners' demands for a wage increase or for "portal-to-portal" pay adjustment, it specifically provided for reopening of the wage provisions in the event of a change in national stabilization policy.

Railroad unions will meet today to consider deveolpments.

One possible solution suggested was an order providing for pay ment of time and a half to railroad workers after 40 hours instead of after 48 as at present, along with a small additional adjustment, possibly 3 or 4 cents an hour, to the lower-paid workers.

Presented as yesterday's speaker, Columnist Lawrence recalled homefront confusion, and cautioned that there is a "war within ourselves that transcends all other wars." He added that "our passions get the better of us too soon," and said too frequently we use the "club of coercion" as a first, rather than as a last, resort.

Christian Teachings a Hope

Other legislators drifted into the meeting from another part of the restaurant as Senator Wiley was calling for comment on "friction."

"Christian teachings are the only hope of solving our domestic problems," spoke up Senator Willis, seated near white-thatched Senator Davis, who a few minutes later voiced his appraisal of religion's value in his life. Religion to him was something solid and fundamental, he declared, recalling that his grandfather had read the Bible daily for 40 years.

Curtin Wins Vote On Food Charges

Canberra, Australia (Thursday), June 24 (AP).—Prime Minister John Curtin's supporters today defeated by a 27-to-26 vote a nonconfidence motion offered by former Prime Minister Arthur W. Fadden, opposition leader, who charged the government with bungling food and manpower problems.

The vote averted an immediate election, but the consensus was that Curtin would seek an early dissolution of Parliament to make way for another election.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

New York, June 23.—Bob Considine packed his foot trunk today and is awaiting orders from the War Department, the latest sports writer to turn war correspondent. It was inevitable. Bob is synonymous with the top assignment.

POVICH

Watch for his stuff from the fighting fronts. The Post is one of the lucky papers who prints him. Considine doesn't know, yet, exactly where he's going, or how, but the War Department will get him to a place of action, and then his stories will start to flow. They'll be beauts. They always are.

The International News Service took Considine out of Washington eight years ago and dropped him into toughest sports-writing competition in the world, against the big salaried New York columnists. He wrote his way to the top in six months. The slick mags grabbed him up. They quickly discovered this new guy could write. Articles or fiction.

He always could write like hell. During the last World Series, we watched Bob bat out a swell column on the base-running of the Cardinals in exactly nine minutes, with his typewriter on a baggage wagon and the conductor yelling "All aboard." His fingers were playing a tune on his portable.

He could write when he was a $35-a-week clerk in the State Department with ideas that some day he might be in the Consular Service. He used to cover tennis, at space rates, for The Post. He could make a tennis story graphic, honest. We hired him on our sports staff, with a prayer that he could write baseball and football and make it interesting.

He was Washington' tennis champion at the time. Bill Tilden was his hero. Bob's tennis was good. He could have gone far in in the Nationals but in Washington he found no competition to point him up for better company. And he couldn't make a career of tennis, because there was his mom and his kid brother whose breadwinner he was.

After we worked with him on The Post, we worked against him when he moved up the street to the Herald. He was competition, but still a friend, and a swell guy. Whatever improvement took place in our own work we date from the first days when we were writing against Considine, in the training camps, on the road with the ball clubs, at the derbys, or in the fight camps. He set such a terrific pace for his opposition. His copy would show you up, unless you surpassed yourself and sometimes then it was futile.

He'd make a ball game or a horse race breathe with his descriptive and a moving drama out of a world series. He'd tap out the crisp little words that spin and twist and bite, and he'd catch the scene and the action and make it live on paper.

The sports writing profession, like any other, can be fitted with petty jealousies and bickering, but fellows in it have had hot debates over who likes Considine best. He's always giving himself the worst of it, whether it's picking up a weighty check or writing some incapacitated guy's story before he does his own.

During one season at Biloxi, Considine covered up a fellow reporter for 10 days while the guy was recuperating from a battle with Bacchus. Bob was so conscientious about it, that actually he was ghosting better stuff for his opposition than he was writing for his own paper.

His sense of humor doesn't hurt Considine any, either. It finds its way into his stuff and gives him a wonderful change of pace. In his early days with The Post, he composed a short story about tennis which he entitled the "Enchanted Racket." He tried to sell it to a dozen publications. He knows now it was crude, and laughs about his rejection slips. Every ten days that story came back to Bob in the return mails. He still keeps it in his library. Years ago he lubbed it, "The Homing Pigeon."

Mildred, that's Bob's wife and one smart girl, hasn't been any drawback to him. She can write, too, and we've seen her out write him. Mil told Bob he was a great writer in their pre-nuptial days and challenged him to quit his Government job and get on a newspaper. She wouldn't marry him unless he did.

Next best to seeing the war front for ourselves, we'll like to read the Considine stories. Bob's way . . .

Armed Troops Watch as Tigers Split Bill With Cleveland

Newhouser Wins Opener, 3-1; Heath's Homer Wins Nightcap in Eleventh Inning, 9 to 6

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 23.—Under the careful scrutiny of 350 armed troops, the Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians divided a doubleheader today at Briggs Stadium, the Tigers taking the opener, 3 to 1, on Hal Newhouser's five-hitter and the Indians winning the nightcap, 9 to 6, on Jeff Heath's eleventh-inning homer.

The rifle-bearing soldiers, members of the Michigan State troops, were stationed in small groups throughout the vast stadium as a precaution against further manifestations of Detroits' racial strife. Club officials expressed the opinion that the presence of troops was unprecedented in baseball.

Throughout the five-hour program, there wasn't a spot of trouble. Later some of the troops clustered behind the Cleveland right field bullpen, chatting with the players and collecting autographs.

The Tigers spotted Newhouser a two-run first inning lead on Roger Cramer's single, a triple by Joe Wood and Dick Wakefield's fly. Joe Hoover singled across another in the sixth. Jack Salveson, who left in the first inning, went down to his second defeat against four victories.

The nightcap was a battle of home runs. The Tribe had a five-run second inning off little Hal White, but homers by Pinky Higgins, Dic Wakefield and Rudy York, the last with a mate aboard in the eighth that tied the score at six runs, sent the game into extra play.

In the eleventh, Heath belted a two-run homer, his third of the season, off Henry (Prince) Oane, Hawaiian right-hander who signed today and was the third Tiger pitcher. Buddy Rosar singled home another run for good measure. That permitted Lefty Al Milnar to gain his first 1943 victory.

Pirates' Lopez Fined $100; Disputed Ump

Pittsburgh, June 23 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates disclosed today that catcher Al Lopez had been fined $100 by Ford Frick, president of the National League, for his dispute with Umpire George Magurkirth on a called third strike in yesterday's game at Chicago.

Lopez was called out in the ninth with a man on third and two men out. The Cubs won, 1 to 0.

Bosox Beat A's On Homer by Culberson, 1-0

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 23.—Rookie Leon Culberson's fourth-inning home run gave the Boston Red Sox a 1-to-0 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics before 8053 fans who sat through an hour-and-five-minute blackout at Shibe Park tonight. It was the A's sixth straight loss. Don Black of the A's allowed four hits, and Oscar Judd of the Bosox five.

The victory enabled the Bosox to top the .500 mark for the first time this season, and put them in third place, half a game ahead of the Cleveland Indians.

Clary's Big Error Loses Nightcap as Bonham Stops Nats; Carrasquel Loses

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

New York, June 23.—The Yankees late this afternoon recovered from their embarrassment at having been shut out, 8 to 0 by their former property, Milo Candini, and snatched the second game of a double header from the Nat's 4 to 0.

Until the Yankees found themselves in possession of four gift runs—the gift of the Wild-throwing Third Baseman Ellis Clary—in the second game, and until Ernie Bonham completed his shutout of the Nat's the Yankees were very unhappy indeed.

They were unhappy because big Candini had given them an awful going-over in that first game.

They saw the pitcher they traded to the Nats last winter as a sore-armed ne're-do-well make them look like a puny lot.

Where Was Milo?

There was more than a little scoffing when Candini went to the mound for the opener. Sure enough, the guy had won six straight and was unbeaten, but he hadn't opposed the Yankee's yet. Last week, in a five-game series with New York, Candini didn't pitch at all. Were the Nats scared to risk him against the Yanks?

But Candini was out there today, against the Yankees' top pitcher, Spud Chandler, and he was pouring it on, for his seventh straight win. Pouring it on and rubbing it in. Because not only did he shut out the Yanks to the dismay of the 12,588 customers, not only did he allow merely one Yankee to get past first base and hold them to six hits, but he also laid to with his bat.

Candini, as blithely as you please, clouted home one of the Nat's runs with a home run. He led off the eighth inning against Bill Zuber with an enormous wallop over Center Fielder Tuck Stainback's head, and legged it all the way home when the ball scooted to the center field flag pole, 460 yards away.

By 3:30 p. m. thanks to Candini's efforts, the Nats' had narrowed the Yanks' league lead to a mere game. It burgeoned back to two games by the end of the day when Alex Carrasquel lost a duel with Ernie Bonham, who held the Nats to six hits.

Clary Loses Game

All four of the Yankee runs in that second game spawned from an error by Clary in the third inning, and all of them were unearned. Clary put Carrasquel deep in trouble when, with the bases full and two out, he threw a grounder off Lindell's bat low and into the dirt past first baseman, Mickey Vernon.

The Nat's didn't dally with Chandler in the opener. They went out and got two runs immediately, after he filled the bases with walks in the first inning. Former Yankee Gerry Priddy drove the pair home with a looping single to right.

They got two more in [illegible] inning after Sullivan led off with a single. Stirnweiss contributed a wild throw on Case's grounder and Spence singled home one run, with Vernon getting home another with an infield out. Bob Johnson upped the Nats' lead to 5 to 0 in the fifth, when he led off with a single, stole second and scored on Clary's single to center.

They made it 7 to 0 in the sixth on hits by Sullivan, Case and Johnson, and an error by Etten. Their eighth run was Candini's homer.

Meanwhile Candini was making the Yanks rue the day they tradd the league's leading pitcher to Washington.

That second game defeat was hard for the Nats to take. Carrasquel had two Yankees out in the third inning with none on when the trouble commenced. Frankie Crosetti, back in the Yankee lineup in a desperate move by McCarthy to add some power, beat out a hit to Sullivan. Stainback's

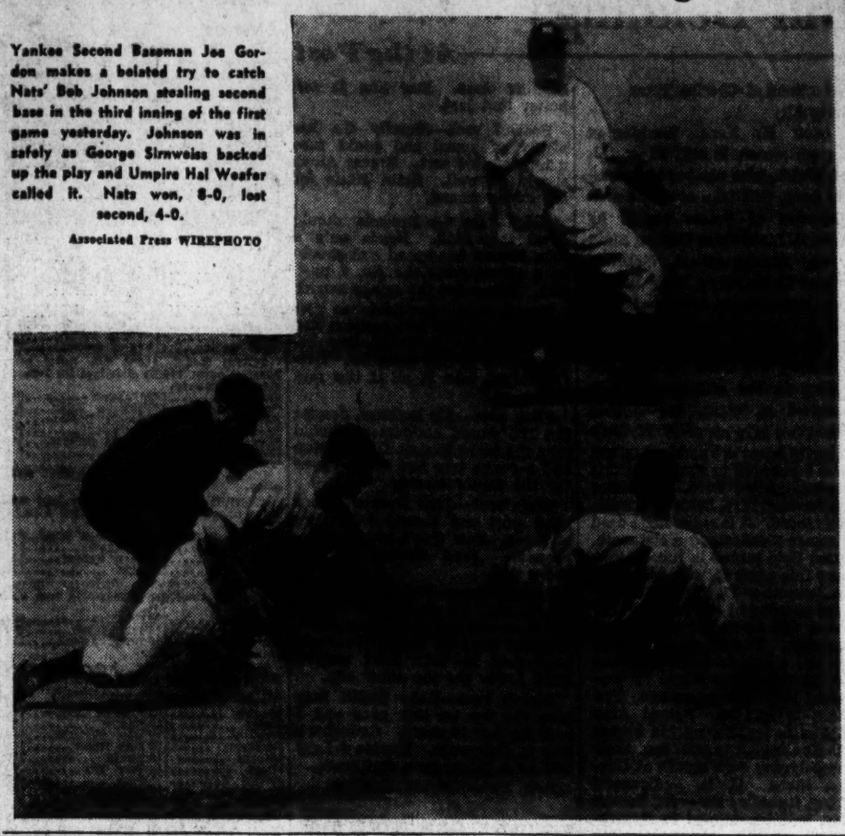
Bob Johnson Adds to Nats' Stealing Laurels



Yankee Second Baseman Joe Gordon makes a belated try to catch Nats' Bob Johnson stealing second base in the third inning of the first game yesterday. Johnson was in safely as George Stirnweiss backed up the play and Umpire Hal Weafer called it. Nats won, 8-0, lost second, 4-0.

Chisox Edge Browns, 4-3; Gain Ground

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 23.—The Chicago White Sox moved another step from the American League basement today with a 4-to-3 victory over the eighth-place Browns.

Two-run outbursts in the fourth and fifth frames sewed up the contest, although the Brownies fought back with one run in the sixth and two more in the seventh.

Guy Curtright stretched his consecutive hitting streak to 18 games with a brace of singles, but it was the reliable Luke Appling with two timely singles and Jim Grant with a double and a single who led the parade.

'Hank' Greenberg Again in Tiger Uniform—for Day

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 23.—Capt. Henry Greenberg of the Army Air Forces became lanky Hank Greenberg, home-run slugger of the Detroit Tigers, just for one afternoon today at Briggs Stadium.

Greenburg, touring Midwestern colleges to inspect athletic facilities for Army trainees, stopped off long enough to work out with the Tigers in pregame practice. He looked good at the plate and likewise at first base and leftfield.

"We sure could use big Hank out there," sighed Manager Steve O'Neill as Greenberg pulled on his khaki and left the park.

'Skins Sign 'Red' Johnson As Trainer

The Redskins yesterday signed Allan W. (Red) Johnson, formerly of Lafayette College, as head trainer for the 1943 season. Johnson succeeds Ray (Doc) Mauro, who resigned at the conclusion of the '42 season to accept a chief specialist's rating in the Navy. Bauro has since left the Navy due to a minor physical ailment and is working in a defense plant in Seattle.

Johnson left Lafayette after 16 years as head trainer of Leopard sports teams. He started as freshman trainer in 1927.

Johnson has a wide background in training and physical education which included several instruction trips throughout the country.

Redskin and Washington baseball club officials will meet this afternoon to iron out the conflict of October 3, which finds the Nats scheduled to meet the Tigers and the Redskins versus the New York Giants, both at Griffith Stadium.

The Redskins are expected to either play a night game during the week of October 3, or play at Brooklyn that day and switch the original Dodger dates. Clark Griffith yesterday said the Nats definitely would play the Tigers on the date, regardless of the team's standing in the pennant race.

Basil to Return As A. L. Umpire

Chicago, June 23 (AP).—Steve Basil, American League umpire on the voluntary retired list since last December, will return to active duty Friday, President Will Harridge said today.

Dodgers Twice Thump Giants, 7-2 and 6-0

Brooklyn, June 23 (AP).—The Broklyn Dodgers hammered their crosstown rivals, the New York Giants, into helplessness twice today, 7 to 2 and 6 to 0, and crept within half a game of the National League lead, but these joyous tidings were mixed with disappointment for the big crowd of Flatbush fans at Ebbets Field.

Although they were obviously cheered at the sight of the Dodgers running their winning streak to six games, what the 27,547 paying customers seemed to want most was for old Curtis (Daniel Boone) Davis to get a no-hitter in the second game.

They strained with him as inning after inning went by without the Giants getting a safety. For 7 2-3 innings the Giants got only one man to first base, this on a throw into the dirt by Shortstop Albie Glossop in the first.

Then with two out in the eighth, wily Dick Bartell, a veteran of 17 years in the National League, slapped a clean single into left field and received a tremendous chorus of boos for his pains. In the ninth inning the Giants got another hit, a single by Johnny Rucker with two out, and Glossop made another bad throw to first, but their only damage of the day was to Davis' no-hitter.

In the first game they were held to five hits by Rube Melton and scored both their runs in the fourth, one on an error by Arky Vaughan and the other on a walk with the bases loaded.

The Dodgers came back with two in the fifth, four in the seventh and one in the eighth, Dolph Camilli's fourth homer, to win easily. All four runs in the seventh were forced in on walks. They took charge of the second game with

Mort Cooper Fails, Cards Lose, 8-3

Reds Turn Back St. Louis; Lead Cut to ½ Game; Beggs Is Winner

By International News Service

Cincinnati, June 23.—St. Louis' lead in the National League pennant race was cut to half a game today when the Cardinals were stopped 8 to 3 by the Cincinnati Reds.

Meanwhile, the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers took both ends of a double-header from the New York Giants.

The Reds emerged from a four-game losing streak to hand Morton Cooper his fourth loss as against nine wins. All around, it was a bad day for Cooper and a good one for Gee Walker.

Before being chased in the fourth, Cooper gave up six hits, walked three, balked on one and was guilty of a wild pitch. Walker's two singles knocked in three runs. His fourth-inning hit broke a 3-3 tie.

Joe Beggs blanked the Cards the last five innings and was credited with the win after relieving Ray Starr.

Mrs. Frye's Makann Wins Charles Town Track Feature Race

Terry May, Ballarosa Are Beaten

Jockey Sam Palumbo Rides $4 Favorite; Jockey Stan Austin Injured in Fifth

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 23.—Mrs. Leon Frye's Makann, who turned in the fastest 4½-furlong time of the meeting, recently, ran right back to the figure of 0:49 2-5 today and won the sixth race, a purse affair and the best offering on the Wednesday program. Makann, ridden by Jockey Sammy Palumbo, finished a length and a half in front of the Shenandoah Stable's Terry May with Charles Nelson's Ballarosa third in the group of seven. The winner was a $4 favorite and showed her heels to her opposition over a fast track.

Terry May, making her first start in a month, was first to show in front but Makann collared her and took command before the leaders reached the far turn. Makann then drew out gradually and closed with good energy to hold Terry May safe at the end. Ballarosa was hard ridden and was a game third.

Jockey Stanley Austin, who has been riding in brilliant form here, rode two winners before being injured on Honeymaid in the fifth race. He struck his leg coming out of the gate and was unable to do the favorite justice. The winner was H. G. Tonkin's Oomph. Austin cancelled his mount on War Page in the feature but attempted to pilot Ultima Thule in the eighth event. The boy limped back to the jockey's room.

Austin opened the program by winning with Sampler, owned by Mrs. E. D. Sowers of Washington. The $7.60 shot set the stage for a $235 pay-off in the daily double. The second event was won by W. Cedar's Exhort. The 9-year-old was well ridden by Jockey Mack Mayer and returned an individual mutuel of $23.40.

Dear Al:

Dion K. Kerr, Washington trainer-owner, is still ill and J. M. Welsh, who has been successful here, will take over the conditioning of horses owned by John A. Manfuso at Garden State Park. Among others, Welsh is taking C. E. Farr's Baby Boy to the New Jersey track. Myron Zimmerman, 10-year-old son of Trainer Willie Zimmerman, is spending the week here. With racing in the afternoon and a carnival at night, the likable youngster is in his glory. Myron's favorite horse is Tumble Boy, the best 2-year-old to show here this season. Allen Caid, the plater performing here, holds an American record. It is at the little used distance 2 miles and a sixteenth. Allen Caid turned in time of 2:40 over this track for the odd route on December 11, 1940. The annual running of the James Sager Purse will be staged on Friday's program. The track record for six and a half furlongs here was set in the Sager Purse by Imperial Impy two years ago. The mark is 1:18 3-5. Friend Alan Clarke is legging up his horses at Huntington Farm for their campaigning next month at Garden State. P. H. Faulconer's string, including the crack Roman Boy, will be shipped to Hagerstown tomorrow. He may van his star back for a race later in the meeting here. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—Bart O'War appears best in this field of juveniles and I'm going to string along. Louis L belongs close. Dar She Is can better that last.

Second race—Merrily Go has plenty of speed and could take a race of this sort. Breeze Along should go well. Satin Marie for the minor award.

Third race — Brocade should down this kind. Needs only a ride. Rostan has speed and should be a threat from the No. 1 position. Tippy for the minor award.

Fourth race—Acquaintance gets in light, gets the rail position and appears best. Belfonds Boy belongs close in this company. Ler-Lin might take it all if the rain comes up.

Fifth race—Air Defense, despite the 120 pound assignment should take the main money. Ginger Man had a rough trip last out. Rawson for the minor award.

Sixth race—Jack Horner gets a good post and should take care of these. Part One's last was impressive. Free Trader for the show end.

Seventh race—Knights Duchess was beaten by near-track record last time out and may resume her winning ways in this. Woodvale Lass gets in with light weight. Hard Loser for the show end.

Eighth race—Kate Smith may take the top on this gang and I look for her to score. Groucher's Boy is dangerous. Hoptown Lass will be a threat on a fast track.

Best Bet—Knights Duchess.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAMPLER, $7.60, $6.00, $4.20; MEADOW SUN, $7.60, $5.40; BUCKLE TIME, $17.80.

SAMPLER broke alertly, dropped out of it, was kept on outside and wore down leaders to win drawing away. MEADOW SUN took slight lead in midstretch, but could not stave off closing rush of winner. BUCKLE TIME tired after setting pace for over three-eighths. TINTO raced well up while on outside early, but faltered.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 1:46. Off at 1:47½. Winner, W. Cedar's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—EXHORT, $23.40, $17.30, $6.40; MERCILESS, $17.60, $6.60; SPECIALIST, $9.40.

EXHORT assumed command at once under alert handling, set good pace under strong handling and just lasted. MERCILESS closed with a rush after racing close up throughout. SPECIALIST was third ridden in stretch and closed some ground. THE BERRIES forced pace for six furlongs and tired. PIGEON suffered bad racing luck.

Daily Double, SAMPLER and EXHORT, Paid $235

THIRD RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:13. Off at 2:13½. Winner, A. and D. Jardon's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CELESTI F., $4.00, $3.00, $2.80; GREY FLASH, $5.20, $3.60; NEVER HOME, $3.00.

CELESTI F., not hurried early, came around leader to take command and was kept to a hand drive to end. GREY FLASH was unable to stay with NEVER HOME early, hung on willingly and was second best. NEVER HOME outran field in opening quarter, but faltered in stretch. CHILLELEVALLE closed some ground. MADISON SQUARE broke down during the running.

FOURTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:43. Off at 2:43½. Winner, Wayne Kendrick's ch. m. (5) by Dunlin—Lady Fanshawe. Trained by H. B. Lodge. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:16.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISTY EYE, $10.20, $4.60, $4.00; CLAY HILL, $3.60, $3.40; LAUGH AND PLAY, $5.80.

MISTY EYE showed good early speed to take command in opening strides, was never seriously threatened and won under a mild drive. CLAY HILL was forced to lose ground, lacked speed early and came with a rush in last quarter. LAUGH AND PLAY forced pace to stretch and weakened. MIGHTY BUSY stumbled entering backstretch and failed to threaten seriously thereafter.

FIFTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:06. Off at 3:11. Winner, H. G. Tonkin's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OOMPH, $14.20, $6.80, $3.60; TWO STRAWS, $5.80, $4.20; STADIUM, $3.00.

OOMPH was hard ridden to obtain lead early, saved ground while setting pace and just lasted. TWO STRAWS moved nearest winner early and would have won in another astride. STADIUM was within striking distance from start and had no mishaps. HONEYMAID was off last and was weakly ridden.

SIXTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $300; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:36. Off at 3:38½. Winner, Mrs. Leon Frye's br. f. (4) by Time Maker—Snifty Ann. Trained by V. Arthur. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:49⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAKAAN, $4.00, $3.20, $2.40; TERRY MAY (entry), $3.00, $2.20; BALLAROSA, $2.40.

MAKAAN opened long lead early and was never threatened while being kept to punishment to end. TERRY MAY, off alertly, was unable to keep up with top one early and was closing ground on winner. BALLAROSA was in contending position early, but failed to rally. WAR PAGE saved ground, but could not threaten. MARDI GRAS showed nothing.

SEVENTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:06. Off at 4:06½. Winner, Mrs. C. B. Inacoe's ch. m. TROSTAR	(Dufford)	114	1	3	7	7	7	7	24.00

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DOCTOR'S NURSE, $9.40, $4.60, $4.20; TETRATOWN, $3.00, $2.80; ALIMONY KID, $4.80.

DOCTOR'S NURSE, in nearest pursuit of pace, went around leader to take command and drew out gradually in stretch run. TETRATOWN assumed command nearing first turn, was hard ridden when challenged and had no excuses. ALIMONY KID caught only a tired horse. BARRACA weakened after racing in contention early. The others showed nothing.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 4:35. Off at 4:36. Winner, Charles Stallings' b. g. (6) by Royal Minstrel—Damasain. Trained by V. Arthur. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:47⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SINGING STEEL, $4.90, $4.00, $3.40; SEVENTEEN GUNS, $3.80, $3.60; LADY JAFFA, $4.20.

SINGING STEEL saved ground to reach contention, went by leaders when asked and won rather handily. SEVENTEEN GUNS leaked speed early, went around field and was next best. LADY JAFFA disposed of J. HAL to take command on backstretch and then weakened. J. HAL tired after setting pace for nearly three quarters.

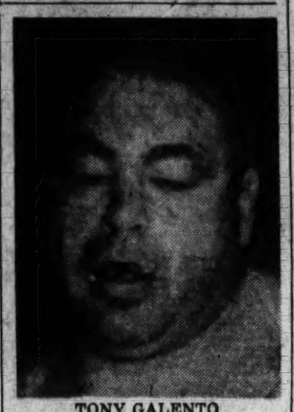
NBA Forbids Galento to Bill Matches Anything But a Show

'Two-Ton' Is Told He Can't Continue His Ring 'Comeback'



TONY GALENTO

Paterson, N. J., June 23.—Taking note of "an unfavorable washback" whenever Tony Galento has appeared recently, the National Boxing Association ruled today that any "barnstorming" the Orange round man does from now on "will be strictly as entertainment and not in the pursuit of boxing competition."

Abe Greene, N. B. A. president, said he had advised Two-Ton and his manager, Willie Gilzenberg, of the ruling, and that Gilzenberg assured him that from now on any bookings made for Tony will be "on the strict representation that he is appearing for exhibitions only."

"Galento has been bouncing around the country," Greene pointed out, "knocking out a wrestler here, an old-timer there, a couple of spare hands as an extra bargain. But because the general impression has been that he was on a comeback tour, an unfavorable washback has resulted in those cities where he has played. This will be eliminated now and promoters and commissions will be protected against unfavorable reactions resulting from improper publicity. Fans who go to see Galento henceforth will know just what they're going to see.

"In assuring me that Tony will go along with this ruling, Gilzenberg told me that when Galento is ready for genuine fistic action, he will notify the N. B. A. Until that time, there need be no misinterpretation of his appearances."

Horse Show Set July 11 At North End

The District's first horse show in many weeks will be held Sunday, July 11, at North End Stable, Silver Spring, Chairman Gardner Hallman announced yesterday.

Despite bans on pleasure driving, Hallman feels certain horse lovers will be willing to ride Sixteenth Street buses to reach the grounds, which are located less than five minutes' walk from the end of the line. No automobiles will be admitted to the grounds, but horse-drawn vehicles will be welcomed and there even may be a special class for them.

Other news from the horsey set's viewpoint is the arrival of Mrs. Fred J. Hughes, jr., the former Lisbeth "Skippy" Stieg, who has returned to Washington to live for the duration with her parents while her husband, Captain Hughes, serves overseas.

With her from Fort Bliss, Tex., came her great jumping mare, Hi-Ho, who has been sent to Mrs. M. E. Whitney's Llangollen farm to be bred to Bonne Nuit; Tabu, a 2-year-old chestnut colt by Double Scotch — Carrie Knight; and Yankee Dooble, known as David in local show circles. Captain Hughes' jumping stallion, Black Caddy, was sold to the Mexican Olympic team before Mrs. Hughes came to Washington.

Another former Fort Myer star, Col. Charles B. McClelland, jr., has returned to his old haunts since he was assigned to Fort George G. Meade, Md. First visit here was to see his beloved open jumper, Smacko, now owned by Capt. Alvin Kay.

Braves Score Double Win Over Phillies

By International News Service

Boston, June 23.—Charlie Barrett and Al Javery hurled the Braves to a double win over the Philadelphia Phils today. Barrett blanked the Quakers in the opener, 1-0, while Javery took a 4-3 decision in 11 innings.

Newt Kimball, although he allowed only six hits while Barrett was nicked for seven, fell victim to the locals in the first game when the Braves bunched three hits for a run in the second inning to give Barrett his fourth win of the season.

Javery's triumph was his seventh of the year. He allowed 11 hits, but fanned 10, while Al Gerheauser, who also went the distance, was touched for 13 hits.

Savoldi Defeats Long at Turner's

Jumping Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame football star and one-time wrestling champion, defeated Johnny Long, Baltimore shipyard worker, with a well placed dropkick in the feature match of the weekly mat show at Turner's Arena last night before nearly 1000 fans.

In the semiwindup, Babe Sharky and Abe Yourist wrestled 20 minutes to a no-contest decision. Both were out of the ring when the referee halted the match.

Big Ben Morgan used a body press to defeat Milo Steinborn in 17 minutes of a scheduled 30-minute affair. Dick Craddock and Ace Freeman tugged to a 30-minute draw. Dick Lever defeated Chief Bamba Tabu in 23 minutes with a flying tackle.

Tippy Larkin Stops McIntyre in Fifth

Elizabeth, N. J., June 23 (AP).—Tippy Larkin of Garfield turned in a technical knockout over Bobby McIntyre of Detroit tonight at 2:58 of the fifth stanza of a scheduled 10-round boxing bout at Twin City Bowl.

Al Weill and Reilly Resume Fistic Master-Minding Monday

Pilots of Lew Hanbury, Jackie Wilson Are Old Rivals of Many Years; Wilson Due Friday

By Al Costello
Post Staff Writer

One of boxing's bitterest feuds between two of the game's leading "master minds" will come to a head next Monday night at Griffith Stadium when Washington's Lew Hanbury and Pittsburgh's Jackie Wilson commit mayhem on each other for 10 rounds in the "fight of the year" for Washington.

Behind Hanbury, as manager and adviser and chief second, will be the veteran Al "Weskit" Weill. Training, advising and also working in the corner of Jackie Wilson will be the "Silver Fox of Fistiana," Pete Riley, otherwise known as the originator of the "hot foot."

That there is little, if any, love lost between Peter and "The Weskit" is an accepted fact. They have been rivals for more years than either care to remember and each squirms uncomfortably at the good fortune of the other. For the fighter of one to whip the fighter of the other is, to each, like drawing a royal flush. In other words they don't care so much for each other, especially since the night some four years ago when Riley's Petey Scalzo finally caught up with Weill's Joey Archibald, hit him on the chin and won Joey's featherweight title.

They work together only when they have to, and they have to only in a case like this, where their boys, Wilson and Hanbury, figure to draw a $20,000 house. For that kind of money its worth it, each one figures.

Already it's started. Weill has been here for the past four or five days, whipping his Lew into shape, seeing to it that the youngster of only 11 professional fights learns as much ring savvy as he possibly can before going against the ring-wise Wilson.

Meanwhile, Riley refused to let Wilson train either here or in his Pittsburgh hometown, insisting he come to New York, where Jackie has been working out at Sullivan's gym with, among others, such fighters as Johnny Greco, Mike Belloise and Johnny Dudley, a New York counterpart of Hanbury. Only yesterday, Riley phoned from New York to the effect Wilson worked three fast rounds with Dudley and three more with Chalky Wright. If Cleo Shans arrives in New York before Friday, Wilson will work with him. Cleo, incidentally, is another of Riley's boys.

Riley also informed yesterday that Wilson will get here Friday and will wor kout at Apollo gmy, if he arrives early enough.

Hanbury and Wilson will do the fighting all right, but both Pete Riley and Al Weill also will regard it as a victory when the decision is announced. They do not exactly form a mutual admiration society, as you can see.

Cubs in Split With Pirates; Leave Cellar

By International News Service

Chicago, June 23.—The Chicago Cubs split a double-header with the Pittsburgh Pirates today, taking the first game, 4 to 1, and dropping the nightcap, 7 to 5.

The Cubs got away to a four-run lead in the second inning of the second game, on four hits and Bob Elliott's error. But the Pirates scored a run in the third and four in the fifth and two in the seventh. They collected 13 hits off Warneke, Barnett, Wyse and Fleming.

single and Keller's walk filled the bases.

Then it was that with the third out, a mere routine play when Lindell grounded to Clary, the little third baseman threw wild across the diamond and two Yankees scored. Nick Etten drove in two more with a single to center.

The Yanks only got seven hits off Carrasquel, and Mertz, who relieved him in the seventh, but the Nats only got six. There was nothing more than a single by Washington. Case beat out two bunts, and Mickey Vernon got two blows. There was a single by Priddy and (First Game) another by Clary, and that was all.

The Nats muffed their only two scoring chances. Spence walked with one out in the first inning, but was out stealing. The Nats later filled the bases on hits by Vernon and Priddy and a walk to Johnson, but Clary flied out.

In the eighth there was a hint the Nats might stage a big inning after Case beat out a bunt and Vernon singled him to third with one out. But Bob Johnson obliged the Yanks by drilling a double-play grounder to Gordon. The Nats weren't very hot in that second game.

Forged Report Causes Delay In Sentencing

A sensational disclosure that two District detectives sought to wring a confession from a suspected Negro rapist with a forged medical report, postponed sentencing of a 41-year-old dishwasher at District Court yesterday.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins ordered the postponement until the complainant, a 17-year-old waitress, can be returned here from Maine to identify her attacker in a lineup.

Confessed by Another

The unusual development occurred when Charles H. Houston, attorney for the defendant, Leonard A. Saunders, Negro, 41, informed the court his client had been found guilty of a crime once confessed by Haywood Wilborn, Negro, 17. The latter confessed the attack Saunders was convicted of, it was said, after being confronted with the phony medical report prepared by the two detectives.

Wilborn is now awaiting sentence on a charge he attempted to assault a Federal Bureau of Investigation stenographer. He repudiated his confession in the waitress case at his trial.

Assistant District Attorney John W. Fihelly informed the court that he was familiar with the circumstances surrounding the phony medical report.

Produced for Record

He said that two detectives tricked Wilborn into making a false statement with a medical report to which they had forged the name of Dr. Richard M. Rosenberg, deputy District coroner and well-known criminologist.

Fihelly produced the report, which stated Dr. Rosenberg had examined Wilborn and the girl victim and that he (the doctor) could state positively that the suspect had committed the assault.

Houston explained to the court that he revealed the fact the false report existed only "for the court record." He said he did not wish a new trial for his client.

Mrs. Harrison, 71, Dies After Short Illness

Mrs. Hetty Fairfax Harrison, 71, widow of the president of the Southern Railway Co., died yesterday at Doctors' Hospital after a short illness.

Residing at her estate Belvoir, in Fauquier County, Va., Mrs. Harrison was prominent in several organizations, among them the Daughters of the Confederacy and the Garden Club of Virginia.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Charles Beard, jr., Marshall, Va.; Mrs. Gerhard Dieke, Baltimore, and Miss Constance Harrison. Also surviving is her son, Richard F. Harrison who lives with his sister, Constance, at Belvoir.

Funeral services for Mrs. Harrison will be held tomorrow at 11:30 a. m. at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Interment will be at Ivy Hill Cemetery, Alexandria, Va.

Colonel Dupuy Praises News Censorship in Talk to Lions

A tribute to the voluntary wartime censorship carried out by the American press was voiced yesterday by Col. R. Ernest Dupuy, chief of the news division, War Department Public Relations Branch, in a talk before the Washington Lions Club.

Colonel Dupuy especially praised Byron Price, chief of the Office of Censorship, whose staff set up the voluntary newspapers code based on one primary consideration, "Will this news help the enemy?"

"And despite censorship," the colonel said, "American correspondents are giving the finest coverage of the present war in the history of the world."

In this, he related, they are getting full cooperation from the War Department, even to the sending of news dispatches from the front over Signal Corps equipment when commercial wireless is not available. Pictures also are sent by Signal Corps wirephoto, he said, giving the American public a view of battle scenes only a few hours after they occur.

The colonel's talk covered wars of the past century, as he explained in detail how news stories revealing troop movements had resulted in many defeats and great losses of men, thus demonstrating the necessity of censorship.

In addition to assisting with coverage of big war news, the Army's public relations officers at every camp and at every front channel news back to the hometown papers, Colonel Dupuy said. This is the personal news of names, how John Doe was made a sergeant and how Richard Roe was decorated for bravery under fire. Casualty lists also are handled and sent to the soldiers' home-town papers after next of kin have been notified.

But most of all the colonel spoke of how newspapers are aiding the fight on the home front by scrupulously refraining from revealing the slightest information that might be of "aid and comfort to the enemy."

He said they are operating on the theory that "What the enemy does not know cannot hurt the United States."

Victory Sidelights

Volunteer Spotters Finish Course

One hundred and eighteen volunteers of the Ground Observer Corps will receive certificates for completing a course in airplane recognition this Sunday at 2 p. m. on the "observation tower grounds," whose location is a military secret, it was announced yesterday.

First Lieut. Morgan D. Wheelock of the Baltimore filter area, will make the presentation and the United States Army Air Forces band will participate in the ceremonies, which will be followed by a picnic.

Under Army command and directed by Donald G. Stanley, Washington's only observation tower has one of the outstanding records in the Eastern area, it was said, and its crew missed less than 16 hours in a year and a half of 24-hour operation.

Mark J. Dondero is chief observer of the post, which is manned mainly by employes of the Government Printing Office, Arthur O. Daniels, public relations officer, said.

Funeral Services For Mrs. Anderson Scheduled Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Jones Anderson, 85, whose death after a long illness occurred on Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon D. Watkins in Damascus, Md., will take place at 2:30 p. m. today at St. John's Episcopal Church, Olney, Md. The Rev. W. Herbert Mayers, acting rector of the church, will conduct the services and burial will be in church cemetery.

Mrs. Anderson was a life-long resident of Montgomery County. She was born near Brookeville. Her husband was the late Samuel Anderson. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Ralph V. Driver of Bethesda, Md., and two brothers, Harry C. Jones of Washington and William P. Jones of Brookeville.

School to Aid Aliens in U. S. Graduates 23

Americanization School, described by Mrs. Florence H. Rogers, supervising principal, sixth division, as "the outstanding institution of its kind in the Nation," yesterday graduated 23 students from its English classes.

Over 2000 persons, representing 64 nations, participated last year in the school's English instruction, Maude E. Alton, administrative principal, said, and added that some 700 have been prepared in chasses in American history and government for their citizenship examinations.

Among yesterday's graduates were Walter Schuschnigg, cousin of the last Chancellor of Austria, Dr. Kurt von Schuschnigg, now a prisoner of the Nazis, and Von Kwan Chun, son of the Chinese purchasing agent in the United States.

Leading the number of graduates were six Chinese, three Russians and three Austrians. Also graduated were two Japanese.

Speaking to an audience of about 150 people, Souren H. Hanessian, vice president, Americanization School Association, cited the outstanding contributions of the students to the American war effort by purchasing more than $450,000 worth of bonds and raising the money for a service car for the American Red Cross.

After the "Greeting of the United Nations," when representatives of all 32 United Nations extended their congratulations to the graduates, Schuschnigg made a short speech in which he expressed his regret that the Austrian flag, "the Red-White-Red banner which is always in our hearts," was not represented among the flags of freedom and asserted that Austrian patriots "know just the same that the day of Allied victory will be the day of Austrian resurrection."

Lieutenant King Reported Killed In Plane Crash

Second Lieut. Preston King, 26-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. King of 5824 Eleventh Street North, Arlington, was killed last Sunday night presumably in an air crash in Latin America, the War Department informed his parents yesterday.

LIEUT. KING

Lieutenant King was a fighter pilot, and left his American base about two months ago for South America. He formerly attended Western High School, and was regarded one of the best young trapshooters in Washington.

His father is box office manager for Promoter Joe Turner at Turner's Arena, and is well-known in this section.

Before enlisting in the Air Corps, Lieutenant King was in the contracting business. He won his wings back in March.

He was one of 20 selected from a [illegible] of 284 for special duty in aviation.

"I see by Newsweek···

There's no real solution to inflation in sight. The Administration will still fight for price-pegging subsidies, despite the House's ban on subsidies last week . . . and a compromise may be the final result. But the thing that's most needed, according to Ralph Robey, is one-man control over food problems. Roosevelt doesn't hold this view. And Congress probably won't take any opposing action unless the food situation gets really desperate!" (Important: Preventing inflation is everyone's job today. You can help by cutting out all non-essential buying . . . and putting every cent you can in War Bonds and Stamps!)

"I see by Newsweek···

Military men believe Germany will go on the defensive in Russia! The reasons: increased Nazi propaganda on the 'Fortress of Europe' . . . failure to attack before mid-June, and bombing of Soviet industrial targets instead of communications lines. This will make our job more difficult and expensive. The Mediterranean air blitz points toward conquest of Sicily, Southern Italy, and the Balkans, with another Allied drive aimed at Greece and Bulgaria from Lybia and Syria!" (Note: On all fronts our fighting men now receive "Battle-Baby"—Newsweek's miniature overseas edition—which is rushed to them every week.)

"I see by Newsweek···

The draft outlook for family men is much better! Seems our 1943 goal of 8,200,000 was based on the possibility that Russia might fold. Now there is pressure on War Department to cut the goal to 7,000,000. If induction of family men is postponed until October 1, it is likely that only 800,000 of the 6,000,000 fathers between 18 and 35 will be needed this year. And if the war situation continues to improve, few fathers will be needed next year. That's straight from NEWSWEEK'S 'Periscope,' and it's been 88% right so far."

"I see by Newsweek···

Official American and British reports on U-boats sunk in April and May now appear ultra-conservative. Ernest Lindley says it is thought that as many as 60 were captured or destroyed and from 35 to 45 seriously damaged. Total Allied losses for first half of June were substantially less than half those of the first half of May. For every United Nations vessel sunk, two submarines went to the bottom!" (Note: Lindley is one of the eagerly-read authorities whose "signed opinions" are regular Newsweek features. Others are Admiral Pratt, Raymond Moley, Ralph Robey, John Lardner.)

What should you ask of a News magazine these days?

NEVER BEFORE in history has the news been as important to every man and woman as it is today.

It affects the life of each one of us personally.

We believe this fact places on us a special obligation.

As we see it, you should expect us to give you objective, impartial reporting. You should be able to get both sides of every important issue.

You should look to us for the significance and meaning of the news.

You should get opinions on social, political and economic developments—but opinions signed by responsible authorities.

You should receive our studied predictions of things to come . . . of future trends and events that will be of vital importance to you.

It is . . . and always has been . . . Newsweek's policy to give readers this kind of service.

Now, we are trying to extend it beyond the pages of the magazine itself.

Today, because of wartime restrictions, we are unable to print enough copies to meet the demand.

Until this condition improves, we shall give you significant highlights from Newsweek in newspaper advertisements like this.

To those who are able to get their copies . . . may we suggest that you share them with as many people as possible?

Coffee rations may be increased. Officials won't confirm this publicly but supplies are now normal. The U-boat situation is better and coffee men protest that coffee is going stale in warehouses. The wheat crop, however, is extremely short . . . the reserve is running out and government-imposed acreage restrictions and bad weather haven't helped matters. Despite all talk to the contrary rayon, cotton, and wool goods will not be rationed unless consumers start panic buying."

Tough Break?

A friend asked J. Milton Derrick, Takoma Park garageman, to repair the brakes on his car. The friend was assured it would be done if he brought the car to the shop. He did, and the brakeless auto crashed through a show window when he tried to stop it.

Norfolk Grows Liberal

Norfolk, Va. (A.P.).—The City of Norfolk has adopted a more liberal attitude toward life in general and smoking in particular. City council rescinded an ordinance adopted in 1901 prohibiting smoking in front of churches. No arrests were made under the ordinance as far as is known.

D.C. Teachers Facing 5-Day Delay in Pay

Senate Is Yet to Act on Deficiency Measure; Fight Expected There

By Mary Spargo
Post Staff Writer

Congressional delay in passing the urgent deficiency bill for 1943, which already has left 1206 District employes payless, may delay salaries of 3500 teachers here by at least five days, and will hold up overtime pay for thousands more Government workers.

One step toward bringing pay days nearer was taken yesterday when the House accepted the conference report on the bill, but the Senate has yet to act. Even if the Senate passes the bill today (and a hard fight there is predicted) the necessary financial machinery will require five more days to operate after the President signs the measure.

Held Up by Controversy

The bill, which affects every Federal worker except those employed by the Army and Navy, was held up by controversy over three Government employes.

The House voted to add a rider to the bill requiring that no Federal funds be used to pay the salaries of William E. Dodd, jr., and Dr. Goodwin Watson, both of the Federal Communications Commission, and the salary of Robert Morss Lovett, government secretary of the Virgin Islands. By a vote of 69 to 0 the Senate disagreed, sending the question to conference. It was not until yesterday that the conferees agreed to retain the House amendment, and the House adopted the report.

Representative Cannon (Democrat) of Missouri, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said yesterday that representatives of teachers' unions had been "besieging" the committee to get the bill passed so teachers could make their down payments for summer schools.

Low Paid Workers Hit

The 1206 District employes who missed their pay were all custodial employes, 906 in school buildings. In the lower income brackets, these employes, District authorities stated yesterday, are the first to feel the pinch of an omitted payday.

District Auditor Arthur E. Pilkerton said the District was setting up all its machinery for immediate action as soon as the bill is passed.

Pilkerton asserted that an Act of June 29, 1923, forbids the District to issue script or borrow money to meet payrolls.

In the event that the measure is not enacted into law by July 1, beginning of the new fiscal year the bill carries provision that it become retroactive, so there is no permanent loss of pay.

It further carries a provision that if the bill is not passed by July 1, the President may advance the necessary sums to meet pay rolls out of his Emergency Fund, and be reimbursed upon enactment of the law.

This provision may spare 1700 policemen, 600 firemen and 6000 Civil Service employes a payless payday, because of the later date their next checks are due, most by July 2. Presumably it would take five days to get those financial arrangements made.

Two Virginia Men Reported Missing

Gunner's Mates (third class) Thomas William Hankley of Wytheville, Va., and David Cloyd Melton of Richmond, Va., both missing in action, were among 82 casualties of the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard reported by the Navy Department yesterday.

The list included 54 dead, 52 from the Coast Guard, 2 wounded and 26 missing, as well as one change of status from missing to dead. This brings to 23,258 the total number of casualties reported to next of kin since Pearl Harbor. The grand total is comprised of 7546 dead, 4726 wounded and 10,986 missing.

Scene From 'It's Up to You'

BLACK MARKETS, BEWARE—"It's Up to You," an unusual play designed to aid the war effort through sensible food usage and which appeals strongly to American housewives to save food and avoid black markets, opened a week's run Tuesday at the Department of Agriculture auditorium in the south building. The D. C. Food Industry Committee is sponsor, cooperating with the War Savings Stamp Committee of the District. The play is presented by the Washington Workshop Group. The purchase of a 25-cent war savings stamp at Woodward & Lothrop or Hecht's entitles the buyer to an admission ticket

Beef Scarctiy Here Blamed On Rollback

Almost empty meat hooks in Washington butchers' refrigerators yesterday greeted would-be purchasers of beef in any form as dealers struggled to build up their scanty stocks in preparation for an anticipated heavy rush over the weekend.

Local butchers blamed the scarcity upon the recent rollback in beef prices. They expressed the opinion this had resulted in large packing houses refusing to kill any cattle until they are able to ascertain how nearly the promised subsidy will counteract the losses they face by reason of the rollback.

Retailers were alarmed, for they said they expected to see a near-famine condition here for at least two weeks.

Pork, for which prices will not be rollied back until July 15, remained plentiful.

Under the new setup the packer is to continue paying the farmer his regular price for livestock, sell to the retailer at the rollback price and then receive a subsidy from the Government to offset his loss.

One dealer here complained that the rollback on porterhouse steak, for instance, was from 66 to 55 cents a pound, which, he claimed, resulted in retail dealers hesitating to handle this cut, as well as other desirable cuts where the rollback is large.

"It looks to me as though the OPA wants to make it unprofitable to handle these choicer cuts," he said.

Packers pointed out that while they were compelled to cut prices back an average of 3 cents a pound, they were to receive in subsidy 1.9 to 2 cents a pound, leaving them to take a cent a pound or more loss.

Common-Carrier Appellation Gets Cabbie in Trouble

Resentment at being called a "common carrier" is one of the reasons why cab driver Steve N. Cusato, 248 First Street Southwest, may not drive his taxi for three months. The principal reason the Commissioners suspended his license was that he not only protested against taking a passenger to Union Station from Fourteenth and Park Road Northwest, but that he several times pulled over to the curb and invited the passenger to leave his cab.

When the passenger reminded Gusato that he was a common carrier, Cusato "flared up," considering the adjective something of an insult.

The Commissioners also suspended for 90 days the hackers permit of Frank Quinn, 1317 Colombia Road, who also was reluctant to drive a fare to Union Station. In both cases, the drivers are forbidden to seek reinstatement until the 90-day suspension period is over.

War Bureau Hire and Fire Plans Hit

To Drop 100,000, Take on 200,000 Doesn't Make Sense, Ramspeck Declares

Still angry at being told of War Department plans for discharging 100,000 employes even while the department was requesting the House Appropriations Committee for 200,000 additional workers, the House Civil Service Committee yesterday pressed the matter again.

Target of the committee's ire yesterday was James P. Mitchell, director of personnel for the Army Service Forces, who had supported the testimony of the intention to fire 100,000 employes, given the committee by Undersecretary for War Patterson.

"I want to find out why and how this mistake was made." Representative Ramspeck (Democrat) of Georgia, chairman of the Civil Service Committee, told Mitchell.

Doesn't Make Sense

"It just doesn't make sense that the Army apparently intends to fire 100,000 civilians now and then hire 200,000 more within a few months as the need arises."

Mitchell supported statements made yesterday by Patterson that the present work load shows the department can reduce its personnel from 1,300,000 workers now, but that anticipated increase in jobs next year would require hiring of an additional 200,000.

A confidential memorandum explaining the proposed discharge of the 100,000 was given to Ramspeck by Mitchell. The memorandum showed what branches would suffer "dimunition" and in what numbers. It was requested that the information be held confidential since it might affect the work of the departments concerned.

Mitchell said he had nothing to do with the request for 200,000 more employes, and said he did not know of it at the time his department worked out the firing schedule.

In Span of Two Days

"I can understand that additional workers may be needed," Ramspeck said, "but I am at a complete loss to understand how the Army on June 8 could tell us it had 100,000 more civilians than was necessary and on June 9 could tell the Appropriations Committee that it needed 1,500,000 civilians, 200,000 more than at present."

Representative Manasco (Democrat) of Alabama commented, "The answer might be the old departmental practice of asking for a lot more than you think you will get."

The civil service testimony given by Patterson caused the Appropriations Committee to knock 127 million dollars from next year's appropriations, and caused the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee to knock 100 millions from a war housing bill.

Fouts to Head Venereal Cure At Gallinger

Dr. John B. Fouts, long associated with the Kentucky State Board of Health, whose home now is Louisville, Ky., has been chosen to head the new Gallinger Venereal Clinic it was announced by the United States Public Health Service late yesterday.

The announcement was confirmed by Dr. Frederick Gillick, chief of the disease bureau of the District Health Department, who said that the new clinic head would report this morning for duty.

It was said at the USPHS headquarters that Dr. George Ruhland had requested "a man of Dr. Fouts' background" to take over the post, which, according to public health authorities, will have considerable to do with the control and possible elimination of venereal disease in the District of Columbia.

Work is now under way in remodeling the old infectious disease ward at the Gallinger Hospital, which is to be the first unit of the clinic. Patients are expected to be accepted for treatment early in July.

Building of the additional 50-bed venereal ward is expected to be under way before the end of the month.

Inter-Racial Parley Called in Baltimore

Baltimore, June 23 (AP).—A meeting of 100 white and Negro leaders in Baltimore was called today to consider means of preventing interracial clashes such as those which have broken out in Detroit, Mobile, Ala., and Beaumont, Tex.

Executive Secretary J. Harvey Kerns of the Urban League, an organization devoted to Negro welfare, announced the calling of the meeting for tomorrow night. "are strongly indicative of organidancing, subletting two apartments, and "most" of his $3129 month pay. He admitted knowing the three girls the Government had earlier called as witnesses, but denied strenuously that they had ever indulged in prostitution under his wife's guidance. Defense Attorney Whelan questioned him on his knowledge of Dorothy Smitely, a 22-year-old Arlington, Va., mother and wife of a serviceman.

The Smitely woman had testified on Tuesday that she had filled a number of dates in the Wardman Park Hotel, the Mayflower and others which had been arranged for her by Mrs. Martin.

Q. Did you ever know Dorothy Smitely."

A. "Yes; she was a guest in our home during the latter part of September in 1942. She was there one day when I returned from work."

Q. "Did you ever hear your wife send her out on a mission as a prostitute?"

A. "No; the only time I ever heard Mrs. Martin send her out was for a rhumba costume."

Under cross examination by Assistant United States Attorney Bernard Margilius, Martin identified, in the courtroom, the other two girls called as Government witnesses.

A pretty 19-year-old dark-complexioned girl was identified as "Susie Q."

Q. "Is that the only name you ever know her by."

A. "Not exactly. I've heard her called Gladys."

Q. "Do you know if she ever had any business dealings with your wife."

A. "No she never did, she merely came to our house on one occasion for dinner with her boy friend and then on one other occasion when a fight occurred."

At this point of the questioning, the judge intervened on the objection of defense counsel.

Q. "Was the defendant, your wife, ever out alone?" A.—"Once with 'Buddy,' a mutual friend."

Q. "After you went to work in the morning what did your wife do during the daytime?"

Martin said he didn't know.

Asked by Margolius why he did not insist that the Smitely woman leave their apartment, Martin replied that she told them she had no place to go and that she was looking for a job."

Q. "Did she ever find a job?"

A. "Not that I know of."

During the morning session the question of marihuana smoking was injected in the proceedings when Whelan asked Hope Alonso, a pretty 20-year-old admitted prostitude who charged that in company with Carmen and Dorothy Smitely she once attended a party in a downtown hotel for which she received $50, if she ever smoked marihuana.

"No." The answer was emphatic. She admitted that she had been a prostitute in New York for the past three years and that she came here last fall and lived with Carmen. She testified that on several occasions she heard Carmen answer the phone and tell men that she would send a woman to their rooms. She said the phone would ring on an average of 20 times a day.

The Alonso girl testified that she had met a man named Fernandez through Carmen and had later gone to live at his house. She denied defense accusations that a New York boy friend, one Ariel Delatorre, had come here seeking her and threatened Fernandez with a dagger when he foud her living at the man's home.

Thomas Fernandez took the stand and testified that the Alonso girl had lived there a week or a week and a half.

Question by Whelan:

Did there come a time when she was living there that you saw a man, a Puerto Rican—A. Yes, this Delatorre came to the house one day and asked for her. After I called her they had a fight and he threatened to cut her with a knife as he had done one time before.

Q. Did you see where she had been cut before?—A. Yes, it was on her breast, she pulled the dress down and I saw it."

Q. How did he find our where she was living?—A. Carmen Beach told him.

Fernandez then admitted that he had known the Beach woman about six years and had met his wife through her.

It was contended by the prosecution that the Smitely woman had only worked for Mrs. Martin in her dress shop at Eleventh and G Streets Northwest and that after several days Mrs. Martin asked her if she would like to "make a little real money." It was after this, it was stated, that the prostitution began.

A spinsterish wisp of a little old woman peered through thick-lensed spectacles with mouth pinched in disapproval . . . an old man with sparse hair and a gray mustache chewed gum blatantly with tempo increasing as the testimony became more compelling . . . a solid housewife with lap full of bundles dropped packages at the most dramatic point and smiled apologetically as surrounding spectators stooped to collect them . . . servicemen on leave in the city listened with half smiles on their faces—all these made up the audience.

All eyes were focussed on Mrs. Martin, voluptuous in a clinging dress of white jersey. Often, she ran her hands through raven, shoulder-length hair and sometimes fingered her wedding band coupled with glistening diamond ring.

After the Government had rested its case Whelan made a motion based on three points all of which were overruled by the court.

Witnesses besides Martin were: Thomas Fernandez, a bartender; Hannah Dubester, operator of a dress shop, and Iris Turrello, a pianist.

Starlight Concerts to Differ From Chamber Music Series

The opening of The Post Starlight Concerts in Meridian Hill Park Saturday and Sunday evenings will introduce a type of entertainment different from the chamber music series presented at the park in the past two years. Programs and presentations have been planned to take full advantage of the beauty and intimacy of the outdoor park setting.

This season's concerts will be distinguished by music as individual in character and origin as the artists who will play and sing. The world-famous violinist, Albert Spalding, who will appear at the two opening concerts, has included in his program some of the finest, if most difficult, pieces written for the violin from the sixteenth century to the present.

Carlos Salzedo and his harp ensemble will play on the weekend of July 10-11, and later on in the series concert-goers will hear one of the most popular radio singers of today, Conrad Thibault.

The folk song, American and European, always has been a particular favorite with music lovers. In the American Ballad Singers and the Trapp Family Singers, listeners will find the finest exponents of this kind of music. The Ballad Singers have taken their repetoire from every section of this country, after years of travel and research by Director Elie Siegmeister; while the handsome Trapp family, exiles from Nazi-controlled Austria, bring the gay yodels of their native Tyrol and the homely melodies of other European peoples.

The dance has not been overlooked in the series. Lotte Goslar, who will appear with Leon Varkas and a talented group, has been widely hailed as queen of comic dance mimes. As one critic put it, she is blessed with that rare talent for successfully communicating the ridiculous.

Members of the Government Girl Guard of Honor, to be guests of The Post at the first Saturday concert, are urged to communicate with The Post to obtain their tickets. To other Washingtonians, tickets are available at the Cappel Concert Bureau, in Ballards, 1340 G Street Northwest. The supply of reserved season tickets is fast diminishing, but those unable to get them may purchase seats for single concerts at 55c, $1.10 and $1.65.

Laundries Plead Case Before WMC

District Operators Declare Closing Within Six Months Appears in Crisis

A manpower shortage threatens to close most laundries in Washington in six months unless immediate and drastic steps are taken to find a remedy, operators said yesterday.

Added to this is the difficulty of replacing machinery parts, where, sometimes, a delay of two months occurs.

As a result some of the laundries report they have refused to take any new customers for the past five months.

The laundrymen yesterday explained their troubles to representatives of the War Manpower Commission and asked that they be classified as an essential industry and draft deferment be granted for key men.

Efficiency Loss Reported

Due to labor shortage laundries in the city claim they have lost 20 to 25 per cent of their efficiency. One factor contributing to this situation is that employes work in teams and if one of the team is inefficient, it results in a slowdown in the production of the others, laundrymen said.

Another problem posed by the representatives of the industry is the one of raising wages 10 per cent in order to retain efficient help, and refrain from passing the additional cost on to the customer.

Efforts are being made to keep prices down to a level that will keep it economically unsound for a housewife to hire a maid to do the family wash.

One result of the labor shortage is that local laundries have been compelled to eliminate Thursday deliveries. One firm reported a labor turnover since the first of the year of 200 per cent. Another reported a 10 per cent turnover a week.

After depicting the dire consequences attendant on a collapse of the laundry industry, representatives made five recommendations designed to provide remedies, if Government agencies act immediately. Recommended were:

1. Replace the present priority system with a fair method of allocation.

2. Recognize laundries and linen supply houses as "sanitary services," which would grant them access to essential materials.

3. Recruit workers for laundries through the United States Employment Service just as they have been recruited away from laundries by factories.

4. Assure frequent deliveries, since this substantially reduces the amount of clothing necessary for each family and the linens for commercial users. This will be of great help in averting a textile crisis.

5. Coordinate a system of wages, costs and prices that will permit laundries to continue their services.

Engineer Held In Thefts From Homes Here

Washington and New York police last night were searching among pawn shops for thousands of dollars worth of property stolen in a series of housebreakings here while the out-of-town authorities prepared to try a 39-year-old civil engineer as a "three time loser."

Local detectives entered the investigation over the weekend after Mount Vernon, N. Y., police wired here for information concerning a dozen war bonds found in the possession of a burglary suspect. The bonds, it developed, had been stolen from a District apartment.

On the strength of this, Detective Sergt. F. L. Gaver was sent to Mount Vernon and returned yesterday loaded down with recovered loot from Washington homes and a confession from the engineer, an escaped convict from a Georgia prison camp, that he rifled nine homes here between June 5 and June 16.

New York authorities retained custody of the man, identified as the son of a wealthy New York manufacturer, because, they said, he has three previous felony convictions in the State. Conviction again carries mandatory life imprisonment.

Gaver brought back with him a photograph of the suspect and old timers at the Detective Bureau recalled that he was "one of the slickest jimmy burglars ever to operate here."

They remembered that in 1933 he was identified in more than 100 cases here. After serving a penitentiary term in the Maryland city he was brought here and served two years.

Among the local victims were Lina Mae Reid, 1706 Twelfth Street Northwest; George Soule, 1629 Columbia Road Northwest; Charles W. Freeman, 2800 Woodley Road Northwest; Margaret Goydick, 1631 Euclid Street Northwest, and Harrison White, 2032 Belmont Street Northwest.

3d Trial Set

Mistrial Declared in Viereck Case

The second trial in less than two years of Nazi agent George Sylvester Viereck on charges of violating the Foreign Agents Registration Act came to an abrupt halt in District Court yesterday afternoon when Justice Bolitha J. Laws granted a defense motion for mistrail.

The jury of seven men and five women was asked to leave the courtroom at 1:30 p. m. as Justice Laws told Federal Prosecutors George A. McNulty and Albert E. Arent that evidence had been submitted by the defense indicating that one of the women jurors, Miss Katherine C. Fuqua, should be disqualified from further participation in the trial.

John J. Wilson, who with Leo A. Rover is defending Viereck, told the court that during the previous day's trial recess he had observed the juror greet Department of Justice Attorney John T. M. Redden, as the latter sat as an observer in the courtroom, awaiting resumption of the afternoon's proceedings. After no more than an exchange of greetings, Wilson said, Redden left his seat to report the inadvertent occurrence.

There was absolutely no question of impropriety, the defense counsel emphasized, since Redden was obviously unaware of Miss Fuqua's identity with the Viereck case. They had not met in the last five years, it was learned, and during the preliminary questioning of prospective jurors by Justice Laws last Friday, Miss Fuqua had failed to recognize Redden's full name and to acknowledge acquaintance with him. He felt it imperative, however, Wilson declared, to ask for a retrial and selection of a new jury.

Justice Laws set the third trial for tomorrow morning in District Court at 10 o'clock, when another set of jurors will be impaneled.

Evidence of the juror's disqualification was first brought before Justice Laws immediately following the incident on Tuesday afternoon. The jurist, however, permitted the trial to proceed with the final testimony of Government witness Sigfrid H. Hauck, in order to permit Federal Prosecutors McNulty and Arent time to examine the defense's claims.

McNulty yesterday briefly challenged Wilson's motion, explaining that Redden could not have prejudiced the defense's case since he had no connection whatever with the trial. The retrial was finally agreed to, however, when Justice Laws pointed out that if he permitted the case to continue under the circumstances, a new trial might later be called for either by this or another court.

Miss Fuqua, who lives at the Shoreham Hotel and is employed at the National Theater, told The Post that she deeply regretted the incident.

"It seems a shame that because I didn't know that Mr. Redden was with the Department of Justice, the Government should be put to the expense of beginning the trial all over again," she said. "I should never have spoken to him at the time if I had known what the consequences would be," she added.

City News In Brief

Use of wading pools, which open tomorrow when the full summer recreation program goes into effect, probably will be watched in determining how long it is desirable to keep them open, Dallas Shirley, superviser of the District aquatic program said yesterday.

Shirley referred to questioning by Recreation Board members of the advisability of having most pools open only from 10 a. m to noon and 2 to 4 p. m. Recreation Superintendent Milo Christiansen said no funds were available to keep them open longer.

Another Police Rodeo

A couple of cops and a runaway steer brought about another of those "impromptu rodeos"—at least a dozen in half as many months—early yesterday.

This one began when Policemen Lewis Girard and Eugene L. Hummer, Ninth Precinct, discovered the bewildered animal looking for a place to graze at Bladensburg Road and Montana Avenue Northeast at 2:30 a m.

The usual took place. The policemen took a rope from their scout car and attempted to lasso the beast. The beastie fled. He was pursued by cops and a citizen only to be apprehended at West Virginia and Montana Avenues. He had escaped from a slaughterhouse in the 1900 block Bladensburg Road Northeast.

Howard U. Conference

Howard University's division of social sciences is sponsoring a three-day conference on "The Economic Future of the Caribbean," started last night and to be continued tonight at 8 o'clock and tomorrow afternoon at 2. The meetings are being held at Douglass Hall.

Bill Raising U. S. Pensions Reported

Cost of Living Increases Get Approval of Senate Group

The Senate Civil Service Committee reported favorably yesterday a bill amending the Retirement Act so that thousands of former Federal workers now getting annuities may receive cost of living increases.

In reporting the measure, the committee also approved a suggestion from Senator McCarron (Democrat) of Nevada, chairman of the Senate District Committee, that similar retirement increases be granted District policemen and firemen. An amendment covering the District employes will be offered from the floor when the bill is taken up, it was indicated.

The bill reported yesterday allows annuitants retired from annual salaries below $2400, a 15 per cent increase through June 30, 1945, fixing a ceiling of $3000 on the aggregate annuity which can be paid.

Increases also were provided for retired employes whose annual salaries were more than $2400. A ceiling of $3000 also was placed on the aggregate annuity which can be paid this group, which includes about 7000 persons.

Up to the ceiling, members of this higher bracket group may receive a maximum of one-half their highest average salary.

Under the law now in effect, higher bracket employes received a maximum annuity of $1200 yearly. Under the new bill the recomputation of annuities for these employes would be permanent. Unless the proposed measure is reenacted later, the 15 per cent increase on lower bracket annuities will expire in 1945.

On a separate bill giving statutory authority to the board of legal examiners with the Civil Service Commission, established by Executive Order to supervise the examination and appointment of lawyers in the Federal service, the committee took no action yesterday. Charles Fahy, solicitor general of the Justice Department, told the committee there is no appropriation for this board after July 1.

Humidity Dip Affords Relief In Weather

The heat was the topic of fewer conversations yesterday, but it was the humidity, and not the temperature, that dropped.

Yesterday's high was 92 at 4 p. m., compared to Tuesday's 93 but humidity figures for 8:30 a. m. were 49 per cent yesterday against 73 per cent the previous day.

However, the Weather Bureau predicted that the warm weather would continue with a forecast of 92 degrees for today, accompanied by gentle winds.

Bureau statistics indicate that Washingtonians may well complain about the heat. The current month, sweltering with a dozen 90-or-more-degree days, is rapidly equaling the record of June, 1925, when the thermometer hit 90 or above for a total of 14 days.

High temperatures for the first seven days in June of 1925 were: 94, 97, 99, 99, 100, 97 and 94, and the mercury this month has hit the 95-mark twice. The 1925 average was 78.6, while the current June average temperature is 78.4.

But it still isn't as hot as it was on June 9, 1874, when the temperature registered 102 degrees.

Meanwhile, two more heat victims were reported yesterday. Shortly before noon, Lucille Hooper, 16, of 750 Fairmont Street Northwest, collapsed at Georgia Avenue and Irving Street Northwest. She was taken to Freedmen's Hospital and was later released.

Early yesterday Paul Comphere, 23, of 3901 Burns Place Southeast, was discovered unconscious at Ninth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast. Taken to Casualty Hospital, he remained near exhaustion for several hours.

Plan to Tighten District Area Job Freeze Discussed

Action to further freeze workers to their jobs in the District area is being planned, according to Leo B. Werts, acting WMC regional director, late yesterday.

The action will call for requirements in addition to the certificates of eligibility and will be extended to all of WMC region IV, which includes the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina.

One of the additional requirements would be a signed statement from the applicant for a job to his prospective employer, stating his prior employment and whether it was in an essential activity.

The so-called Maryland plan, which involves a statement from the worker's previous employer before a statement of availability will be issued, has been considered, although it was indicated that it would not be applied in the District of Columbia area.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Outraged by Man's Offer of Clandestine Affair, Independent Career Woman Asks: "How Dared He?" Also Wants to Know Where to Meet Worthwhile Men

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have had the,—to me,—humiliating experience of being offered a clandestine affair, when what I want is someone to build a life with me. Why should any man dare to offer a cheap back alley relationship to me,—when the hardest common sense should indicate the many constructive possibilities that the right kind of relationship would afford? You may ask what I have to bring to a "good companionship." Well, I have health, education, talents, accomplishments, a comfortable home (which I bought myself), and a desire to lead a constructive life.

The man in the case wears the uniform of the Marines. Is it an old custom among the Leathernecks to offer such a shoddy and makeshift arrangement, in the name of "Love?" I want a real and satisfying social life, when I "give all" for love. I have some talent for managing money, I enjoy running a home and planning good meals; and, if there were any opportunity for it in this manless town,—I would love to go dancing, which is one of my specialties. (I know esthetic and folk dancing, as well as the ordinary ballroom routines.)

How is a single woman to meet a really worthwhile man? I don't mean a reformed rake; I mean a man who can truly be trusted and loved! Ilka Chase, in her charming book, "Past Imperfect," says of the social life of our time (memory quote): "Carnal relations may be entered into, but are seldom continued, for the most casual of reasons,—the men expect it." Furthermore, she bears out my observations by saying that only one girl in ten really has a good time; while the rest are on the sidelines and none too happy about it.

The other day, I glanced through a horrible book,—"Marriage, Morals and War"—which you may have seen. Viciousness is boiling up like a foul disease everywhere. Really, the military men's attitude towards sex is utterly sickening and I wonder that the Lord does not exterminate the peoples of the Earth and make some nice new ones. The disintegration of morals is more horrible to contemplate than a sudden outpouring of fire and brimstone which would make quicker work of the extermination. I would appreciate some comment from you on this subject in general. DISGUSTED.

DEAR DISGUSTED: A very smart lady, Juliet Farnham, is capturing public attention with a little book just off the press of Simon Publications, New York City,—a book entitled, "How to Meet Men and Marry." The title sounds corny; and the jacketed appearance of the book is in keeping. But to oblige an insistent request, I read the darn thing,—and came in the end (page 199) to the tentative conclusion that Mrs. Farnham's ungloved (though slapdash) handling of her subject probably constitutes a really valuable contribution to the health of American society. As she states in the foreword: "The author believes that the absorption of millions of unmarried young women into marriage is as important a sociological problem as the absorption of the unemployed. Certainly, the right marriage brings increased security or a happier way of life." The book is sympathetically dedicated to lonely girls everywhere.

Book Gives Ungloved Answer to Questions

Getting down to brass tacks in the first paragraph of the opening chapter of the book (a chapter headed, "The Marriage Situation"), Mrs. Farnham allows: "The Battle of the Sexes is an undeclared war. But its objective is matrimony for the feminine participant,—and non-matrimony, usually, for the masculine participant." So there, right off, you have the terse, unvarnished, realist answer to your question: "Why should any man dare to offer a cheap back-alley relationship to me?" Because the prospect of marriage goes against the grain of that particular man! Mrs. Farnham proceeds to say succinctly: "Therefore, in order to conquer . . . it may be well to organize feminine strategy to make men of the world more matrimonially minded. Undoubtedly, once a desirable male stops using his surplus energies to evade matrimony . . . he is a better adjusted person." From there on out, through 16 Machiavellian chapters of "between-us-girls" advice, Mrs. Farnham expounds her streamline, fool-proof strategy for lassoing the untrammeled male and breaking him into husband-harness.

Thought Has Power To Shape Your Life

Here is a book made-to-order for you,—a book free of pessimism and voicing only one DON'T, namely: "Under no circumstances have an affair with a man you hope to marry." And a book, moreover, that gives you a hypodermic injection of Grade-A spiritual philosophy, near the end,—a real pearl of wisdom concerning the creative power of thought, that the author tucks in rather bashfully. In this chapter called, "Decorate your Interior," Mrs. Farnham reminds: "Your attitude must be a constructive one. Definitely, one must expect something good to happen before it becomes externalized in life . . . The way to bring about the externalization of this unity of man and woman (in marriage), in the highest and best sense, is to reflect upon the fact that this is the right, the true plan of the universe,—in every available moment of relaxation and meditation. Realize that IT IS RIGHT for you to be the beloved wife of a beloved husband. And then, full of the encouragement that this realization should bring to you, set about making yourself worthy of that love when it comes to you . . . The right man for you will 'externalize' when you eliminate bitterness, discouragement and inertia . . . Just give Interior Decorating a fair trial, by expecting to manifest this form of Good in your life as the ever-recurring plan of life . . . It's yours unless you are in discord with the modern rhythm of life. Take it from life by expecting it." Get the book, read it carefully and go to work applying its common sense precepts to your special case. Mrs. Farnham practically guarantees to transform the faithful student into a Wholesome Femme Fatale. M. H.

Fountain Special

By Jeanne Contini

Here is a two-piece dress in men's shirting which reminds us of an icy mint limeade. It's a model summer job . . . long, cool, and sparkling. The shape is trim enough to be worth whistling after. Notice the box-pleated skirt which gives with your stride but has a smooth back to avoid crumples. The stripes will carry your figure into nice long lines. Collar, cuffs, and funny-bone bows are white pique which makes the most of the wearer's complexion even if her tan is limited to a few freckles. The whole business dunks like a new duckling and is so beautifully put together, it will stand any number of repeat washes. A thorough-going knockout for about $8.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

My first recollection of using salt in food goes back to the days when I made fudge. My sister, whose experience in cooking started previous to mine, had learned that a dash of salt made her candy take on additional flavor. I adopted this habit of hers as I did many others.

Martha Ellyn

I have also learned that besides the savoriness of foods being enhanced, salt is also good for health. We have all been reading that it is necessary to replace the salt the body loses through perspiration in excessively hot weather such as we have been experiencing. Salt helps maintain the acid base balance of the body, so essential for good health.

There are some foods you can scarcely imagine without salt. Tomatoes and corn are both foods whose flavor goes to new heights with a dash of salt. Here are recipes for making fried corn and corn and tomato chowder.

FRIED CORN

Saute 2 cups corn (fresh, quick-frozen or canned), 1 cup sliced green peppers and 1 teaspoon minced onion in 6 tablespoons butter or margarine. Stir frequently so it will not burn. Add ½ teaspoon salt, a dash of pepper and ¼ cup sliced pimientos if desired. Cook until thoroughly heated. Serve garnished with sprigs of parsley. Serves four.

CORN AND TOMATO CHOWDER

Saute 2 tablespoons chopped onion and ¼ cup celery in 4 tablespoons butter or margarine until golden brown. Add 2 cups tomatoes and 2 cups corn and cook 2 minutes. Add ¼ teaspoon soda, 1¾ teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon sugar and stir well. Add to 3 cups scalded top milk and serve at once. Serves six.

Fried corn will make a good item on the menu when you want to prepare an easy meal on a hot night. Cold cuts would team up with this vegetable in a commendable fashion.

Cardiograph Makes Heart Test Simple

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

You have probably heard of the electrocardiograph. You may even have had an electrocardiogram taken. The procedure is painless and simple. You walk into a doctor's office and you say, "This is the day I am going to have my electrocardiogram." And he says, "Oh, yes, I will introduce you to Miss EKG," and that is the last you see of the doctor for that week.

Miss EKG turns out to be a very handsome young woman in a white uniform, who takes you into a private room and has you lie down and she rolls up one sleeve and rubs the skin with salt solution and straps an electrode to it and then the same thing to the other and the same thing to your left leg. Then she brings over a box that looks a good deal like a portable radio and begins to turn dials and says, "Uh-huh," to herself several times; or if she is very cultured, she says "Ah." And then finally she says to you, "Hold your breath." She does this three or four times and then she puts something on your chest just over your heart and does it again and then takes the straps off and politely wipes the salt solution off your arms and leg and says, "I think I have caught you in a very favorable pose. Come back next Wednesday." And that it all there is to it.

You come back next Wednesday and the doctor has some little strips of paper that look like small photographic films, and he says, "I see-ee-e." Then he looks at you over his glasses and says either, "Well, there isn't very much the matter with you," or he says, "You will have to give up tobacco, wine, red meat, golf, the movies, kissing your wife—or anybody else—and take one of these pills three times a day and come back in six months."

What goes on behind all this is a little complicated, but it makes sense. Miss EKG, with her instrument, has been measuring the change in the electrical potential of your heart muscle. If you take any muscle of the body and put an electrode on it, as the muscle contracts there will be a change in electrical potential from one electrode to the other.

The heart is a muscle and the mysterious box that is drawn up beside you when you are having an electrocardiogram taken contains a very delicate galvanometer string which is so delicate that it measures the slightest changes in potential when the heart muscle contracts.

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Sometimes this department seems so full of problems one tends to forget there are enormous numbers of happy, healthy babies, whose days are uneventful. They sleep and eat and laugh and grow, with joy the accompaniment of their living.

Mrs. W. G. S. says because she was a graduate nurse people expect more of her baby who came 14 years after her marriage and the baby is living up to those expectations.

"Our baby cried a lot when we brought him home from the hospital and, as I firmly believe crying in a young baby is due to insufficient food, I fed him when he cried. I literally kept him stuffed. When the doctor saw him he said he liked to see a baby with a full tummy.

"In a week I got him on a regular schedule. Of course, there were 'burps' to be given care. On numerous occasions when he cried an hour or so after being put to bed, I would lift him up, pat his back until he burped and he would go right back to sleep.

"He is now 7 months old and weighs 21½ pounds and is in perfect health and solid as a rock. When he was six months old he was on three meals a day and no bottle. He takes all his milk from a cup. Up to that time he took evaporated milk, now he takes homogenized fresh milk.

"He sleeps from 7:30 to 7:30. When he was two months old I'd discontinued his 10 a. m. feeding and he has been sleeping all night ever since. He has been in his own room and his own bed since he came from the hospital. I've never lost a night's sleep with him.

"Here is his schedule. His first meal is at 8 a. m., at which time he gets cereal and milk. Bath at 9:30, orange juice and cod liver oil at 10 and nap then until 11:30.

"On alternate days he gets vegetable soup or strained vegetable, 4 tablespoons of macaroni or rice and 3 or 4 tablespoons of gelatine.

"He sat up alone at 5½ months, sat in high chair one month earlier. He now tries to stand holding onto a chair. He has a wonderful disposition. We are so tickled with his progress."

Tidy Girl Is Still the One Who Gets Advancements

Getting that first job is so easy for this year's sweet girl graduates that some of them may forget that the fundamentals of success in a business career are still the same. The smart girl is the one who will take the long view about her vocation, and will be as careful to qualify in every particular as though jobs were hard to get and hard to keep. Jobs are plentiful these days, and easy to keep, too, because every pair of hands is needed, but promotions and advancement are still dependent upon the worker's attitude and the worker's appearance and personality.

Personal neatness and tidiness at the desk or bench are still considered essential for efficient workmanship. The girl with tousseled, unwashed hair doesn't give promise of being particular about the way she does her work. If she is doing exacting work in a war industry, her carelessness may produce faulty parts. It may also cause accidents. Both retard the war effort. Personnel managers know from long experience that employes who are immaculate about their own bodies and clothes are much more likely to produce accurate work.

CHESTNUT FARMS DAIRY

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

'A Cottage Built for Two'—or More

A RURAL vine-covered cottage used to be every girl's dream of the housing requirements for marital and family bliss. Now this dream, which capitulated after the last war to the apartment kitchenet with a "darling breakfast nook," seems to be returning. Postwar planners in the housing field are talking a lot about homes that will provide "fresh air, sunshine and green grass for everybody," or to put it more technically the "rural housing unit."

Self-styled realists may jeer at the Utopian plans of architects, sociologists and planners who wish to do away with concentrated city living with its attendant slum areas, disease epidemics, "zoot suiters," etc. But an increasing number of hard-headed business leaders seem to be falling in with the plans of the Utopians. Moreover, women in both this country and Great Britain are showing more interest in better housing than in almost any phase of postwar planning. And women are eminently practical, or at least concrete minded, in their housing ideas as many an architect has found.

More Country Living to Follow War

SEVERAL trends in postwar housing seem certain. There will be a great deal of it—1,500,000 homes a year must be built after the war some authorities say. There will be a definite movement toward country living. The needs of children will be given greater consideration, both in homes and in apartments. Cities will be planned on a long time basis and in a regional manner to include their environs. Industrial communities, living quarters will be as important as working quarters.

Two things—shorter working hours and faster transportation—will cause a decline in city living, predicts Bror Dahlberg president of the Celotex Corporation. In a recent address at the annual meeting of the American Society of Planning Officials, Mr. Dalhberg came out boldly with such seemingly Utopian remarks as:

"Homes can be placed in terms of flying time: a hundred miles may be comfortably near."

"Most of us take it for granted that we will work six or at least five days a week. This is not necessarily so. The time measure of a man's productive capacity is not how many hours he works as how much he produces in those hours."

"It is my fundamental conviction that few people really like city life."

"Families may have two homes; a house in the city to be occupied four days a week and a country residence where they can live more fully and freely the other three days."

"It should be shouted from the housetops that this world can be whatever the people wish to make it."

Not only families but also industries are expected to follow the rural trend. Many industries are now making plans to move from large cities to inland country areas where they will have space to expand and greater safety from bombs in event of war. Around these plants will develop rural housing projects for workers.

More Elbow Room in Future Cities

WOMEN OF ENGLAND, who are already deep in their future housing plans and who have a native love of country life, are emphasizing even in that small island, the rural home, or at least the city home that has breathing space, Elizabeth Denby, a leading housing expert of Great Britain, reports that the first principle of national home planning to be accepted is that all first class agricultural and pasture land shall be preserved forever from building. This would mean that many wedges of such land would come into the industrial areas.

In this country there is increasing talk of the spreading of cities fanwise over large areas and a decline of the huge many-storied apartment units. Also, with a huge crop of children coming on following this war, there is expected to be increasing demand for homes that offer children outdoor activities, as well as apartments that cater to their needs.

All this housing discussion shows a widespread desire to get back to a more natural form of living than the city congestion that developed during this Nation's industrial rise. Mothers of today would do well to familiarize their sons and daughters with the technique of victory gardening. For the household of tomorrow seems destined to make some sort of a return to the soil.

News of the Women's Clubs

Fun for 'teen age girls is not rationed this summer, if they avail themselves of the activities planned for them at the Y. W. C. A. Under the direction of Miss Jassamine Cobb, Girl Reserve executive, a day camp program for the junior high school girls who must remain in the city during the summer, will be carried on three days a week—Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. Camp Stay-at-Home, held at the association building, Seventeenth and K Streets Northwest, opens June 28 and will run through July 30. Registrations will be accepted on the fourth floor at the opening session.

The program at Camp Stay-at-Home will include tennis, with instruction given by Miss Sarah Ann Harrison. The craft shop will be under the direction of Mrs. Robert Field. Mrs. J. Harbie Wilkinson will conduct a personality pep course. Miss Esther Wilcox, assistant Girl Reserve secretary, will be in charge of dramatics. There will also be swimming in the Y. W. C. A. pool, under the supervision of the Health Department.

Girls Take to Sea

Eighteen senior Girl Scout mariners are leaving today for a 10-day training vacation at a sailing camp at Shadyside, Md.

The mariners will occupy the boathouse owned by Capt. Ed Leatherbury and as part of their training will sail the catboats which the captain built during the winter. Also included in their training will be life-saving and the Red Cross functional swimming course. In charge of this phase of their training will be Miss Catherine Hoagland, Red Cross water safety instructor.

This is the second summer the mariners have trained at Shadyside. For five years prior to the war the mariners sailed each summer on a three-masted schooner on a Chesapeake Bay cruise.

Skipper of the mariners is Mrs. Rebecca Spitler, who will accompany them. She will have assisting her Mrs. Alfred Cahen, mate, and Nancy Wakeman and Honora Mattare, two of her former mariners who won the rank of Old Salt, highest award given to mariners.

To Get Movie Screen

Children of Glenn Dale Sanatorium tonight will receive the moving picture screen which the Eight and Forty, salon departmental, through its chapeau departmental, Mrs. Mary B. Corwin, will present to the sanatorium. Mrs. Virginia McCarthy, child welfare chairman of the salon, has been instrumental in obtaining the screen. The children of Glenn Dale will be pleasantly surprised when the officers and partners turn out in their red chapeaus, white or red plumes, red capes and white costumes.

Study Club Meets

Mrs. Tomas Cajigas and Mrs. Joseph F. Randall were hostesses at a luncheon Tuesday at the Shoreham for members of the Political Study Club.

The luncheon was in honor of Mrs. Benjamin Soule Gantz, the new president of the club, and Mrs. Wintemute W. Sloan, the retiring president.

Guests were, Mrs. Needham Turnage, Mrs. Frederick Gauss, Mrs. Frank Shortall, Mrs. Tillman Bacon Parks, Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniels, Mrs. L. W. Kasenhagen, Mrs. William Keohan, Mrs. Marion Berryhill, Miss Alice Boss, Mrs. Edgar Quayle, Mrs. Fay Harper, Mrs. Henry R. Phi Delta Delta Reports

A meeting which brought to a close for the summer season a progressive year of the Washington Alumnae Chapter of Phi Delta Delta was held recently at the home of Miss Mildred Dager.

The program included reports from the hospitality and war service committee under chairmanship of Mrs. Ella Evans Higman, the magazine committee under chairmanship of Mrs. Sallie B. Presley, the program committee under chairmanship of Miss Louise Foster, and the publicity committee under chairmanship of Mrs. Robert E. Freer.

Mrs. Dewey Honored

The Speaker's dining room at the Capitol on Tuesday was the scene of a luncheon given by the Red Cross congressional surgical dressing group, honoring Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, wife of Congressman Dewey of Illinois.

Mrs. Dewey organized this group in February, and its workroom is in the annex of the Congressional Library. Since it has been organized the women have made 50,000 bandages; 30 Red Cross pins have been awarded for 60 hours' work per person, and the group, representing 40 States of the Union, works two days a week.

Mrs. Roth, wife of Representative Roth of California, on behalf of the group presented Mrs. Dewey with a silver bowl to express appreciation for her work.

O. P. A. Regulation M-339

THE NEWER Jelleff's 1214-20 F Street

To Congressman Boren's Committee—

Here is a stocking stamped Grade A—in strict accordance with O. P. A. regulation M 339.

It is not full fashioned.

It doesn't have the same trimness at the ankle that is found in a full fashioned stocking.

But it takes less man power to make it.

That's why we promote it in war time. We did the same thing back in 1917 and 1918.

Many younger girls like this stocking.

They call it the "bare-leg" because it has no seam up the back. To us it doesn't seem to be a first class stocking but the professor says—"Stamp it Grade A."

340 needle—rayon and cotton stocking—no seam, Grade A— 59c pair

If fashion shows were not out for the duration, we'd be glad to have this stocking and the other new and old stockings shown on living models for Mr. Boren's committee. Sorry, Mr. Congressman, but fashion shows are out.

Nancy Shea At Work on New Book

Nancy Shea, author of "Army Wife," coauthor of "Navy Wife," is receiving plaudits and praise for "The WAAC," recently off the presses.

Wielding a fluent pen, Mrs. Shea is now at work on the SPARS, obtaining much of her material in Palm Beach, where there are 2000 SPARS, some of them quartered at the Biltmore. She has taken Glanymor, a charming house at Palm Beach, where she is doing her writing and will be there until August. Then she will be off for Newport, R. I., with the view of getting material for still another book—this one to be on the WAVES.

Reviewers have been enthusiastic in praise of Mrs. Shea's most recent book, "The WAAC." Says one: "The book informs, describes and analyzes, all in fast fashion. It will be read with equal enjoyment by the woman who has lived through its story, by the woman who hopes to experience it and by interested souls who wonder just what this woman's army is all about."

Organization and development of the Woman's Army Auxiliary Corps are detailed in snappy picturesque prose on the pages of the book. Along the technical way, time is taken out for advice. "Don'ts for Auxies" include the warning: "Don't become a professional griper or complainer. The Army is said to recognize this trait to be of value as an emotional cathartic, but don't overdo it." Another states, "Don't date men officers, EVER, under any circumstances."

Enjoying A Summertime Interlude . . .

The soldier of the family was on sick leave, following a stay in the hospital. All three are now back in Washington, where the A. G. and his wife plan to be the remainder of the summer. Randolph will return soon to the Air Corps' Technical Training School at Amherst.

Joseph L. Reids To Make Home In Capital

Returned to Washington after a brief wedding trip, are Joseph Lester Reid, U. S. C. G., and the former Miss Hazel Irene LaPrade.

They were married last week in All Souls' Unitarian Church, with the Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. LaPrade of Bowling Green, Va., and Mr. Reid is the son of Eppa C. Reid and the late Mrs. Reid of Warrenton, Va.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was costumed in a gown of white satin designed on Victorian lines. Her train length veil was held with a halo cap of chantilly lace and she carried a bouquet of white rosebuds and lilies of the valley. Miss Lillian Clay LaPrade, the maid of honor, wore blush pink marquisette with matching veil and spring flowers in her hair matching her arm bouquet. Ramana Lee Corbin was flower girl and Russell Elliott Leathem, jr., was flower boy.

Lieut. G. Bernard Reid was best man for his brother. A reception followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Corbin.

At Newport

Mrs. James Griswold Wentz has gone to Newport, R. I., for the summer and will be at the Hotel Viking instead of opening her home, Beau Maris. The Countess di Zoppola is also there for the season, staying with her mother, Mrs. Stanley Mortimer.

Catherine Casey Making Plans For Wedding

Of interest to Washington is the announcement of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Shepherd of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Catherine Casey, to Lieut. (j. g.) Robert J. Murphy.

A native of Asheville, N. C., Miss Casey attended the Washington School for Secretaries. Her fiance was graduated from the Naval Academy with the class of 1942.

No date has been set for the wedding, which will take place the latter part of the summer, as arrangements are awaiting the return of Lieut. Murphy from sea duty. Attendants already chosen for the wedding are Miss Mary Louis Casey, Miss Dorothy Wilkinson, Miss Eula Council, Miss Stella Budzanowski, Mrs. Frances Walker and Mrs. Kathryn Dorset. William Barry will be the ring bearer and Carolyn Williams the flower girl.

British Officer and WAVE, Recently Wed, to Live Here

Lieut. Col. Arthur Philip Casey Lyons, Royal Army Service Corps, and his bride, the former Miss Jane Newhall, ensign, U. S. Naval Reserve, whose marriage took place Monday at Williamstown, Mass., will come to Washington to make their home for the duration of the war.

The bride is the daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Richard A. Newhall of Williamstown. Colonel Lyons is the son of Col. Sir Henry Lyons and Lady Lyons of Great Missenden, Bucks, England. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents with the Rev. Ben Roberts of Newton Highlands, Mass., who officiated at the wedding of the bride's parents 24 years ago to the day, performing the ceremony. Miss Elizabeth Boughton of Boonton, N. J., played Bach and Beethoven selections for the wedding music.

Miss Mary Lee Wilson of Ayer, Mass., was the maid of honor and only attendant, and Maj. Alexander John Rutherford, Royal Army Service Corps, served as best man. A reception at the Williams College Faculty House followed the service.

The bride was graduated from Smith College in the 1942 class, and Colonel Lyons attended Eton and Queens College at Oxford.

Kreachbaum—Thomasset

Miss Eleanor Lee Thomasset, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald G. Thomasset of Arlington, Va., became the bride on Saturday of Charles Alfred Kreachbaum, U. S. N. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Kreachbaum of Columbus, Ohio. The wedding was held at 4:30 o'clock in St. George's Episcopal Church in Arlington with the Rev. Stanley E. Ashton officiating.

Mr. Thomasset gave his daughter in marriage and Mrs. George D. Baumann of Arlington was the bride's only attendant. Harold A. Kreachbaum was his brother's best man. The ceremony was followed by a small reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Peters—Wyne

Following their wedding trip in Virginia and Pennsylvania Pvt. N. Willard Peters, U. S. A., will return to duty at Fort Belvoir, Va., and his bride, the former Miss Constance Dare Wyne, will resume her work with the War Department, also at Fort Belvoir.

The wedding took place on June 17 at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Peters, in Bethesda, Md. The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Walton Rose of North Fork, Va. For her wedding she wore a light blue romaine crepe frock with navy blue accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Nadine R. Reed of North Fork, Va., was matron of honor and only attendant, and Corpl. Ray Patterson, U. S. A., of Fort Belvoir was best man.

Miller—Valentine

The University of Virginia Chapel, beautifully decorated with palms, seasonal flowers and cathedral candles, was the setting on June 21 at 4 o'clock for the wedding of Miss Cecilia Grey Valentine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lee Valentine of the university, to Eugene Scott Miller, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Miller, sr., of Philadelphia. Dr. D. D. Holt of Lynchburg, Va., officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a two-piece, street-length dress of white pique and a white hat of matching material. A white orchid was her corsage.

The sister of the bride and maid of honor, Miss Eleanor Lee Valentine, wore a pale pink ensemble similar to that worn by the bride. Her corsage was of gardenias.

The bridegroom had as best man Lieut. Mose Clements of Camp Pendleton, Virginia Beach. The ushers were Joseph Dillon of Arlington, Va., and William Carter of Alexandria, Va.

The bride attended Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Va., and the University of Virginia. The bridegroom was graduated from the school of engineering at the University of Virginia in March, 1943, where he was a member of the Theta Tau fraternity. Mr. Miller is now employed with the Eastman Kodak Co. in Rochester, N. Y. After a brief wedding trip the couple will make their home in Rochester.

J. D. Hamiltons To Entertain For Weekend

Mr. and Mrs. John D. M. Hamilton of Willow Brook Farm, Paoli, Pa., will have as their weekend guests Mrs. Hamilton's mother, Mrs. Ormond Lawson-Johnston of London, now living in New York; Mrs. Culpepper Duff of Thomasville, Ga., and Mrs. Drew Pearson of Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton will entertain at dinner Saturday evening in their honor.

Mrs. Hamilton, who was Jane Kendall of Washington, is the former wife of George Grant Mason, jr., of Washington. Her mother was Mrs. Lyman Kendall before her marriage to Mr. Lawson-Johnston.

Since her marriage to Mr. Hamilton, the former Jane Kendall, who was one of Washington's belles and beauties, has gone all out for farm life. Their house of colonial period has been restored; their broad acres planted in a variety of crops, and there is a flower garden surrounding the house which is Mrs. Hamilton's special property

Mrs. Stotesbury To Give United Nations Fete

Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury will be hostess for the United Nations Club Sunday afternoon and evening at her estate on Foxhall Road.

This white-haired matriarch of Washington and Philadelphia society, in offering her beautiful house and grounds to the club for the day, declared it gave her the greatest pleasure to do even "this little bit" in this war. There are many who have cause to remember the outstanding efforts Mrs. Stotesbury, then much younger and more active, made on behalf of the Allies in the first World War.

Club members, who include representatives of each of the 32 United Nations, will have the use of the badminton courts and the other facilities in the afternoon, and in the evening there will be a buffet supper and dancing. The game rooms in the house also will be available.

MRS. JOSEPH JAMES DANIELS

Miss Smith Is Married to J. J. Daniels

Miss Elizabeth Ann Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Smith, and Joseph James Daniels, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard D. Daniels, were married yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, the ceremony taking place in St. Gabriel's Church. The Rev. Louis W. Albert officiated.

Filmy white marquisette fashioned the bride's gown, which had a long train, long sleeves edged in ruffles, and a ruffled yoke of marquisette and lace. Her finger-tip veil was trimmed with lace and held with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses and baby's breath. Mr. Smith gave his daughter in marriage.

Miss Margaret Daniels, who was maid of honor, was in yellow lace and net and with it she wore a yellow net hat. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Betty Setler and Miss Elinor Garlem, wore blue lace and net frocks with matching hats of net and carried pink roses.

Bernard D. Daniels, jr., was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Walter Wilkinson, jr., and Jerry McLane. A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. Mrs. Smith, mother of the bride, wore a dusty pink gown with navy blue accessories, and Mrs. Daniels, the bridegroom's mother, had chosen a light blue gown and black accessories.

After a wedding trip to New York Mr. and Mrs. Daniels will return to Washington to live.

Mrs. Wilson to Sponsor Ship

When the U. S. S. McDermut slides down the ways, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the former President, will wield the traditional champagne bottle.

The destroyer, soon to be launched, is named after Lieut. Comdr. David A. McDermut, a Civil War hero who lost his life in an expedition at Sabine Pass in 1863. In the absence of any known relative of the Naval hero, Mrs. Wilson was selected to officiate at the christening.

At Summer Home In Virginia

Mrs. Wirt Robinson and her daughter, Miss Evelyn Byrd Robinson, are spending the summer at their country home, Arrowhead Farm, in Nelson County, Va.

Miss Robinson, who is the daughter of the late Col. Robinson of West Point, was graduated with honors from the Maret School on May 29. She has received a scholarship from Barnard College and will enter that New York university in the fall.

C. F. Bowersett To Take Bride In Late Summer

Mr. and Mrs. James Minor Settle of Flint Hill, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Minor, to Charles Franklin Bowersett of Washington. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Frank Bowersett of Flint Hill.

Miss Settle attended Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Va. Mr. Bowersett was graduated from Virginia Polytechnic Institute, where he was a member of Pi Tau Sigma, national honorary fraternity. The wedding will take place in the late summer.

Purely Personal

Senator and Mrs. Harry F. Byrd are expecting their son, Pvt. Beverley Byrd, to join them soon at their home, Rosemont, near Berryville, Va. Private Byrd was inducted into the Army last January and has graduated at Fort Benning, Ga., as a paratrooper.

Mme. Camille Chautemps will entertain at a small cocktail party on Saturday and is asking a few of her guests to stay on for buffet supper. The fete is to celebrate her birthday.

* * * *

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William Connor have closed their home on Tracy Place and have gone to Gloucester, Mass., to spend the summer at their home there.

* * * *

Admiral and Mrs. Timothy Kelleher have left on a trip to New York and New London, Conn., and will be away about two weeks.

* * * *

The former Attorney General, Homer Cummings, and Mrs. Cummings are spending several days in New York at the Waldorf-Astoria.

* * * *

Col. and Mrs. Frank J. Morrow have left their apartment at the Shoreham to spend the summer in Santa Fe, N. Mex.

* * * *

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Carl Holm of Hyattsville, Md., are spending a holiday at the Oyster Harbors Club, Cape Cod, Mass. Commander Holm is stationed in Washington. Other capitalites at Oyster Harbors are Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Rapley, who have taken the Windmill House there, and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Rapley.

* * * *

Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane returned to her home on Long Island earlier in the week after a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur White at their home, Chilton, near Middleburg, Va. Mrs. Sloane spent much of her time at her Brookmeade Stables while in Virginia. The house on Brookmeade Farm is closed, but Mrs. Sloane will open it during the fall months.

* * * *

Mrs. Paul M. Linebarger has returned from her annual visit to Springfield and Ash Grove, Mo., where she spent two weeks, and is again at her home on R Street.

* * * *

Mrs. Leo Baum has left for Goldsboro, N. C., where she will spend two weeks with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baum.

Whether He Is an Old-Timer or a Newcomer, His Characteristics Are Obvious and Unmistakable; Same Goes for Female of This Particular Species

TYPICAL WARTIME WASHINGTONIAN (male variety):

He refers to all higher-ups as if they were his old college mates; speaks familiarly, for example, of "Henry" and "Sam," even though the Vice President and the House Speaker probably wouldn't recognize him if they met him on the street, or anywhere else . . .

He is a confirmed name-dropper; leaves the impression that he dines nightly, or tosses off a daily cocktail, with some of the Biggest Men in the Government . . .

He is gregarious and curious, and while he may loudly decry the social goings-on in the Capital, he never misses any party if he can help it . . .

He takes a pessimistic view on almost everything. (It's sure to be a 10-year war" . . . "The postwar world will be worse than anything you can imagine" . . . "We probably won't have enough food or heat next winter, and there won't be even enough gasoline for buses." . . .)

He is inside the inside track on practically everything; hints mysteriously that if he told all he knew there wouldn't be many military secrets left . . .

With out-of-towners, he assumes an air of supreme importance and indicates that one has to be around Washington for quite a while before he can really find his way around . . .

If he is a cave-dweller, he speaks fondly—and incessantly—of "what a lovely city this used to be." And he goes out of his way to tell you that IF Washington IS a madhouse, the newcomers are entirely responsible . . .

If he is down from New York for a duration job, he never lets you forget he is only temporarily a Washingtonian; and he bemoans the fact there's "positively no entertainment in this town, and no place to eat and dance" . . . yet almost any evening you can find him dining out at a popular dance spot . . .

If his wife and children are not here with him, he pens plaintive letters to them—telling them how uncomfortable Washington is, how nobody can ever find a seat on bus or streetcar, and how the tropical heat is making a complete wreck of him . . . yet around 6 p. m. when you see him in an air-conditioned cocktail bar with a blonde, he looks cool and comfortable enough . . .

He is confident that affairs in his own particular office would run far more smoothly if he were put in complete charge, with no questions asked on any account.

He feels his capabilities and achievements have never been fully appreciated by either Congress or the White House; and he is convinced he deserves a better job, higher recognition, more publicity and a bigger paycheck.

TYPICAL WARTIME WASHINGTONIAN (distaff side):

She blames Mrs. Roosevelt, positively and completely, for the entire "servant problem."

Times being what they are she is doggedly determined to stick to her many war jobs right through the sizzling season. (It may be as late as July 1 before her frayed nerves force her to pack her bags and take off to cooler climes.)

Invariably, when asked to a luncheon, tea, or dinner, she wonders if she can make it . . . what with ALL the bandage-rolling motor driving, and canteen serving she has to do—but somehow, she manages to get there. ("Of course, you don't mind if I wear my uniform, do you, Dear?")

She takes pains to inform society writers that she is doing "no real entertaining these days—just a few friends in, now and then, you know," but she rarely opens her doors for fewer than 50 at a time.

She deplores the publicity showered on a tight little social set in the Nation's Capital, but she loves to see her own name in the newspaper—particularly when her costumes are described in detail.

She will work for almost any good "cause" . . . but she works hardest when news photographers are around.

She knows all about the private lives of ever so many public persons.

Like the male of the species, she knows Everybody by first name. Her line of talk invariably is accented with references to—oh, well, let's say such prominent Washingtonians as Frances Hull, Courtney Espil, Edith Gerry and Marion Frankfurter, even though those particular women are among the few whose dignity does not lend itself to the first-name-on-first-meeting Capital tradition. (I've never yet heard anybody address Mrs. Hull as Frances.)

She has been thoroughly inoculated with the virus of self-importance, and she wonders if anybody in all Washington is busier than her husband; is doing more to help win the war; is making a Greater Economic Sacrifice to stay here.

She had rather talk than eat, but she eats quite a lot . . . usually at large luncheons exclusively for ladies.

She goes dreamy-eyed talking about what she and her family will do after the war. They will retire to some quiet place, she tells you softly, and spend the rest of their tired lives far from the madding crowd that IS Washington. You realize, of course, that war or peace, she will never leave . . . for long. This town is her dish, and she knows it.

Elizabeth Fox Engaged to Fred Carter

Capt. John E. J. Fox, British Army, and Mrs. Fox announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Anne Nutting, to Fred Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Carter of St. Johns, Newfoundland.

Miss Fox is a member of the British Embassy secretarial staff. Her father has been with the British Minister of Supply Mission for the past three years. Mr. Carter is a member of the firm of James Baird, Ltd., exporters, of St. Johns, and was educated at Merchiston Castle School in Edinburgh, Scotland.

Vice President's Daughter Goes to Mexico To Continue Study of Spanish; Also to Paint

She comes by her interest in Latin America naturally.

Miss Jean Wallace, daughter of our good-neighboring Vice President, Henry Wallace, and Spanish-speaking Mrs. Wallace, has arrived in Mexico City, where she will spend the summer brushing up on her Spanish at the University of Mexico.

Tall, dark-haired Miss Wallace spent about 10 days in Washington with her parents in their Wardman Park apartment after her graduation on June 6 from Connecticut College, where she majored in fine arts. Her father was on hand to address her graduating class and they came back together to the Capital. She then took off last week for Mexico with Miss Catherine Compton and several other of her just-graduated friends.

Principle reason for the trip is to give this talented young artist a chance to become fluent in the Spanish to which she has devoted many of her college study hours. She has taken her easel and paints with her and will probably bring back a group of Mexican-inspired paintings. She has been interested in art since her earlier school days at National Cathedral School and followed it up in her university classrooms. Although she does all types of painting, her natural talent is for portraits.

Just what she will do when she returns to Washington in the fall has not yet been settled. But whatever it is, the odds are that it will have a Latin-American emphasis.

In New York

Capt. and Mrs. I. V. Hitchcock and their daughter, Miss Amy Hitchcock, are spenling a few days at the Plaza in New York. Also there from Washington are Mrs. Victor Blakeslee and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lowry.

Weekend Guest Order of Season In Virginia

It used to be "Drive down for the day." Now it's "Come for the weekend, and come by bus."

Thus has gasoline rationing changed the tone of traditional Virginia hospitality. Time was when every Sunday found scores of Capitalites spinning countryward. Now most of them catch buses on Saturday morning, stay over the weekend and start back to Washington on Monday.

Among the Virginia residents entertaining at a series of weekend parties is Mrs. T. Richard Cowell, whose home, Sunnyside, near Upperville, is one of the beauty spots of the hunt country section. This weekend Mrs. Cowell will have among her guests Mrs. J. Herbert Stabler and her son, Welles Stabler, of Washington.

Visiting Mrs. Cowell a few days ago was Mrs. John Creighton of Westport, Conn. Her husband, Capt. John Creighton, U. S. N., who also has been a Virginia visitor recently, is now on duty in Bermuda.

Formerly Naval Attache to China, Captain Creighton was shifted to duty in Singapore and went from there to Hongkong, then to Java and finally to Australia.

Diplomat Weds First By Proxy, Again Yesterday

In a simply arranged ceremony at St. Anne's Church yesterday, Senorita Maria Irene Diaz Escobar of Paraguay became the bride of Dr. Nestor M. Campos Ros, First Secretary of the Paraguay Embassy, with the Ambassador of Paraguay, Dr. Carlos Velazquez, serving as best man and Senora de Velazquez the bride's only attendant.

The ceremony, held at 6 o'clock, followed a recent wedding by proxy. The bride arrived a few days ago by plane from Uruguay. Father Collins officiated yesterday and the bridal couple were entertained at a small informal reception at the Paraguay Embassy following their wedding.

The bride is the daughter of Zoilo Escobar, one of Paraguay's leading lawyers, and Senora de Escobar. Dr. Campos Ros was on the Tribunals in Paraguay before coming to Washington on his first diplomatic assignment little over a year ago. He and his bride will make their home here after their wedding trip.

Nice to Come Home To

You couldn't want a lovelier, more dependable dining table "linens" than the cork mats pictured here. Under planned economy in the home should come the conservation of table linens. These attractive mats will save the wear on hard-to-get linens and their washing. Decorated with flowers in lovely colors and attractive conventional designs, there is a type to go with any table color scheme. For information concerning their source, call NAtional 4200, extension 324.

By Martha Ellyn

Linen and cotton stocks are fast becoming depleted. Many household items are now difficult to buy. So we had best conserve our table linens and not rub-a-dub them into oblivion.

That's one thought concerning household linens. But the picture is two-faced. Laundry service is already restricted. The usual clean, neat package of household items doesn't always make a quick return. All this adds up to the fact that in many households soap suds froths frequently to keep up an adequate supply of household linens and clothing.

Home laundry is not a difficult job if the equipment is adequate. But many homes do not have available laundry equipment. That's why we should cut the corners in laundry. Sheets, pillowslips, bath towels, shirts and clothing must of course be washed. But a saving can be effected in table "linens."

Cork place mats are the answer to the washing of table linens. Many local shops are now offering these mats in wide variety. Whatever your choice of color to fit your color scheme or dishes and glassware, you will find it available. The patterns are both floral and conventional. Some are of more sturdy construction than others but they all have one dependable quality—WASHABLE. Washable means that a damp cloth will eliminate any extraneous matter or spots and the original beauty is restored.

Call National 4200, Extension 324, and learn the shops which are offering these items that will lighten household responsibilities.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain

If you want to have a really slim, firm midriff, work on expanding your ribcage. That is what Nadine Conner, lovely Metropolitan Opera and radio singer, believes is the main secret of streamlining—and her own figure is unusually streamlined.

When I asked if she actually takes the exercise she has posed for, she almost took affront. She stood up and said, "Just hit me in the diaphragm and you will find out how strong I am!" And, believe me, she wasn't fooling. She has the muscle tone of a prize fighter along with the measurements of a movie star. She is 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 115 pounds, and measures like this: Bust, 35 inches; waist, 24 inches; hips, 35 inches.

Miss Conner is convinced that the average person who exercises does not pay half enough attention to breath control, and that it is just as important as doing the exercise accurately. It made an opera singer out of her! She took up singing because she was not as robust as her parents thought she should be and her singing instructor put all the stress on the development of a strong diaphragm.

As she explains it, "You first have to get a feeling of suspension through the ribs." To do that, stand erect with one hand on the diaphragm in front, the other against the ribs in back. Take a long, deep breath and try to widen your ribcage without letting the abdomen protrude or hunching your shoulders. Hold it, and exhale.

In all your exercises, try to synchronize your breathing with the movements, inhaling as you go into action, exhaling as you relax.

For that super-slim waist, Miss Conner enthusiastically recommends one that is said to be an Army standby:

Movement: Keep pulling up with the abdominal muscles as you give a sudden twist at the waist and try to touch your right elbow to your right knee. Don't be discouraged if you can't go all the way. Just trying is exercise. Straighten up, and twist to the left. And watch your breathing. Inhale as you go into action and exhale as you relax. The movement and breathing should be as rhythmical as you can make them.

Another exercise she particularly likes is a stretcher. Begin by relaxing and drooping limply toward the floor. Let your head, trunk and arms dangle. Then start stretching up and inhaling as you go. Bring your trunk erect, hands high overhead, and go up on your toes. Then lower your arms straight out at sides, shoulder level, exhale, and bring arms down at sides. Try it.

Miss Connor likes all the favorite exercises as long as they are done with breath control in mind. Give her idea a trial in your nxet workout. Who knows, it might make a singer out of you!

Good exercises in which to practice breathing are given in the leaflet "Streamline the Midsection." Send large stamped return envelope for the set.

How to Can Fruit In a Water Bath

The water bath is a safe, efficient method for canning fruits, tomatoes and rhubarb. Do not use water bath for canning for any other vegetables, meat or poultry These must be canned by the pressure-cooker method.

You need a large, tightly covered utensil, deep enough so that water will cover the tops of the jars with at least 1 inch to spare. There must be a rack to fit the bottom of the utensil. If you don't have a large, porcelain enamel cooker, made especially for water-bath canning, a big lard can with a wire mesh rack on the bottom, or a wash boiler with a slotted, wood rack to fit the bottom, will do.

Be sure water is boiling when the jars are placed in the canner and kept boiling during the processing time.

Always have sufficient water in the canner to cover the tops of the jars with at least 2 inches of water.

Be sure the jars are placed sufficiently far apart on the rack so that boiling water can circulate around each jar.

Use hot jars for packing the food and hot syrup or boiling water in covering the food in the jars. This will prevent breakage when the jars are placed in the boiling water.

Fill the jars to within one-half inch of the top. The liquid or sirup must only cover the food and not come to the top of jars.

Lower the jars into the hot water slowly to avoid breakage.

When jars are placed in canner the temperature of the water will be lowered. Have heat under the canner high enough so that the water in the canner will start boiling the shortest possible time after all jars have been placed in the canner.

Start counting the processing time when the water is actually boiling again. Keep it boiling constantly and at the same rate of speed.

Remove jars from canner the moment processing time is up.

Paves Way For Biggest Feminine AEF

Associated Press Feature

London.—One of the busiest women in all Britain right now is the commanding officer of the forthcoming second feminine American Expeditionary Force, which will be the largest group of Uncle Sam's nieces ever sent abroad.

To quote the exact number, of course, would invite the Army censor's blue pencil, but the force is big enough to give Capt. Anna W. Wilson of Studio City, Calif., plenty to do in arranging living quarters at the various places where the Women's Army Auxiliargy Corps will be stationed.

In addition, this attractive, prematurely gray-haired head of the WAACS in the European Theater of Operations is holding numerous conferences with high ranking officers in Great Britain who are hopeful that WAAC telephone operators, stenographers, clerks, motor car drivers or airplane mechanics will be assigned to their units.

Captain Wilson is 33 years old. Her hair, which she wears waved up and back from her face, accents her dark, expressive eyes. She has the figure to set off a uniform. She is friendly, approachable and very serious about her responsibilities.

She was born in Tulare, Calif., of pioneer parents who settled in the Comstock region. Educated at Pomona College and at Claremont College, she took her master's degree at the latter institution and she also did postgraduate work at the University of California in Los Angeles. In 1935 she married Jack L. Wilson, who died three years later.

At the time she joined the WAAC, Captain Wilson was head of the health and physical education department in the Beverly Hills High School. Like her sister overseas, Commanding Officer Capt. Frances K. Marquis of New York, who led the first feminine AEF to Africa last January, Captain Wilson was a member of the first WAAC officer candidate class at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, last July.

Many Positions Beckon to High School Students

This is the second of a series of articles dealing with employment opportunities for women and children in the District of Columbia. Tomorrow's story will tell of housewives' part-time job openings.

By Genevieve Reynolds

Good student, poor student, boy or girl—there are plenty of job openings for high school youngsters. Biggest cry is for typists. Next in demand are clerical workers, accountants, bookkeepers and telephone operators. Hence 16-year-old Sallie or 14-year-old Mary can swing easily $1440, provided it is a Government job.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

"There are too many jobs for youngsters," declares Mrs. Mildred S. Percy, head, department of guidance and placement for the Distrtict of Columbia public schools." The kids are getting inordinately high salaries, in some cases many make more than the teachers. These high salaries are doing something to the children. It is giving them a faulty idea of worth, which probably will embitter the children who haven't had sufficient experience to weather the post-war letdown."

So great has been the clamor for high school children's help that various Government agencies vied with each other in recruiting the youngsters. Private industry's voice was lost in the tumult—it could not compete with the high salaries. For awhile so many assemblies were called for recruiting that the kids began to laugh and poke fun. Also, they learned quickly to dicker for higher salaries, according to Mrs. Percy. However, she pointed out that since civil service had been called in to hold examinations and do the recruiting all at once, more order had been established in the schools.

The Children Strut

What are the adolescent's reactions to the easy jobs and high pay? "They get the impression 'We are needed,'" explained Mrs. Percy. "'We are big shots,' they say, and strut accordingly."

Her greatest concern is that the children lured by the high salaries will like their economic independence so well that they will have little inclination to return to school at the end of the summer or war, to complete their high school training. If the jobs were specifically summer ones, Mrs. Percy wouldn't worry so much.

In order to encourage youngsters to complete their education, the District schools are urging the establishment of school counseling programs. This is to encourage those who left to take war job to come back to night school or after the emergency to reenter day classes.

"If such a consultation service is established," said Mrs. Percy, "the boys and girls will come back." In the meantime, the school placement officers are handing the students the green E. E. S. cards (Educational Experience Summary) prepared by the United States Office of Education in cooperation with the War Department, the War Manpower Commission, the Farm Production Administration of the United States Department of Agriculture and the National Association of Secondary School Principals. These cards give the students' hobbies, interests, extracurricular activities as well as grades and experience.

Government officials as well as private employers are asked to encourage the youngsters to keep up their education through night school when possible, or to return to the classroom after the war. Even with these precautions, Mrs. Percy doubts whether many of the students will return to further or complete their high school education.

Most difficult work to sell to the children are the farm jobs, where the pay is much less than in the city. Finally, after much talking and recruiting by the teachers, a sufficient number of youngsters has been obtained. The two selling points used were patriotism and physical fitness. The boys want to get to the country to toughen up for the Army; others considered it a duty to produce food for victory. Teachers saw in the farmers' demands a wonderful opportunity to impart a new type of education.

"I think this is an excellent opportunity for city boys and girls to learn farm language, to discover the problems of the farmers. He or she might find some aptitude heretofore unrecognized," stated Mrs. Percy. "After the war is over and when laborers return to the farm, I hope the farmers can continue arrangements for employing school boys and girls. I should like to see the boys and girls get school credits for the work when they do a good research or notebook job."

This week finds many high school girls—minimum age is 14—at Camp Mil-Bur for Victory Farm Volunteers and Women's Land Army. These girls under the supervision of counselors and staff members will help the farmers in Anne Arundel County, Md., harvest their crops. Boys will go to other nearby camps to aid farmers. The harvesting period continues until after Labor Day.

Registrations may be made through the local school organization or through Miss Dorothy Emerson, Girls Club agent, College Park, Md. Her telephone number is Warfield 3800, Branch 237.

What with Government and industry begging for help, the high school students can take their choices of jobs as messengers in the U. S. Government at $1260, telephone operators, clerks, technical or scientific aides. Salaries with the Government are higher. In private business there is a big demand for messengers, office machine operators, clerks, typists, file clerks, store clerks, managers. Above all there is the continuous cry for more typists.

U. S. Gasoline Supplies Show Another Drop

The Nation's stocks of gasoline declined 1,308,000 barrels during the week ended June 19 to a total of 79,806,000 barrels, the American Petroleum Institute reported yesterday.

The supply of gasoline a year earlier amounted to 89,693,000 barrels.

Production of gasoline during the week amounted to 11,152,000 barrels against 10,626,000 the week before.

Light fuel oils increased 1,003,000 barrels during the week to a total of 33,558,000 while heavy fuels were off 197,000 barrels at 67,455,000.

Crude oil production averaged 3,966,150 daily, an increase of 21,650 daily from the previous week, and compared with 3,720,800 barrels daily a year earlier. Refinery operations were at 80.9 per cent of capacity compared with 78.7 per cent the week before.

Civilian stocks of gasoline and light and heavy fuels on the Eastern Seaboard were estimated at 27.6 per cent of normal against 26.8 per cent the week.

WFA to Issue Reports

The War Food Administration (WFA) has put out instructions that all market news reports heretofore issued by the Agriculture Department and released over the latter's wire network be hereafter issued in the name of the WFA.

Included are reports pertaining to grains, livestock, poultry, fruit and vegetable markets. Monthly commodity summary reports prepared by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics will be issued in the name of the department.

Philip Morris Sales Up 25% as Net Drops

New York, June 23 (AP).—Net sales of Philip Morris & Co. in the fiscal year ended March 11 rose 25 per cent to $141,046,615 from $112,509,839 in the preceding year, but higher prices for tobacco and increased taxes whittled its net income by 11 per cent, the company announced today.

Net income amounted to $6,930,033, equal, after dividend requirements on two preferred series, to 6.12 a share on the common stock. This compared with net of $7,784,035, or $8 a share on the common outstanding in the preceding year.

Pittsburgh Coal Co. Omits Dividend

Pittsburgh, June 23 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Co. announced that its directors, meeting today, "found it impossible to take action" on a dividend on the company's preferred stock. The reasons, the company said, were "uncertainties connected with the still unsettled question of miners' wages and working conditions and the possible consequences of continued Government control and operation of the mines."

OFFICIAL NOTICES 5

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, June 9, 1943. Notice is hereby given that under authority granted in Public Act No. 307, approved December 15, 1932, authorizing the closing of streets, roads, highways and alleys in the District of Columbia, and in accordance with the provisions of an item authorizing changes in the permanent system of highways contained in D. C. Appropriation Act for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1914 (Public Act No. 435, 62nd Congress), approved March 4, 1913, as amended by an Act approved April 30, 1926 (Public Act No. 158, 69th Congress), the Commissioners of the District of Columbia will give a public hearing in the Board Room in the District Building, Washington, D. C., on MONDAY, June 28, 1943, at 10 o'clock a. m. to interested property owners to determine as to any property rights which may be affected or as to the equity, justice or advisability of closing the streets, roads and alleys, and concerning the proposed changes in the permanent system of highways, all in the District of Columbia and described as follows: 1. Closing of streets and alleys in the Fort Reno area, Northwest section, bounded by Chesapeake Street, Nebraska Avenue, Fessenden Street and Belt Road, including a transfer of jurisdiction to the Commissioners, D. C., for the widening of Chesapeake Street between De Russey and Sheridan Streets, N.W. 2. Closing of streets and old roads in Piney Branch Parkway, U. S. Reservation No. 339, in the Northwest section, which includes the closing of parts of 14th Street Road, 17th Street, Spring Road and Mt. Pleasant Street in the area west of 16th Street and south of Shepherd Street, N.W. 3. Closing of streets, roads and alleys in the Fort Stanton Park area, Southeast section, which includes the closing of parts of 16th Street, 17th Street, 18th Street, 18th Place, 19th Place, 20th Street, Butler Street, Stanton Road, W Street, Grand View Place, Harrison Place, Capitol View Place, City View Place, Naylor Road and 27th Street; and the closing of parts of alleys and old roads in this area; including a transfer of jurisdiction to the Commissioners, D. C., for a connecting street between 15th and 16th Streets through Square 5797. 4. Closing of 30th Street between Hillcrest Drive and V Place, S.E., W Place between Hillcrest Drive and 31st Street, S.E., and closing public alleys in Square 5657, including a transfer of jurisdiction to the Commissioners, D. C., for a public alley in said Square 5657. 5. Closing of the part of the public alley in Square 5637 running south from S Street, between 29th and 30th Streets, S.E. 6. Closing of the part of the public alley in Square 5351 running east from Texas Avenue, between B and C Streets, S.E. 7. Closing of 10th Place between Mississippi Avenue and Valley Avenue, S.E., abutting Squares 5931 and 5932. 8. Closing part of 10th Place, including a dedication to provide a realignment of said 10th Place, between Mississippi Avenue and Congress Street, S.E.; and closing of street area at 11th Place and Trenton Place, S.E., including a dedication to provide a street realignment at this location, and for the establishment of building restriction lines in Squares 5933, 5934, 5935 and 5936. 9. Closing of New Jersey Avenue between M and N Streets, S.E., and closing M Place, Quander Street, N Street and Francis Place, all immediately east of First Street, S.E., and closing alleys in Squares 743 and 744. 10. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways in the Northeast section, providing for a change in the location of a proposed street extending south from W Street, proposed, between Brentwood Road and 13th Street, N.E. 11. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways in the Southern section of the District of Columbia covering area bounded on the north by Atlantic Street, on the east by Livingston Road, on the south by Southern Avenue, and on the west by the westerly line of First Street, S.W., and South Capitol Street, providing for the elimination of part of First Street, S.W., proposed, and for the elimination of other proposed streets through U. S. Reservation at this location. 12. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways affecting property in the Northeast section along the line of 50th Street between Washington Place and Grant Street. Maps showing the street, road and alley areas proposed to be closed and showing the proposed changes in the permanent system of highways are on file in the office of the Surveyor, D. C., Room 405, District Building (name being known as Maps 2871, 2872, 2873, 2874, 2875, 2876, 2877, 2878, 2879, 2880, 2881 and 2882) and may be examined by interested parties during business hours prior to the hearing. Said maps will also be displayed at the hearing and the Commissioners will consider any suggestions or protests concerning the proposed changes and the proposed street, road and alley closings as shown on above-mentioned maps. JOHN RUSSELL YOUNG, C. W. KUTZ, GUY MASON, Commissioners of the District of Columbia. 9-24.

DO YOU WANT TO GET BACK IN BUSINESS?

Have you had previous selling experience and are you interested in making a permanent connection with one of America's leading merchandising organizations?

If you want to get back in business we have positions for several high grade men who have a proven background and a record of successful selling. Conditions have misplaced many capable salesmen and forced them into work less desirable to them. Manufacture of our products has been curtailed to a degree but not seriously and our men averaged over $5,000.00 net in commissions last year.

Applicants who convince us of their ability and qualifications and are draft exempt will be interviewed by an executive of our Company.

We are looking for good substantial men who want to make a future for themselves with our Company.

This is not a duration proposition.

All replies will be held confidential.

Address replies to Box M-321, Washington Post.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Do You Dig Me, Skip? — By Milton Caniff

I'LL TAKE YOUR REPORT NOW, MR. RYAN...
SIR, THE AREA COVERED APPEARS QUIET—BUT ONE ISLAND SEEMS ODD... IT IS NO. 407—ABOUT 100 MILES DUE WEST... MAP REFERENCE H-15
OUR PREVIOUS PHOTOGRAPHS SHOW NO APPARENT HABITATION—NOW THERE IS AGRICULTURAL ACTIVITY IN THE FLAT PLATEAU SECTION...
THERE SEEMS TO BE PLOWING GOING ON...
—BUT NO EVIDENCE OF PREVIOUS TILLING...
BUT MORE IMPORTANT, SIR... DO YOU RECALL THE TRAIL A MOLE LEAVES ON A LAWN WHEN HE IS DIGGING JUST UNDER THE SURFACE?...
I DO—AND I ALSO BEGIN TO SEE WHAT YOU'RE THINKING, MR. RYAN!
MILTON CANIFF

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

MR. TOWERS! SHERRY VANCE IS ACTING VERY STRANGELY! PERHAPS YOU'D BETTER GO SPEAK TO HER...!
SORRY TO HEAR IT, PATTI! SHERRY'S HIGH STRUNG AS A FIDDLE, BUT SHE'S ALWAYS KEPT A BRAKE ON HERSELF!
BETTER OOZE AWAY FROM THAT WINDOW, MY DESPONDENT DIANA! I'D HATE TO LOSE MY NUMBER ONE TOWERS GIRL!
I'M NOT NUMBER ONE, OR NUMBER 100, MR. TOWERS! PLEASE MAKE OUT MY CHECK! I'M QUITTING!

MICKEY FINN — Happy Family — By Lank Leonard

AND THIS IS JACK STUTZ, MICKEY—HE WORKS WITH US ON THE DECK GUN!
GLAD TO KNOW YOU, JACK!
NOW I WANT YOU FELLAS TO MEET ED PURDY—WE WENT THROUGH THE SUBMARINE SCHOOL TOGETHER!
PLEASED T'MEET CHA, ED!
PARDON ME—BUT BEFORE RETIRING, WOULD ANY OF YOU LUGS LIKE TO SAMPLE A LITTLE MORSEL I'VE WHIPPED UP?
LEMON MERINGUE PIE!
WELL, MICKEY—DID WE PICK THE RIGHT SHIP OR DIDN'T WE?
WE SURE DID, TOM!!

MR. AND MRS. — A Responsive Audience — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover

SAY, HERE'S SOMETHING FUNNY. LISTEN TO THIS!
OH, JOE! I'M READING
BUT YOU CAN STOP A SECOND, CAN'T YOU? IT SAYS HERE—CAN'T YOU READ IT TO ME LATER ON?
DO YOU REALIZE HOW MANY TIMES I'VE STOPPED TO HEAR WHAT YOU WANTED TO SAY?
OH—VERY WELL. WHAT IS IT?
GO AHEAD. LET'S HEAR IT. GO ON
NEVER MIND. I'VE NO DESIRE TO READ IT NOW

RIGHT AROUND HOME — By Dudley Fisher

DIXIE DUGAN — Exercise! — By J. P. McEvoy and H. J. Striebel

SO YOU'RE GOING TO CONTINUE PLAYING PIONEER WITH THE KIDS IN SPITE OF TODAY'S TANTRUMS?
(SIGH)—I PROMISED THE MOTHERS I WOULD—
IT'S A LOT OF NONSENSE, IF YOU SHOULD ASK ME.
RALPH WALDO EMERSON ONCE SAID—QUOTE "THE PLAYS OF CHILDREN ARE NONSENSE—BUT VERY EDUCATIVE NONSENSE" UNQUOTE—
AND TO PLAY WITH CHILDREN YOU'VE GOT TO COME DOWN TO THEIR LEVEL (YAWN)
YOU'RE LOWER'N THAT RIGHT NOW!
BESIDES—THE EXERCISE—WILL BE—INVIGORATING—AND—AND—TSK, TSK, TSK. YOU POOR KID—YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU'RE IN FOR

JOE PALOOKA — Lay Back — By Ham Fisher

GET IT, PETE—GET IT, PE-E-E-E-TE
NICE WORK, PETE.
THROW IT TIME—
YOU FELLAS BETTER LAY BACK FOR THIS ONE—THIS GUY CAN CLOUT.
OKAY.
OKE.
IT'S THE SEVENTH INNING SCORE 0-0. THE BATTER, ANDY SARDONI, FORMER STAR HITTER OF THE MINOR LEAGUES IS BATTING FOR THE ARTILLERY.

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Taken for a Ride — By Frank Martinek

HEY, WHAT'S THE BIG IDEA—YOU LUGS!!
CRASH!!
SAY, WHERE DO YOU GUYS GET THAT STUFF? THIS HIGHWAY RUNS TWO WAYS—WHY DON'T YOU KEEP ON YOUR SIDE?
CAN THE BEEF, KID, OR I'LL PUNCH YOU IN THAT LITTLE FAT PUSS OF YOURS!
CUT IT, BLACKIE! DO YOU KNOW WHO THAT GUY IS? HE'S THE NAVAL OFFICER WHO WAS DOWN AT ESLAT'S PLACE!
WELL, WHAT DO YOU KNOW! WHAT ARE WE WAITING FOR?
C'MON, FATTY, GET IN THAT CAR! YOU'RE GOING FOR A NICE BUGGY RIDE!
WHY YOU...

JANE ARDEN — Call for Help — By Monte Barrett and Russell Ross

TUBBY MUST HAVE PHONED ME FROM THIS BOOTH—BUT WHY DID THE MAN OUT THERE TRY TO KEEP ME OUT?
IS THERE A CLUE HERE?
THIS IS WHERE TUBBY'S CALL WAS CUT OFF—
I MUST BE GETTING WARM—
NOW WHY SHOULD LIGHT SHOW THROUGH AT THE BASE OF THIS WALL?
THIS LOOKS MORE LIKE A REVOLVING DOOR—
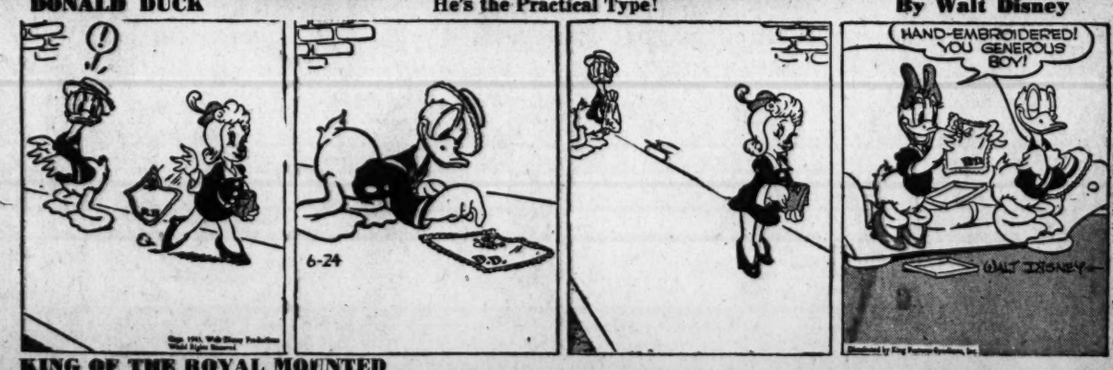
HEY!

DONALD DUCK — He's the Practical Type! — By Walt Disney



HERE'S THE SALT BARREL, MR. FLINT!
THANKS, HERMAN! YOU GO OUT AND WATCH THE GATE—TELL BRUNO TO MAKE THE GASOLINE ENGINE BACKFIRE TO COVER THE SHOTS!
BE SURE TO HAVE A BATCH OF FRESH CONCRETE READY!
I GATHER THAT I'M TO BE PUT IN THE BARREL AND SNUGLY TUCKED IN WITH CEMENT!
AND NOW, MY FOOLISH YOUNG HERO—PERHAPS YOU'D BETTER CLOSE YOUR EYES!!

SUPERMAN — Hear Superman 5:45 P.M. Today—WOL — By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

WHAT HAPPENED?
"NONAME" HELPED ACCOMPLISH HIS OWN DESTRUCTION—HERE ARE THE SECRET INVASION PLANS THAT WERE STOLEN FROM YOU!
THE AMERICAN EMBASSY....
COLLINS! YOU DARE TO RETURN!
LET ME EXPLAIN.
THE MAN WHO ATTACKED YOU EARLIER TODAY WAS NOT COLLINS, BUT A CLEVERLY DISGUISED ENEMY AGENT. I'VE JUST RESCUED THE REAL COLLINS, AND THE SECRET INVASION PLANS FROM THE ENEMY.
I'VE HEARD OF THE WONDERS YOU PERFORM IN THE CAUSE OF JUSTICE AND DEMOCRACY, BUT THIS IS THE FEAT DEMONSTRATION I'VE PERSONALLY WITNESSED.
YOU'VE RENDERED INESTIMABLE AID TO THE ALLIED CAUSE. THE MATTER OF THIS SECRET INVASION PLANS MAY BE THE DIVIDING LINE BETWEEN VICTORY AND DEFEAT!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED — By Zane Grey

SHE IS TRAVELING BY PLANE, KID—AND TO HER FIFTY MILES IS JUST A HOP—
—SHE'S GOING TO SHIVVER LAKE OR SHE'D HAVE SENT US WAY OFF HER TRAIL!
AND I THINK I SENSE A PLEA FOR HELP IN THAT LIPSTICK MESSAGE!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — By Clifford McBride
